

SENATORS HIT RED-CLOTH TIEUP

FILIBUSTER GETS

AFTER 16 DAYSLynch Bill Headed for Scrap Heap.

Roosevelt Edict.

PRICES AND WAGES—President Roosevelt serves notice on industry prices must be reduced, but intimates that if wages also are cut he will embark on vast new federal spending program. Page 6.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.] Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—[Special.]—The Wagner-Van Nuys anti-lynching bill was destined for the legislative scrap heap tonight when proponents of the measure filed a motion for cloture of debate, admitting at the same time it has no chance of adoption.

It requires a two-thirds vote to adopt a cloture rule—which would limit debate to one hour for each senator—and proponents of the anti-lynching bill expressed doubt that more than thirty senators would support the motion.

Senator Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.), chairman of the senate rules committee and a supporter of the bill, filed the cloture motion just before the senate recessed at 10:15 p. m. It was signed by seventeen senators, one more than the number required by the senate rules. Under the rules it must be voted upon, without debate, one hour after the senate meets Thursday, the second calendar day after its filing.

Purpose of Move Explained. The purpose in filing the admittedly futile motion to invoke the drastic and rarely used senate cloture rule, as one of the leading supporters of the anti-lynching bill explained, was to give the proponents a chance to go on record. If they vote for cloture, this senator explained, they will be doing all that can be expected of them by their Negro constituents. After that the bill can be displaced by other pressing business, probably the $1,412,000,000 independent offices appropriation measure.

The southern senators who have filibustered for sixteen days against the anti-lynching bill can then be blamed for frustrating the will of the majority and killing it.

Historic Party Roles Reversed. There was irony in the fact that not a single Republican signed the formal motion to invoke cloture. The historic roles of the Republican and Democratic parties were reversed.

For more than thirty years after the civil war the Republican party advocated federal anti-lynching legislation, with the Democratic party consistently and always successfully opposing it, often by the use of filibuster. This time the bill was sponsored by northern Democrats.

Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky did not sign the cloture motion, but Senator Robert F. Wagner (D., N. Y.) did. Senator Robert F. La Follette Jr. (Radical, Wis.), another powerful administration leader, signed the motion, although his father was a lifelong foe of senate debate limitation and his eighteen hour filibustering speech still stands as the all-time record.

Other Senators Who Signed. The other senators who signed the motion are:

Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.), Herman Minton (D., Ind.), Frederick A. Nuys (D., Ind.), Fred H. Brown (D., N. H.), Bennett C. Clark (D., Mo.), George McGill (D., Kas.), Lewis Schwellenbach (D., Wash.), Harry Truman (D., Mo.), Homer T. Bone (D., Wash.), Robert J. Bulkley (D., Ill.), Herbert E. Hitchcock (D., S. D.), Royal S. Copeland (D., N. Y.), Elbert Thomas (D., Utah), Joseph F. Gurney (D., Pa.), and William G. McAdoo (D., Cal.).

Majority Leader Barkley resorted to the gesture of attempting cloture this evening after a conference with Senators Wagner and Van Nuys, authors of the bill. The southern senators had begun to taunt the senate leadership about the status of the anti-lynching bill. The senate leadership had begun to taunt the senate leadership about the status of the anti-lynching bill.

MME. PERKINS
TOLD TO DIG UP
ALIEN'S RECORDSeek Showdown on Maritime Strife.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—[Special.]—After a series of witnesses had placed responsibility for maritime labor violence upon the aid and comfort given the C. I. O. by the Roosevelt administration, the senate commerce committee today ordered Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins to produce all records in her department concerning Harry Bridges, communist C. I. O. leader on the west coast.

The resolution of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), adopted unanimously by the committee, specifically directed Madame Perkins to report on recommendations made by inspectors of the immigration and naturalization bureau for the deportation of Bridges, who is an alien.

Letter Not Acknowledged.

The labor secretary, it is understood, has steadfastly refused to authorize a warrant for Bridges' deportation.

Senator Vandenberg said the testimony concerning labor violence on the American merchant marine made it imperative that the committee ascertain the exact status of Bridges.

He said he wrote to Madame Perkins a week ago requesting full information on the C. I. O. maritime boss and that she had not acknowledged his letter. When Senator Vandenberg's motion was put to a vote by Senator Royal S. Copeland (D., N. Y.), chairman of the committee, not a dissenting voice was heard.

Tell of U. S. Aid to C. I. O.

At the afternoon session of the committee's hearing on a bill to liberalize merchant marine subsidies and require compulsory mediation and arbitration in labor disputes, Paul Scharenburg, legislative representative of the American Federation of Labor, was a witness. He told how the National Labor Relations board intervened on behalf of John L. Lewis and his C. I. O. and fostered the organization of the C. I. O. national maritime union on the Atlantic coast.

This was accomplished, he said, by the action of the labor board, through Mrs. Eleanor M. Herrick, its New York regional director, in destroying contracts between the International Seamen's union, an A. F. of L. affiliate, and the Atlantic steamship companies.

The turmoil on the Atlantic coast began, Mr. Scharenburg said, after the A. F. of L. signed an agreement with the Atlantic coast operators in 1934.

Two Outlaw Strikes.

"This agreement," he testified, "was followed by two outlaw strikes, both of which were defeated. But with the aid and encouragement of Mrs. Herrick, the red outlaws appealed to the National Labor Relations board in Washington and they were received with open arms."

Mr. Scharenburg said that the communist party called for a national roundup of members for the organization of a dual seamen's union in the C. I. O. and that Bridges came east to take charge of the organization drive. The campaign did not succeed, he said, until the National Labor Relations board granted a C. I. O. request to hold hearings in January, 1937.

"Mrs. Herrick left no stone unturned to justify the faith placed in her by the Reds," the witness said. "When the wrecking crew finally abandoned all hope of capturing by fair means the International Seamen's union they adopted a new name, the National Maritime union, and Mrs. Herrick virtually became the business agent of the union."

Dual Union Forced In.

"The International Seamen's union's agreement provided that duly certified agents of the three departments (sailors, firemen, and stewards) were to be admitted to the ships covered by the agreement. Mrs. Herrick, by numerous veiled threats, soon induced various subsidized lines to give passes to agents of the red dual union. Sidewalk strikes were introduced and, under heavy joint pressure from Mrs. Herrick and the galaxy of dual union lawyers, several of the principal shipowners surrendered."

The witness said that Mrs. Herrick recommended the scrapping of the A. F. of L. contracts on the ground that so long as a minority of the union members were dissatisfied and continued to strike the agreements

IT DEPENDS UPON WHO APPLIES THE PRESSURE

The Doctor, It Seems, Doesn't Like Fat Men

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 25.—If a woman is plump at 50 years old it is nobody's fault; but a man, fat at the same age, is a fool and bibulous glutton. Dr. Leonard Williams, British physician and author of several medical works, made this statement at a meeting of the New Health club in London. The doctor is 76 years of age.

"Fitness at middle age is a totally different matter in the two sexes," Dr. Williams said.

He was harshly outspoken on the subject of the man who had not learned to keep fit at 50.

"He is usually the kind of fool who is bald headed and pot bellied," Dr. Williams said, "a bibulous, gluttonous, smoke-sucking beast, who deserves all he gets of gout, high blood pressure, eczema, and arthritis. He even deserves a nagging wife."

It's Different with Women.

But with women it is different, it seems.

"At middle age she usually is more deserving of pity than censure," Dr. Williams said. "I am not concerned with the paint-bedizened, cocktail, bridge playing, mid-morning feeling, smoking, shapeless flounder who so often disfigures the middle-distance at race meetings, and the close-up of the front stalls; she deserves all the abuse I have hurled at the self-indulgent man. No, I am thinking of the professional woman who cannot afford to look old."

"All women pass through a difficult physiological period at middle age, and it is rendered more difficult because so many anticipate it with trembling hands outstretched. They frighten themselves unnecessarily and prematurely into looks and habits much older than their real years. Fear is middle aged woman's worst enemy."

Dr. Williams warned women who neglected their sight: "You get crows' feet all round your eyes; you frown at your best friends; your hair grows prematurely gray—and your digestion, like your temper, becomes difficult."

Advices Careful Eating.

As to obesity, he observed: "In man, it is safe to say, fatness is due to self-indulgence; in woman it is not; it is a glandular matter."

Giving hints to women on how to keep fit in middle age, Dr. Williams said:

"It is necessary to be as parsimonious about food as it is essential to be prodigal with fresh air. And when I say parsimonious I use the word as meaning intelligently, reasonably careful—certainly not as lending any sanction to the semi-starvation regimen to which some girls subject themselves for fear of developing their mothers' middle age 'spread.'"

New York, Jan. 25.—(P)—Nine struggling tugs dragged the Leviathan, retired queen of the seas, off a bed of silt in the Hudson river today and headed the rusty, black ghost of a ship on its last voyage to a scrap yard at Rosyth, Scotland.

Under command of Capt. John W. Binks, retired master of the British liner Olympic, the Leviathan sailed with a crew of 160 British and American seamen, seven officers and two passengers.

NO. 1 AUTO LICENSE PLATE GOES TO CARDINAL'S CAR

Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago will receive No. 1 automobile license plate for 1938, Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes announced yesterday. He also made public a list of other holders of low license numbers for 1938.

Other one digit numbers were reassigned to the following: No. 2, Henry W. Austin, former state legislator, Oak Park; No. 3, former Gov. Louis L. Emmerson; No. 4, Harry T. Hollingshead, Chicago auto dealer; No. 5, State Senator W. E. C. Clifford, Chicago; No. 6, Herbert B. Bartholomew, Springfield; No. 7, former Lieut. Gov. John G. Oglesby, Elkhart; No. 8, Mrs. Eva T. BUFFALO NICKEL WILL ROLL INTO DISCARD FEB. 21

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—[Special.]—The familiar buffalo and Indian head nickel will not be coined after Feb. 21, Secretary of the Treasury Henry A. Morgenthau announced today a contest for the design of its successor, a new 5 cent coin to be known as the Jefferson nickel.

By law the design of a coin may not be changed oftener than once in 25 years. On Feb. 21 the buffalo, which replaced the Liberty nickel in 1913, will reach retirement age.

The new coin will have a portrait of Thomas Jefferson on one side and a representation of Monticello, his home, on the other.

Visits a Tavern and One Thing Leads to Another

Mrs. Valerie Andrews, 37 years old, 1046 Wisconsin avenue, Oak Park, was taken to the Oak Park hospital last night. Her husband, J. G. Andrews, said that she had slipped off a stool in the Wenonah tavern at 7023 Roosevelt road, Berwyn, and that her left foot landed in a cuspidor as she descended. The cuspidor skidded and Mrs. Andrews' left leg was broken.

Windsor Rents
Large Chateau in Versailles

BY MAE BIRKHEAD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 25.—On unimpeachable authority, it was learned today that the duke of Windsor, former King Edward VIII of England, and his duchess have rented Mme. Paul Dupuy's Chateau de la Maye in Versailles, the beautiful suburb of Paris.

The chateau has been engaged for several months, the papers are to be signed immediately and the Windsors will move in on Feb. 1. Mme. Dupuy already has ordered the necessary cleaning for the chateau and the lodge which has rooms for thirteen servants.

[Mme. Dupuy, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Brown of New York and Chicago, was born in Chicago. Upon the death of her husband, Senator Paul Dupuy, she inherited his two Paris newspapers, the Petit Parisien and Excelsior.]

Wanted Eight Bedrooms.

Since their return from the Riviera a few weeks ago the Windsors had looked at practically every house in and near Versailles, but besides wanting to be in the old "city of kings," they wanted all the modern conveniences. They stipulated eight master bedrooms and nearly as many bathrooms. French houses, even when modern, seldom have a profusion of bathrooms such as are found in mansions of the United States.

Mme. Dupuy's delightful, old-fashioned property filled so many of their requirements that the Windsors decided it would be a mistake to hesitate.

Enriched by Art Pieces.

Chateau de la Maye is enriched by superb pieces of art purchased all over the world by the traveled Mme. Dupuy. It stands in the midst of a garden renowned for its roses and which attracts garden lovers from all of France. The house stands on the site of the Chateau de Clagny which Louis XIV. built in 1674 for Mme. de Montespan.

Versailles, now a city of 65,000 twelve miles southwest of Paris, owes its existence and its fame for elegance to Louis XIV. He built the magnificent Versailles palace and created an ordered expanse of parks and gardens with many statues and fountains about it. He went there to make his permanent residence in 1682.

Tragic Wright
Confession Is Read to Jurors

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 25.—[Special.]—With dramatic suddenness, the state rested its case against Paul A. Wright late today after the jury had heard the former airport manager's sworn statement to police that he pumped many bullets into his pretty wife and best friend when he found them in an affectionate embrace.

An effort to save the former Chicagoan from dying in California's gas chamber will be made when the trial is resumed tomorrow afternoon. Defense Attorney Jerry Giesler is expected to open his case by introducing numerous depositions that Wright was made emotionally unstable by gas in the world war, by a sterilization operation, and by a stormy home life.

Defense May Need Week.

Giesler said he planned to present about twenty witnesses, and that his defense probably would require a week. He said Wright will take the stand in his defense, but it was not made known whether he will describe the intimate scene in which he said he found his wife, Evelyn, and his airport aid, John Kimmel, last Nov. 9.

A tense courtroom audience, dotted with movie stars, heard Wright's story of shooting the two in his Glendale home in the early morning hours after he and Kimmel had made a round of Hollywood night clubs together.

Wright's statement, made at 7:30 on the morning of the tragedy, was read in the still courtroom of Superior Judge Ingall W. Bull by Deputy District Attorney Ernest S. Roll, chief prosecutor in the case.

Tells of Suspicious.

The document set forth that Wright had suspected his wife's actions with other men, but never with Kimmel, whom he described as a perfect gentleman.

Wright had told police he attended a meeting of aviators the night before the shooting and later in company with Kimmel went to a cafe where they had several drinks. He said neither was intoxicated and that both drove their cars to the cafe and later to his home. Wright said his wife was waiting for him and that they had two or three drinks when seated before the fireplace. Some of the questions and answers as then appear in the document follow:

Q.—Evelyn, Kimmel and yourself had a few drinks at home? A.—Yes; then I went to the bedroom and went to sleep.

Q.—Did you undress? A.—No, I just lay down on the bed. I woke up and heard voices. Evelyn's and John's, and couldn't understand why John should still be there. I got up and walked into the room and found John and her in each other's arms on the piano bench. I said something; they looked up, smiled or laughed, and kissed each other again.

Story of Shooting.

"Then things went perfectly white hot," continued the statement. "I didn't think. All I could think of was to destroy that thing. I walked over to the bureau in the bedroom and got out an automatic. Don't know what I was doing, except as I say, I wanted to destroy the vision of that girl sitting there on the piano."

IMPEACHMENT
ISSUE AGAINST
GEIGER DROPPEDU. S. Asks Consent Decree Ruling.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—[Special.]—The house judiciary committee today heard Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson accuse Federal Judge Ferdinand A. Geiger of Milwaukee of abuse of judicial discretion.

Immediately thereafter Jackson, known as one of the administration's most vituperative spokesmen, was himself the target for severe criticism. The use of federal grand juries by the department of justice to intimidate prospective defendants into signing consent decrees was labeled an amplified third degree by committee members.

Chairman Opens Meeting.

Chairman Hutton W. Summers (D., Tex.) occasioned a surprise by permitting an open hearing because of the importance of the issues involved. The entire administration of federal justice in the United States will be affected by the committee's decision in the opinion of lawyers.

That decision, it was made known early in the hearing, will not concern the impeachment of Judge Geiger. Jackson himself admitted that the charges against the judge were not the basis for impeachment proceedings.

When the somewhat puzzled congressmen inquired why the accusations against Judge Geiger then were being aired, Jackson replied that he wanted the committee's opinion on the propriety of consent decrees obtained through the use of a federal grand jury. Members of the committee expressed doubt that such an opinion was a duty devolving upon congress.

Wisconsin Attorneys to Defense.

Appearing in the nature of defense attorneys for Judge Geiger were several Wisconsin lawyers led by Benjamin Pess, president of the Wisconsin Bar association. They praised the judge for his integrity and regard for legal ethics and criticized department of justice tactics as threatening to an independent judiciary.

Jackson, a man of mild appearance, who delivers his sharpest remarks with a smile, characterized Judge Geiger as a man of very peculiar temperament. His assistant, Brian McMahon, in charge of criminal prosecutions for the department of justice, charged the judge with being dilatory in his work.

"He seems to be law unto himself," McMahon declared. "He cited instances where he said Judge Geiger had failed to impose sentence on convicted men for long periods and even dismissed indictments after a plea of guilty had been entered."

Auto Case Starts Feud.

The feud between Judge Geiger and the department of justice began last December when the jurist dismissed a grand jury investigating alleged violations of the anti-trust laws by automobile finance companies. The judge took this action when he heard that government counsel were negotiating a consent decree with the prospective defendants at the same time the grand jury was investigating the charges against them. Judge Geiger termed this an improper use of the grand jury.

Attorney General Cummings wrote a letter to the judiciary committee asserting that Judge Geiger's action was obstructive to the administration of justice. The committee considered this an invitation to consider impeachment of the judge and Jackson's admission today that there was no ground for impeachment proceedings was obviously both startling and bewildering to the congressmen.

This uncertainty as to a future course of conduct caused Chairman Summers to announce at the close of the hearings that the committee would study the evidence offered thus far and decide what further action to take.

Appeal to Committee.

"How far the committee will go, we don't know," he remarked. Attorney Pess said he had been informed that the committee would ascertain the truth of the accusations made against Judge Geiger.

"There appears to be a sharp difference of opinion between the Wisconsin bar and the department of justice as to the legality and ethics of holding conferences with prospective defendants while the grand jury is sitting on the case," he said.

Another point which puzzled the committee was the failure of the department of justice to file an appeal to a higher court from Judge Geiger's dismissal of the jury. Instead, as one committee member remarked, an appeal was taken to the judiciary committee.

"The orderly procedure would have been for government counsel to obtain a judicial review of the action," argued Attorney J. G. Hargrove of Milwaukee, member of a joint committee of the Wisconsin Bar association and Milwaukee County Bar association.

Defends Independent Judiciary.
"It is conceded now that there was no impeachable act on Judge Geiger's part," he continued. "I think it is conceded also that this was the standpoint of honesty and integrity, Judge Geiger's reputation is of the highest."

"The question is this: Are we going to tolerate the government engaging in an attack upon a judge whenever it is disappointed in a decision. If so, it is high time that we change our system of government. We cannot find justification for this attack on honest decisions in our present system."

"If there is one thing we need now, it is an independent judiciary. If we lose that we will have nothing left. We in Wisconsin are shocked at this suggested use of the grand jury."

Details Accusations.
Assistant Attorney General McMahon went into detail in his accusations against Judge Geiger even though admission previously had been made that there were no grounds for impeachment.

"It was no surprise to me that this investigation should have been called for," he declared. "I have been in charge of the prosecution of most of our criminal cases for a long time. The handling of criminal cases in the eastern district of Wisconsin long has been a cause of concern to me."

"The issue is whether Geiger abused his judicial discretion," McMahon continued, discarding the title of "Judge" for the jurist. "It might be illuminating to review some other things he has done which prove to me he is quite capable of an abuse of judicial discretion."

"I've listened to these bar association gentlemen hold up their hands in pious horror at the idea of negotiating with persons while the grand jury is acting. They ought to be interested in how justice has been administered in that district."

"Business is conducted in Geiger's court in a dilatory manner. The average time for disposal of cases in federal courts is four months. In his court it is eight months."

"There are at present fifteen prisoners in jail, eight of whom are ready to plead guilty and receive sentence but no criminal court has been held since May, 1937. One man was in jail for two years before he received a ten year sentence. Eleven men had their cases dismissed after being in jail for from six months to one year."

DISPUTES DELAY CHARGE

By THORNTON SMITH.

Charges Tribune Press Service.
Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 25.—[Special.]—Charges made in Washington to the house judiciary committee by Assistant Attorney General Brien McMahon that criminal law enforcement had broken down in the eastern district of Wisconsin are contradicted by court records, Bernard H. Westfall, clerk of the court said tonight. He disputed the testimony which was given on the opening of the hearing of Attorney General Cummings' complaints against Federal Judge F. A. Geiger.

Judge Geiger would make no comment on the testimony in Washington and it is believed he will not attend any hearings unless summoned by the committee.

There never has been a period, Westfall said, when no terms of criminal court was held for 15 months as the assistant attorney general is reported to have charged.

Explains Delay on Sentence.
The court clerk also explained the case of a man being held in the county jail nearly a year waiting for a chance to plead guilty. The prisoner McMahon referred to was Serafino Puccetti, he said, who now is in the house of correction on conviction in a counterfeiting charge.

Puccetti was arrested in December, 1936, on a court commissioner's warrant, Westfall said. He was remanded to jail Jan. 1, 1937, in default of $2,500 bond to await action by a grand jury. In June, 1937, he was indicted by the grand jury and in May 12, he came into court after expressing a wish to plead guilty.

Brought before Judge Geiger, he changed his mind and pleaded not guilty. Questioned by the court, Westfall said, the defendant made a statement inconsistent with his plea of not guilty and the court offered to appoint counsel for him. He returned to court later and again pleaded not guilty and was tried and sentenced.

Discusses Current Calendar.

There are 137 cases now pending for the January criminal term, the clerk of the court said, of which probably 57 are duplicate indictments in which the defendant either is in jail or cannot be located. While the cases are grouped in a special calendar after grand jury action, the clerk said it is not the custom to delay trial and single criminal cases are tried whenever the United States district attorney gives notice that he is ready for trial.

DRUNKEN DRIVER TEST IS CALLED LEGAL BY HODES

Sees No Objection to Use in Safety Court.

A legal opinion was given Police Commissioner Allan by Corporation Counsel Barnett Hodes yesterday to the effect that there is no objection to the use of the Hestle test to determine whether or not an automobile driver has drunk intoxicants.

The plan was suggested by Judge J. M. Braude, who said a laboratory concern would supply the necessary apparatus. The Hodes opinion said that the work should be done, if the plan is carried out, by the city's health department laboratories.

Hodes pointed out that the tests have been upheld by Arizona and Louisiana courts and said that in his opinion those arrested can be forced to submit. The test is based on a urinalysis.

Judge Braude yesterday sentenced the following in Safety court:

JOHN HANSEN, 51 years old, 7336 Exchange avenue, reckless driving; six months' probation and driving privileges suspended for four months.

EDWARD BYRNE, 42, 7410 Luella avenue, reckless driving; six months' probation and six days' suspension of driving privileges.

ALBERT BROCKLEY, 40, 552 West 57th street, driving while intoxicated; three months' probation and thirty days' suspension.

LOREN FELT, 61, 132 South Parkside avenue, reckless driving; probation one year and one year's suspension.

JOSEPH GOOLEY, 27, 10742 Champlain avenue, leaving the scene of an accident; one year's probation and six months' suspension.

THOMAS THURBER, 24, 1130 South Lombard avenue, Oak Park, reckless driving; probation for six months and four months' suspension.

WILLIAM DYER, 38, 4439 Washington boulevard, reckless driving; $25 fine and sixty days' suspension.

GEORGE REIFUS, 26, 6044 South Wolcott avenue, reckless driving; $25 fine and thirty days' suspension.

JOSEPH P. TILL, 32, 3800 North Kimball avenue, leaving the scene of an accident; $10 fine and thirty days' suspension.

'SEEING EYE' CAN LISTEN, TOO; GETS A CONCERT SEAT

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 25.—[Special.]—Cleo the dog now is an associate member of the Philadelphia Orchestra club, with a card entitling her to sit in the reserved section at all the rest of the Philadelphia orchestra's radio concerts. She won her membership by refraining from barking at a rehearsal and was permitted to attend her first broadcast Monday night.

The reason: Cleo is a Seeing Eye dog, who guides her blind mistress, Miss Annette Dinsmore, a member of the club. Miss Dinsmore can't attend the broadcasts unless Cleo does. Director Eugene Ormandy was afraid a bark would get on the air, until Cleo proved she knew how to act at a concert.

Dies of Burns Suffered in Hammond Oil Explosion
George Lewry, 43 years old, 7223 Chestnut street, Hammond, died yesterday in St. Catherine's hospital in East Chicago of burns suffered Monday in an explosion at the Sinclair oil refinery in Hammond. George Cunningham, 1332 Truman avenue, Hammond, and John Zumac of Whiting, who were repairing an oil line break with Lewry, also were burned.

AUTO-BUS CRASH; 2 SISTERS KILLED; 7 PERSONS HURT

Machines Collide at Foster and Cicero Avenues.

Two women were killed and seven other persons were injured late yesterday afternoon when a swiftly moving automobile crashed into the side of a surface lines feeder bus at Cicero and Foster avenues.

The dead were Mrs. Bertha Zuehlis, 66 years old, 5449 Pensacola avenue, and her sister, Mrs. Elvina Pahnke, 71, of 154 Willie street, Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Zuehlis' husband, Fred, 68 years old, was the driver of the automobile, which was headed south in Cicero avenue. Witnesses told the police that he disregarded a stop sign and cut around a car that was halted at the intersection.

Thrown Across Avenue.

The force of the collision carried both the car and the bus across Foster avenue into a vacant lot at the southeast corner. There the bus toppled halfway over on its side before it came to rest against a tree. The bodies of Mrs. Zuehlis and Mrs. Pahnke were thrown clear of the automobile.

Zuehlis suffered a fractured skull and another sister of his wife, Mrs. Olga Falk, 53 years old, 2643 North Sawyer avenue, incurred severe knee and shoulder injuries. They were taken to the Swedish Covenant hospital, where it was reported Zuehlis was in a critical condition.

The others hurt are Harry Henderson, 32 years old, 6642 North Clark street, driver of the bus, and the following passengers: Mrs. Victoria Lutz, 59, of 1942 Winona avenue; Mrs. Florence Conway, 31, of 5319 Lincoln avenue; Robert Hedlund, 20, of 1737 Carmen avenue, and Raymond Graff, 31, of 5421 North Laramie avenue.

The only other bus passenger, Edward Todd, 6126 North Mason avenue, escaped injury.

Driver Describes Collision.

Henderson said that he was east-bound and had stopped as he approached Cicero avenue.

"I could see the automobile coming from the north," he continued, "but I knew that it was supposed to stop. There was a car coming from the same direction that was already halted. Zuehlis didn't even slow down; however, his machine swerved around the other one and hit the rear end of the bus."

Both Foster and Cicero avenues are through streets. The stop signs for north and south traffic were in good working order, but that for east-bound motorists in Foster avenue was inconspicuous that it was difficult to see. Community organizations recently have protested the inadequate light system at the crossing, the police said.

Ald. William Cowhey [dist], in whose district the accident occurred, said that the intersection is state property and the state has approved construction of stop and go lights there. The installation has been delayed by unfavorable weather, he said.

Woman Dies Week After Crash.
Mrs. Rose Weber, 42 years old, of 2947 West 65th street, died yesterday of injuries incurred on Jan. 17 when she was struck by an automobile on West 63d street. The driver was Norman Jorgensen, 26, of 3014 West 63d street.

Miss Ellen MacNellis, 76 years old, 4213 West Jackson boulevard, was fatally injured last night when she was struck by an automobile at Jackson boulevard and Kildare avenue. The driver, John K. Mahard, 32 years old, 108 South Kostner avenue, was held for the inquest.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 78 persons had been killed in Cook county by automobiles since the first of the year. Of these 63 were killed in Chicago, while 153 were injured in the same period.

New York, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Mrs. Lorraine Manville Dresselhuys, wife of the wealthy Dutch industrialist, Cornelius Dresselhuys, and heiress in her own right to 10 million dollars of the Manville asbestos fortune, has renounced her American citizenship and become a Dutch subject.

Mrs. Dresselhuys appeared before a federal judge in Brooklyn last Thursday to take the necessary steps, it was disclosed today, and now is on a yachting trip off Miami, Fla. She is a sister of Thomas F. (Tommy) Manville.

Mrs. Dresselhuys is the second American woman of great wealth to renounce her citizenship within the last few weeks. The other was the Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, the former Barbara Hutton, who has become a naturalized Danish subject.

Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy Has Appendix Removed

Boston, Mass., Jan. 25.—[Special.]—Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, wife of the recently appointed United States ambassador to Great Britain and daughter of former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, was operated on for appendicitis tonight at St. Elizabeth's hospital in Brighton. Her condition was pronounced excellent several hours after the operation, but it was announced at the office of her husband in Washington that the sailing of the Kennedys for England, scheduled for Feb. 9, would be delayed.

INSURANCE MEN URGE NEW SPEED LAW FOR TRUCKS

Legislators Hear More Safety Proposals.

BY HAL FOUST.

Insurance men, interested in reducing the traffic accidents of policy holders, yesterday told an Illinois legislative committee that they favor setting the maximum legal speed for all trucks at 40 miles an hour and boosting the limit for buses from 40 to 50 miles an hour.

Senator Louis J. Menges (D., East St. Louis), chairman of the committee, summarizing the position of the insurance men after a round table discussion, said:

"They don't want to increase the maximum speeds of these heavy vehicles as they are encountered on the highways, but they do want the speed provisions of the statute rationalized and enforced."

"With today's unreasonable limits, there is no uniform enforcement. For example, there's the testimony of one investigator that he trailed a bus doing 70 miles an hour."

The Present Limits.
The present limits are 45 m. p. h. for trucks of less than 5,000 pounds; 40 m. p. h. for vehicles from 5,000 to 12,000 pounds; 30 m. p. h. for 12,000 to 15,000 pounds, and 25 m. p. h. for over 15,000 pounds. These maximums were determined with consideration for the ability of pavements to withstand impacts, which increase with weight and speed.

The policy writers also said they believe accidents could be reduced by cutting the maximum legal width of vehicles from the present legal limit of 96 inches. A large portion of the rural side in Illinois is 18 feet wide. A truck eight feet wide with its right wheels a foot from the outer edge of the pavement is crowding the center line.

Other Proposals Heard.
Other recommendations heard by the legislators were: Compulsory inspection of vehicles, examinations for chauffeurs' licenses, proof of financial responsibility for public liability, and minimum working hours for drivers.

In the afternoon, the commission, which is sitting in the Morrison hotel this week, listened to proposals for safety regulations from operators of fire trucks. Those operating regular freight lines also favored regulations of their rates and of exclusive territorial privileges.

SHOPLIFTER HITS WOMAN PURSUER, BUT IS CAPTURED

Mrs. Helen Reichert, 23 years old, 6108 Ellis avenue, works in the Grant department store at 100 South State street and has an eagle eye for shoplifters. She was on the lookout yesterday when a young man approached the glove counter.

What she saw sent her scurrying into the aisle after him. In the scuffle he punched her in the eye and flung her through a swinging door, cutting her hand. Two other employees pounced on him and held him for police.

At the Central station the man gave his name as George Vissio, 31 years old, of the McCoy hotel, 949 Madison street. Six pairs of gloves, valued at $12, were found in his pocket, but Vissio said he didn't know how they got there.

ALVIN ADOPTS SHARP PRACTICE TO WIN HIS GIRL

This Is of Doubtful Value to His Suit.

Alvin Nagel, 3143 Kenilworth avenue, Berwyn, should have been in a happy mood Sunday evening. He was driving the light of his life, Miss Gertrude Silska, 17 years old, to visit the home of mutual friends.

But Mr. Nagel, who is 20, was dejected. His suit was not progressing well. In fact, Miss Silska, who lives at 2428 Home avenue, Berwyn, had indicated he was in the doghouse with the door shut.

In this frame of mind they arrived at their friend's home in Franklin avenue, near Linden avenue, in River Forest. Leaving Miss Silska in the car, Nagel walked around to the side door to see if any one was home.

A Cry in the Night.
Five minutes later Miss Silska heard a cry. Then Nagel dashed into view. He leaped into the car, and drove off at a wild clip. What, Miss Silska asked, was up?

"They got me," gasped her swain. "I've got to get help. They stabbed me in the side. It's bleeding badly."

True enough. At the Oak Park hospital physicians found a deep wound, three inches long, in Nagel's left side. Nagel told River Forest Policeman Joseph Welch and Leslie Watson:

"Two men grabbed me just at the door of the house. They stole my wallet with $23 in it. Then they said they were going to kidnap my girl. I didn't care if one of them did have a knife. I fought. I knocked one man out and beat up the other after he knifed me." He paused modestly.

A Hero Reaps Reward.
"My hero!" cried Miss Silska as she smoothed the ruffled hair of her young man, who stands 5 feet 3 inches. "You did it all for me. I am so proud. Darling!"

But the policemen kept questioning Nagel. The glare slowly returned to Miss Silska's eyes. She suddenly arose and stalked out of the hospital. Chief of Police Carl Soderlin explained why to Justice of the Peace Edward McCracken yesterday.

In Nagel's overcoat pocket the policemen found a razor blade and a bloody handkerchief. Then Nagel admitted that he slashed himself to win Miss Silska's sympathy and, he hoped, love. Justice McCracken, no ally of cupid, delivered the final blow. He fined Nagel $5 and $5 costs for disorderly conduct.

Husband Arrested at Party on His 20th Wedding Day

Police last night interrupted the celebration of the twentieth wedding anniversary of Carleton A. Kammann and his wife, Florence, in their home at 817 Hamilton street, Evanston, and arrested Kammann on a fugitive warrant for Des Moines, Ia., authorities.

Kammann, who is 42 years old, is wanted on two charges of obtaining money under false pretenses in connection with an advertising firm for which he worked in Des Moines. He said the charges were the result of a misunderstanding and waived extradition.

DETECTIVE CAPTAIN ORDERED ARRESTED ON BOMBING CHARGE

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 25.—(AP)—District Attorney Buron Fitts late today issued orders for the arrest of Acting Captain of Detectives Earle E. Kynette in connection with the bomb attempt on the life of Harry Raymond, private detective engaged by a politico-civic group to investigate alleged corruption in the Los Angeles municipal government.

Fitts' order was issued a few minutes after the prosecutor talked to Raymond, in a hospital with thirty wounds suffered when a bomb exploded in his automobile.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED</

HOLDING FIRMS ASK REDUCTION IN INTANGIBLES TAX

Threaten to Leave Chicago Before Submitting.

Representatives of utility and other holding companies with intangible assets appraised at more than $1 billion $350 million dollars informed Assessor John S. Clark yesterday that the companies will move out of Chicago before April unless they receive a substantial cut in their 1937 personal property assessments.

The companies are now assessed for a total of about $30,000,000, which would produce approximately $2,600,000 in taxes. Their 1938 assessments, largely on office furnishings, did not produce $400,000, Mr. Clark estimated. The increase was made on federal income tax information.

As an alternative to moving their headquarters out of town before April 1, the date on which they would be assessed for 1938, the companies' spokesmen offered to pay substantial sums in taxes, well below those based on present assessments but well above the 1936 total. No specific figures were discussed.

Holding Companies Represented.

The representatives of the companies were Edward Eagle Brown, president of the First National Bank; L. L. Porter, vice president of that bank; Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the board of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, who appeared jointly to speak for various holding companies in the old Insull utility empire, and lawyers for several other holding companies. The latter included C. W. Hardy, for A. C. Allen & Co., which is interested in several holding companies; George E. McGrath, for Standard Gas and Electric company, and several other Byllesby companies; Frank Dowd and Victor Milliken, for Curtis Lighting and Securities company and several other concerns, and W. H. Avery, for American Light and Traction company. All the companies are incorporated in other states, principally Delaware.

Standard Gas and Electric has the largest single 1937 assessment, $10,028,151, although the Insull group as a whole exceeds this. American Light and Traction has a $2,746,796 assessment.

Other Officials at Meeting.

Besides Mr. Clark and members of his staff, Emmett Whealan and Paul Drymowski, members of the board of tax appeals, and Assistant State's Attorney Marshall Kearney and William T. Crilly took part in the discussion. Mr. Clark took the matter under advisement, promising an answer before the board of appeals hears the company's complaints on Feb. 21. Any reductions he grants will have to take the form of a correction along with the appeals board.

In making the assessments, Mr. Clark said, the tax the companies would have to pay in other financial centers was taken into account.

The board of tax appeals ruled yesterday, on a complaint against his 1937 personal property assessment brought by Patrick J. O'Connor, 3233 Euclid avenue, Berwyn, that stocks and bonds held as security in a margin account are taxable against the owner of the account.

GANNA WALSKA'S MATE 'TOO BUSY' FOR HONEYMOON

CLYDACH, Glamorgan, Wales, Jan. 25.—(P)—Ganna Walska's new husband, Henry Grindell-Matthews, said today he was so busy working on a mysterious aerial torpedo invention he could not spare time for a honeymoon.

The inventor confirmed his marriage to the singer, which she had announced earlier in Paris, had taken place in London last week. Found in his workshop, a rural retreat in the mountains of South Wales, Grindell-Matthews refused to say when he expected to join his bride in France.

For Ganna Walska, who is 45 years old, this is the fifth marital venture. Her fourth ended in 1931, when she was divorced from Harold Fowler McCormick of Chicago. Grindell-Matthews, who is 37, is an English inventor noted for his devices in the field of wireless, including a wartime submarine detector and a post-war "death ray."

Pilots Bombing Plane to Safety with Only 1 Wheel

March Field, Cal., Jan. 25.—(P)—Lieut. J. L. Travis set his army bombing plane down here tonight in a perfect one-point landing. He had to because he had only one wheel. Capt. Charles L. Hall, in charge of a CAC camp in Nevada, saw the right landing gear drop off as Lieut. Travis led a squadron of nine planes into the air, homeward bound from Boulder City, Nev. He notified March field officers, who radioed the flyer of his predicament.

TWO AMERICANS HELD FOR YEARS IN SOVIET CAMP

Both Are Reported Ill with Scurvy.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.] RIGA, Latvia, Jan. 25.—Suffering from scurvy and dysentery, Arthur Hanley, a chemical engineer from California, and Edward Rose, a Boston, Mass., machinist, are serving indefinite prison sentences in a GPU (Russian secret police) concentration camp, Victor Konarski said today. He said the Americans are in a camp named Wytchera, northeast of Kotlas.

Konarski, former chief of the Leningrad trade port, escaped from Wytchera after serving four years and eight months of a five year sentence.

Reports 32,000 in Camp.

He reported that the camp contained 32,000 prisoners and that he met the Americans when he was working in the camp kitchen. Hanley, he said, was employed as a timber statistician, while Rose was working in the prison machine shop.

The Americans told him they had entered Russia in 1921 as volunteer workers. Rose said he was arrested in Leningrad in 1923, while Hanley was caught attempting to escape to Latvia across the Soviet Russian frontier at Sebez, Russia, in 1925. Both men were sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, and although they served the time their detention was prolonged by Moscow's order.

Three Other Yanks Held.

They told Konarski three other native born Americans also were imprisoned in other camps in the Wytchera district, but that they had not seen them for several years. Konarski explained that, although he needed only to serve an additional four months to complete his sentence, he had learned that the GPU rarely permitted prisoners to return home. Instead, they are kept in camps until they succumb to hard work, poor food and illness. Together with four other men he escaped, he said, and reached Murnansk, where he stowed away on a steamer.

WRIGHT'S DEATH CONFESSION TOLD AS STATE RESTS

Defense Needs a Week to Present 20 Witnesses.

bench kissing that man and he her. The next thing, I remember, I ran to the telephone and called police."

Q.—Did you get your gun when you first awakened? A.—No, I walked into the room and spoke to them. The statement continued with an explanation of Wright's dash from his house to a nearby corner where he awaited the arrival of police. He said he did not look at the two after the shooting.

Q.—Do you remember how many times you shot? A.—No, I just kept pulling the trigger.

Q.—Do you remember whether either of them made any outcry? A.—No, all I could see was that they were in each other's embrace.

Tells of Other Suspicions.

Q.—Did you ever suspect that your wife and Kimmel were intimate? A.—No, not she and Kimmel. But I had suspected her on many occasions with others, many times. Little things, little remarks, absences from home and that sort of thing.

Q.—What caused you to suspect that your wife had been untrue to you? A.—I don't know how to say it. Over a period of time—remarks; she goaded me. Things she did from time to time; never was able to prove anything or get definite reasons. She did tell me definitely that she had other men, then would tell me later that she made them up just to make me jealous. She had done that numerous times.

Q.—Have these actions of your wife and statements caused you to be jealous of her? A.—Jealous, to the point of disgust. We had been on the verge of separation many times. She left me at one time, took the baby. I found them at San Bernardino. We were at dinner one time and she drank heavily. Got rather nasty sometimes. Goaded me. This is not defense. I shouldn't say these things about her. She is gone. She tried hard to be a good wife—let me say that instead.

Tells Different Story.

Testimony presented today varied at times from the statement made by Wright and indicated his confession to police was not the whole story of events preceding the shooting. Arthur La Vove, publicity director for the Union Air terminal, was called by the state to tell of a conversation he had with Wright in Glendale jail a few hours after the shooting. La Vove said Wright told him a different version of what he saw when he shot his wife and Kimmel. La Vove said Wright modified the story to the police for the sake of his baby daughter, Helen.

The defendant appeared to be depressed earlier when detailed testimony was given about the location of the bullet wounds in his victims. He buried his face in his hands as prosecution witnesses told of the wounds in his wife's body and her death.

Opposing attorneys clashed over testimony that sought to show whether Mrs. Wright's mouth was open in a gasp or laugh when a bullet passed through her head.

2 ITALIAN PLANES REACH RIO AFTER ATLANTIC FLIGHT

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 25.—(P)—Two Italian planes, with Bruno Mussolini at the controls of one, landed in Rio de Janeiro today, ending a nonstop flight of 3,800 miles across the South Atlantic from Dakar, French West Africa. The hop was the second part of a 6,000 mile experimental and propaganda flight from Rome.

Premier Mussolini's son and Col. Attilio Biseo, flight commander, brought their trimotored planes down at Campo dos Afonsos airport at 3:59 p. m. central standard time, 13 hours and 56 minutes after taking off from Rome. Their total flying time from Rome was 24 hours and 46 minutes.

A third plane, piloted by Maj. Nino Mascarelli, was forced to stop at Natal, Brazil, with a disabled propeller. Mascarelli was expected in Rio de Janeiro later.

LONG COURTSHIP FOUND TO BRING HAPPY MARRIAGE

U. of C. Makes Survey of 526 Couples.

Long courtships lead to successful marriages. The most successful marriages are preceded by a five year period of acquaintance, a three year courtship, and an engagement of at least twenty-four months.

Ernest B. Burgess, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, found these statements to be true in a study of 526 couples in the Chicago area, each of whom had been married not less than one year nor more than six.

Another factor which leads to success in marriage, Dr. Burgess said yesterday in a lecture, is regular attendance at Sunday school, provided such attendance is between the ages of 19 and 25.

Defines Successful Marriage.

Dr. Burgess' definition of a successful marriage is one in which separation or divorce has never been contemplated. The unsuccessful marriage is one in which there is divorce, separation without divorce, or the contemplation, discussion, or threat of divorce at one time or another.

"Happiness, too, is an obvious criterion," he said, "as it is the common sense standard universally applied to marriages in the United States."

When the 526 couples were asked to grade their happiness, 55.4 per cent said they were very happy, 24.7 per cent said they were happy, 11.9 per cent said they were content but not ecstatic, 5.6 per cent said they

Wants Wife to Pay

Capt. A. S. Cunningham-Reid and his wife, the former Ruth Ashley, from whom he is separated.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.] LONDON, Jan. 25.—Capt. A. S. Cunningham-Reid, a member of parliament and prominent in society, sued today for a share in the $350,000 income of his wife from whom he is separated. She has brought a counter suit for the return of money spent by her husband, who said it was a gift.

Capt. Cunningham-Reid married Ruth Ashley, then 20 years old, and Great Britain's wealthiest heiress, in 1927 in a brilliant society wedding. She is the younger daughter of Baron Mount Temple and a sister of Lady Louis Mountbatten. She was not allowed to settle any of her fortune on the captain under terms of her grandfather's $300,000 will, so she made a contract giving him part of the income. Now she says the contract was revocable at her will. They were separated in December, 1936, when she left their home and refused to return.

were unhappy and 2.4 per cent said they were very unhappy.

Friends Change the Figures.

Friends of each couple, asked to give their rating of the couple's hap-iness, changed the ratio somewhat. The friends' conceptions are: Very happy, 28 per cent; happy, 26 per cent; average, 14 per cent; unhappy, 22 per cent; very unhappy, 10 per cent.

Marriage is more successful, Dr. Burgess found, if the husband has regular employment. If the wife has outside interests or employment, that, too, makes for success. Dr. Burgess noted an extremely high marital adjustment in this respect. Couples coming from large families will be more happily married, Dr. Burgess predicted, than those who had no brothers or sisters. Identity of racial, religious, social, and economic background also tends toward success.

Golden Eagle with 7 Foot Wing Spread Is Shot Down

Monmouth, Ill., Jan. 25.—[Special.]—After stealing little pigs in Warren county for the last year, a large golden eagle was killed today by Arthur Frye in a timber northwest of Monmouth. Mr. Frye was on his way to chop wood, and had taken his gun with him. He sighted the bird in a tree and brought it down with one shot. With powerful claws and a wingspread of 7 feet, the bird had been able to carry off shoats weighing more than twenty-five pounds.

COLD WAVE DUE TO LASH CHICAGO TILL TOMORROW

Snow Blocks Many Roads in Central West.

Fierce winds lashed Chicago last night as a cold wave that is over-spreading all the territory west of the Rocky mountains sent the mercury tumbling.

Forecaster J. R. Lloyd said the temperature in Chicago probably would not rise above 8 degrees today and that tonight it may fall near zero. Tomorrow he expects to be some warmer. Snow in the Chicago district, he said, would be confined to flurries, although much of northern Illinois and northern Indiana has had heavy snow.

Stay Off Roads, Autolists Advised.
The Chicago Motor club urged motorists to travel in case of necessity only. Many roads in Michigan, Wisconsin, and Iowa were reported blocked, and those that were open were dangerous because of ice. In northern Michigan and in Wisconsin motorists and bus passengers were marooned in farm houses. Snow had drifted to second story windows in some parts of the northern peninsula of Michigan.

Airplane service, however, was interrupted at the Chicago airport, and trains were operating as usual.

PAIR ABOARD PLANE IN STORM TELL HOW THEY EXPECTED TO DIE

New York, Jan. 25.—(Special.)—Two passengers aboard an airliner that cruised most of last night looking for a place to land told today how they had written farewell notes to their wives and prepared to die.

The plane, in command of Fred Jones of the Eastern Airlines, left Newark, N. J., at 8:32 p. m. for Washington and thirty minutes later Jones knew he could not get through the thick weather. He asked for instructions and found landing impossible at all ports south of Newark and west to Cleveland. Once he reported he was going to land at Newark, but finally after six and a half hours he put the big ship down on a flooded field at Hartford, Conn., 100 miles in the opposite direction, with empty gasoline tanks.

C. C. Bane, a Washington shoe merchant, and Percy King, an employee of the government, were the only passengers. The passengers praised the plane crew for coolness and Bane, who was making his first flight, said it was a night of hell.

except in scattered sections of the northwest. The cold wave brought more suffering to families driven from their homes by the flood at Rockford and in other parts of northern Illinois. But the cold ended the danger that the floods would reach much greater proportions, since it froze hard the water soaked ground.

Families Return to Homes.

Aided by the Red Cross, families were already moving back into their homes in the Rock river lowlands around Rockford. The water had receded entirely from the southeastern part of the city, where thirty square blocks were inundated Monday.

Downstream where Rock river joins the Mississippi, in the Tri-city district of Rock Island, Moline and Davenport, United States engineers urged residents of the lands flooded last year to leave their homes by Friday, when the crest is expected.

At Belvidere, the flood waters of the Kishwaukee river were receding. They had forced a score of families from their homes and compelled the National Sewing Machine company, employing 800 workers, to close for several days.

Ice Gorge Imperils Homes.

Residents of Fox Lake Vista, adjoining Fox Lake, asked state authorities last night to dynamite an ice gorge that is keeping the waters of flooded Nippersink creek from pouring into Pistakee lake. Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Meisner and their son, 6 months ago, and Mrs. Albert Smellitz and her granddaughter, 3 years old, were rescued by Fox Lake firemen early today from their water surrounded homes. Three other families were forced to flee from their homes.

Ralph Nintell, believed to live in Joliet, was given up for drowned after the tow boat on which he worked struck a bridge and went down in the raging Illinois river at La Salle. Three others were rescued from bits of wreckage.

In New York City the temperature reached 56 degrees to set a new high record for the date.

AURORA BOREALIS GLOWS IN WIDEST AREA SINCE 1709

Many Lands See Northern Lights for First Time.

New York, Jan. 25.—(Special.)—Radio and telegraphic communication was disrupted and persons in many parts of the world were awed tonight as the aurora borealis (northern lights) flamed brilliantly farther south than the phenomenon ever has been seen by this generation.

Appearance of the spectacle as far south as Washington, D. C., and San Diego, Cal., in this country, and in Portugal and lower Austria in Europe, was attributed by scientists to the unprecedented intensity of a magnetic storm caused by sun spot activity.

Scientists at the University of Grenoble in France said a similar aurora borealis had not been seen in western Europe since 1709.

The electrical disturbance gave telegraph companies trouble in sending messages, and caused radio fade-outs. Air lines reported difficulty in keeping radio contact in the Rocky mountain area.

Rangers Think They See Fires.

Radio fade-outs also occurred at the end of last week when the aurora was flashing in the northern sky. The gorgeous neon light was seen early Saturday morning as far south as San Diego, causing forest rangers and firemen, unfamiliar with the sight, to mistake the red glow for distant fires.

Seen in Bermuda only on rare occasions, the brilliant exhibition, visible in Hamilton, caused many to believe a ship was afire at sea.

The northern lights caused great wonderment in the British Isles, where they were seen in many places for the first time.

Thousands of Britons ran into the streets to gaze in awe at the spectacle. Others climbed rooftops to watch the ruddy light which led many to think their city was ablaze. The Windsor fire department was called out in the belief Windsor castle was afire.

Superstitions Are Aroused.

The lights were seen from end to end of the British Isles. It was the most brilliant display of an aurora borealis seen there in fifty years. From an airplane the display looked like a shimmering curtain of fire. Londoners' last view of an aurora borealis was one night during a Zeppelin raid, when it added terror to the dropping bombs. Superstitious folk of the Scottish lowlands shook their heads and declared the unearthly flashings spelled an ill omen for Scotland.

The lights were seen clearly in Italy, Spain, and even Gibraltar. Portuguese villagers rushed in fright from their homes, fearing the end of the world.

A blood red beam of light in the northern sky spread anxiety in numerous Swiss Alpine villages.

IDENTIFY SLAIN BANDIT AS SON OF DEAD POLICEMAN

Slain early yesterday by policemen as he was robbing his fifth taxi driver, a bandit was identified later as the black sheep son of a deceased city policeman.

The slain man was Philip Curran, 31 years old. For nine years he has been absent from his home at 1225 West 71st street, where his father, Policeman John P. Curran, lived until his death a few years ago.

Early yesterday Curran robbed Perry Smith, 17, North Lotus avenue, a taxi driver, of $10 at 32d street and Ellis avenue. His next taxi victims were Oscar Johnson, 1949 Balmoral avenue, $5; Fred Little, 539 West 59th place, $9.50 and Richard Mack, 910 Willow street, $18.

Later, between 30th and 31st streets, policemen saw a taxi turn into an alley from State street. They followed. Robert O'Shaughnessy, 6734 South Honore street, the driver, jumped from the moving cab. Before Curran could use his revolver three policemen opened fire.

U. S. RENEWS DEMAND THAT RUSSIA ALLOW VISIT TO MRS. RUBENS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—(P)—A second and more emphatic demand that an American diplomat be permitted to interview Mrs. Ruth Marie Rubens in a Soviet jail sped by cable from Washington to Moscow today.

Nettled by the recent refusal of the Russians to allow a state department representative to see the New York woman held on "suspicion of spying," Secretary of State Cordell Hull said the refusal was contrary to a pledge given by the Soviets.

"The government of the United States," Hull's communication said, "continues to expect that an officer of our embassy at Moscow will be permitted without delay to interview the person whom the Soviet authorities refer to as Mrs. Robinson."

Mrs. Rubens, according to reports from Russia, entered that country under a passport bearing the name "Mrs. Ruth Norma Robinson."

CATHARTICS GOT YOU DOWN?

If you have common constipation, due to lack of bulk in the diet, harsh purgatives don't get at the cause of the trouble. Often they leave you weakened. It is better to eat a natural laxative food. Try regular breakfasts of Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains vitamin B₁—the intestinal tract's great tonic. And All-Bran provides "bulk." It absorbs moisture, softens like a sponge, and forms a mass that aids elimination. Eat this crunchy cereal every day, drink plenty of water and join the "regulars." Made by Kellogg at Battle Creek.

CHINESE ASSAULT DRIVES JAPANESE FROM RIVER TOWN

Near Nanking.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
SHANGHAI, Jan. 26. (Wednesday).—Chinese sources reported today that their troops had regained control of the important town of Hohsien in the Nanking-Wuhu area after an extensive battle with the Japanese.

The Chinese and Japanese fought for hours at close range and Japanese river gunboats shelled Chinese positions near Hohsien.

Chinese reported their own casualties as 400 killed and wounded, but made no estimate of the Japanese losses. The town of Hohsien is thirty-five miles up the Yangtze river from Nanking and sheltered survivors of the Japanese bombing of the United States gunboat Panay on Dec. 12.

Cavalry Surrounds Taining.

In southern Shantung province (North China), the Chinese said their cavalry had surrounded the Japanese garrison at Taining, railway town on the Grand canal. Long and bitter fighting around Taining has stalled the Japanese southward drive toward Suchow, the vital railway junction of the Tientsin-Pukow (Nanking) and Lunghai railways.

The Japanese's northward drive from Nanking was said to have reached Pengpu, on the Hwai river about 100 miles directly south of Suchow in Kiangsu province. Chinese declared their forces were driving back the Japanese at Pengpu.

Near Canton, the metropolis of South China, and Hongkong, the British crown colony, Japanese warships fought a one hour duel with Chinese shore batteries on Namtao peninsula. Namtao guards the bay entrance to Canton river and is four miles north-west of Hongkong.

Bombs Hit Foreign Residences.

Eight Japanese planes bombed the railway and airfield directly east of Canton. The railway extends from Canton to Kowloon, which is across the strait opposite Hongkong. The bombs damaged several foreign residences near Canton.

Hsu Shih-ying, Chinese ambassador who left Tokyo when Japan withdrew recognition of the Chinese Nationalist government, arrived on the Empress of Asia at Shanghai, but did not land because the city is under Japanese domination. Hsu will go to Hongkong and fly to Hankow, the temporary capital in the interior.

Abroad ship Hsu said: "I am convinced that the invasion by foreign forces can only make China more determined to maintain its integrity... more united to fight for the right."

Chinese Officers Punished.

The inspector general of military law in Hankow in an official statement admitted that forty-two high army officers already have been tried and either executed, imprisoned, or demoted for a list of offenses, including cowardice, incompetence, abandoning territory, impeding military operations, disobeying orders, deserting posts, trafficking with the enemy, deserting under fire, and ordering panic retreats.

The forty-two officers included army corps commanders, lieutenant generals, major generals, brigadiers, and high staff officers, and the list did not mention any ranks between noncoms and colonels.

Fainting Bums
GO ON THEIR WAY;
CITY'S OUT $61.68

At a total cost of $61.68 the city succeeded yesterday in persuading Richard Kammiller and Clarence Walker to stop fainting on doorsteps. Well, on Chicago doorsteps, anyway.

They were arrested ten days ago when housewives complained that the men were begging who fainted on doorsteps, or pretended to, so that they'd get sympathy and a dime.

The beggars, who said they were from Indiana, had the time of six policemen, one sergeant, one lieutenant, one lockup keeper, one assistant city attorney, two clerks, and one judge charged against them when they came into Judge Cecil Smith's court yesterday. His time and that of a bailiff and two more clerks set the bill to $61.68. Judge Smith fined them $20 each and suspended the fine on condition that they leave town. They took him up.

Bomb Defense

[Associated Press Wirephoto: From Paramount News.]

Dotted line marks temporary superstructure erected on buildings in Canton, China, to catch bombs and cause them to explode before they strike the buildings.

Chinese sources reported today (1) their infantry had recaptured Hohsien, (2) Japanese forces were repulsed at Pengpu, and (3) Chinese cavalry had surrounded the Japanese garrison at Taining.

League to Bury SANCTIONS, BUT,
KEEP 'EM ALIVE

Paris, London to Barter with Little States.

GENEVA, Jan. 25.—(AP)—An unofficial understanding giving league of nations members freedom from applying sanctions (penalties) against aggressors emerged tonight on the eve of the league council's 100th session.

The agreement was considered as a possible compromise between Great Britain and France and the smaller nations which oppose sanctions.

Under such a compromise the "punitive" Article XVI—or sanctions article—would remain in the league covenant. The fate of the article in the face of discontent over sanctions is one of the issues before the statesmen at Geneva.

League spokesmen said the Anglo-French scheme was to inform the anti-sanction nations in private talks they had freedom to act as they pleased, provided the text of the article was untouched.

Litvinov Is Willing.

Diplomatic quarters said that would leave the article "ready for resurrection" if it should be needed. Maxim Litvinov, Russian foreign commissar, was said to be prepared to follow such a lead.

In Paris, where Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, conferred with Yvon Delbos, French foreign minister, and Premier Camille Chautemps, it was stated France and Britain agreed to fight attempts to weaken the league pact.

Permanent officials of the league predicted the session which begins tomorrow will be short, with little done in the open meeting but much accomplished in secret sessions and in Geneva hotels.

Four Items on Agenda.

Four main questions are on the league's agenda. They are:

1. China's appeal to the league in its undeclared war with Japan.

2. A petition by the general council of the Jewish congress asking the league council to deal with the question of rights of Rumanian Jews under the minorities treaty. Anti-Jewish measures have been taken recently in Rumania under the government of Premier Octavian Goga.

3. Reports of economic and financial committees.

4. The Turkish government's reservation and observations on plans for the first election in the Sanjak (state) of Alexandretta under a settlement between France and Turkey engineered by the league last year.

FILIPINOS UPSET; FEAR M'NUTT'S REPORT ON THEM

Envoy to Tell Roosevelt
Personally of Findings.

BY VICENTE ALBANO PACIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
MANILA, P. I., Jan. 25.—Paul V. McNutt, United States high commissioner to the Philippines, who arrived here a stranger even to most American residents, will leave Feb. 2 for Washington, D. C., as an envoy. His statement announcing his departure by Clipper plane has created suspense in high places in politics, business, and diplomacy.

The high commissioner said he will report to President Roosevelt on the Philippines orally. He has just returned from a visit to Davao, the Japanese settled province in the Philippines, and Shanghai, where he conferred with American officials.

Politicians Are Panicky.

Political circles are panicky because an oral report is likely to be mainly off the record, may embrace anything, and the proper proddings and promptings from the President may draw information which even the most indiscreet public official would not put in print above his signature.

Business is in suspense for the reason that the McNutt report may lead to a definite policy which may be favorable or unfavorable to investment.

The Philippine stock market is especially jittery. Since the crash early last year, prices invariably have rallied with rumors of remote Philippine independence, dropped with reports that President Quezon's plan for freedom in 1938 or 1939 is winning support.

Diplomacy comes in because of the Japanese angle of the Philippine situation. It is generally understood that the growing Japanese encroachments in Davao are critically viewed in Washington.

McNutt Voices Criticism.

The high commissioner is known to possess definite opinions on the Philippine commonwealth as an experiment in democracy, and on at least two occasions came near to letting the world know them.

Last July 4 he implied in a speech that the commonwealth was worshipping the form but disowning the substance of democracy. Subsequently, at a press conference, he said, but later disavowed having said it, that he had proofs that Philippine democracy was realistic rather than realistic and that he would reveal them at the right time.

There have been rumors that President Quezon and McNutt are not on the best of terms, but there has been no open conflict. In fact, Quezon has publicly expressed his praise of McNutt.

But while the high commissioner has stopped dropping broad hints on his opinions, he has not commended any basic phase of the commonwealth. Of the series of laws infringing on the freedom of speech and press, or of the various official pronouncements, including that of the head of the national police, who urges further curtailment of this freedom and advocates what he calls democratic dictatorship for the Philippines, McNutt has not uttered a word.

That is why, when he turns up at the White House and talks turkey, he may have new things to say and lots of them! And would not 15,000,000 Filipinos like to know what they are?

U. S. TO INCREASE
AIR FORCE WITH
ARMY AND NAVY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—(Special).—President Roosevelt this afternoon announced he will send a special message to congress Thursday or Friday calling for an expansion of the army, navy, and air strength of the country over and above the billion dollar program he presented in his annual budget message three weeks ago.

Details of the program were closely guarded, but it was said that the message will embrace the army and air forces as well as the navy. It had been expected that the message would be confined to the navy.

When he delivered his budget message Mr. Roosevelt said he would have a supplemental message recommending construction of additional naval vessels. The supplemental message grew into a special message on national defense at a conference of congressional leaders.

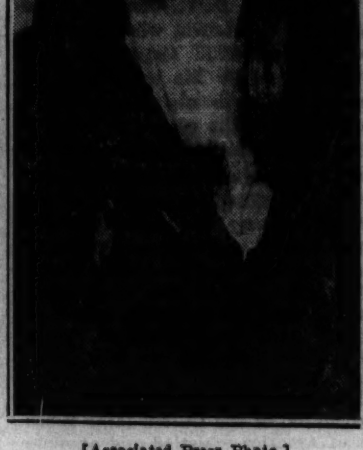

At his press conference Mr. Roosevelt made it clear that army as well as navy needs will be included in his message. The congressional leaders revealed that the air strength also is to be increased.

Australia Hails
150TH BIRTHDAY;
U. S. GUNS SALUTE

Recall Settling of Land
by Convicts.

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 25.—(AP)—The guns of United States cruisers and other foreign warships today thundered salutes in a prelude to the opening tomorrow of celebrations of Australia's 150th birthday.

The United States cruisers Louisville, Memphis, Trenton, and Milwaukee steamed between the great sandstone Sydney heads with warships of France, Italy, and the Netherlands. Eighteen royal air force planes escorted them.

Australia will commemorate its 150 years as a white settlement with celebrations extending over three months. Gay crowds swirled in the streets tonight. Public buildings were flooded with light and the Sydney harbor bridge was illuminated.

Settled by 800 Convicts.

A water and shore pageant tomorrow will depict the landing on Jan. 26, 1788, of Capt. Arthur Phillip with soldiers and 800 British convict settlers.

The American revolution had prevented the deportation of the convicts—many of whom were political offenders or children sentenced for slight offenses—across the Atlantic and they were sent instead to colonize the land "down under."

Despite protests, make-believe convicts will take part in tomorrow's pageant in the interests of historical accuracy.

Although Capt. James Cook landed in April, 1770, at Botany Bay, it was not until Capt. Phillip arrived that a white settlement was established.

Divide Fetes Into 3 Parts.

Australia's metropolis and largest port grew from that early penal settlement. The practice of sending convicts from England was abandoned in 1840.

The sesquicentennial celebrations will be divided into three periods—historical, from tomorrow to Feb. 12; British empire games and other sports events, Feb. 14-April 1, and royal show and trade fairs, April 2-25.

Besides the pageant tomorrow there will be the anniversary regatta, held annually in Sydney for more than a century. Reviews of naval, military and air force units and band contests will follow.

In the second period there will be big game fishing championships and power boat competitions as well as the empire games. The final period, which concludes on "Anzac day," will be marked by a tattoo and air force pageant as well as the royal show and fairs.

Labor Urges British Premier to Back Boycotts of Japan

LONDON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain received a labor deputation today which urged British trade, financial, and munitions boycotts of Japan. A brief communique said Chamberlain discussed the far eastern situation in detail but made no assurances.

REBEL BOMBERS RAID BARCELONA TWICE; KILL 150

in Three Minutes.

BARCELONA, Spain, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Rebel bombers in two heavy raids on Barcelona were estimated tonight to have killed about 150 persons and wounded almost twice as many.

A Madrid communique said the toll was 41 dead and 77 wounded. Four persons were killed in Madrid by rebel artillery shelling.

The first of the day's attacks came in the early morning when forty bombs, most of them small, were dumped on this new capital of Spain within three minutes. Six of the missiles struck within a city block, each killing from one to six sleeping persons. The fall in the central section was damaged and three Fascist prisoners killed.

The warplanes fled toward the Mediterranean, but five raiders came back in the afternoon and subjected the Pueblo Nuevo and San Andres suburbs to a heavy bombardment.

Rebel raiders last week killed an estimated 100 persons and wounded more than 200 in bombing attacks on Barcelona.

Loyalists Bomb Valladolid.

Four persons lost their lives and 14 were wounded during a rebel air attack on Badalona, 12 miles north of Barcelona.

Fifteen government bombers dropped seven and one-half tons of bombs on Valladolid, rebel stronghold 100 miles northwest of Madrid. Pilots reported a large explosion and huge columns of thick black smoke when bombs burst around the city's railroad station and workshops. The number of casualties was not reported.

In Teruel the loyalist infantry took the initiative this morning in an attack in the Sintra sector, which netted them hill 1,071, according to tonight's communique. Despite the rebel planes' heavy bombing all day the captured positions were held.

In the afternoon fifty government chasers took the air to drive away rebel bombers and a combat occurred in which two German "Smith" chasers were reported shot down.

Reveal Attacks on British Ship.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—The admiralty today received a report that the 2,868 ton British steamer Lake Geneva had been attacked by an unidentified submarine in the western Mediterranean ten days ago. A torpedo fired from a distance of about 300 yards passed under the ship.

It was disclosed today that extraordinary military precautions were being taken on both sides of the Spanish-Portuguese frontier to forestall suspected plans for communist outbreaks in both countries before the end of the month.

THE O'LAUGHLINS
REMAIN AT ODDS

The Houghs and O'Laughlins of West 47th place aren't through with their battling yet. At least that was the tenor of the hearing yesterday before Judge Joseph B. Hermes in the Stockyards court.

Last Nov. 23 James Hough, 12 years old, of 735 West 47th place, had a fist fight with Donald O'Laughlin, 14, from across the street. Young O'Laughlin was winning when Hough's father, Dennis, interrupted and shoved O'Laughlin away.

Came running Patrick O'Laughlin, armed with a knife, to protect his son. Pater Hough told him to fight like a man, but when Hough got home he found he had been stabbed.

Yesterday the elder O'Laughlin was kept in a cell for two hours until he paid Hough's $6 doctor bill. Then Mrs. O'Laughlin charged Hough with disorderly conduct for striking her son. He was released.

NAZIS DISSOLVE CATHOLIC YOUTH CLUBS IN BAVARIA

Accused of Plotting Against State.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
BERLIN, Jan. 26.—(Wednesday).—All Catholic youth organizations have been dissolved and forbidden in Bavaria, having been charged with agitating against the state, the newspaper Lokalanzeiger said today.

The Young Men's Catholic association, clubs of Catholic young girls, and the Association of the New Germany were affected by the ban. Bavaria is one of the strongholds of the Catholic church in Germany.

"It has been established," authorities were quoted as saying, "that members of Catholic youth organizations were training systematically to spread political news and that they were used for the manufacture of illegal, destructive propaganda. They were being trained also for active work against the state."

Nazis to Put on Tax Squeeze.

Nazi authorities also planned to use real estate taxes to bring pressure against Catholics and other religious groups. Starting April 1, many religious bodies and properties, which formerly were exempt from real estate taxes, will be compelled to pay taxes for the first time in their existence.

The determination of the Nazis to control the youth of the country was illustrated also in Berlin recently. Nationalist youth groups, which were dissolved in 1933 and 1934, had assembled to hear Russian songs which the nationalist organizations had adopted as their own in the days of the German republic. The youths turned out ostentatiously in skilling outfits to distinguish themselves from Hitler Youth.

Schooled by Police.

At the end of the concert groups of sixty and eighty youths were taken to police headquarters, where they were cross-examined. They were released at dawn with a severe warning not to attempt to reorganize the nationalist youth associations.

It was rumored today that German Catholics will not be allowed to go to Budapest for the Eucharistic congress to be held there in May. The rumor was not confirmed in official Nazi or Catholic quarters.

CHARACTER AND TRIMMINGS

By CALEB

IF you will look at a map, you will see, among several possible routes to Milwaukee, 41 and 42.

One is straight. The other is devious. Route 41 coming south hits out of Milwaukee and continues almost on a dead line half the journey. Then it angles quite directly to its objective.

Highway 42 defers to towns, industries, buildings, parcels of property, railroad tracks, trees. It winds its way in and out and around.

Number 41 gets purposefully down to business and goes as directly as it can to its objective. Yet both routes have in common most of the things to be seen between here and Milwaukee—cows patiently feeding or waiting to be milked, chickens running for dear life from behemoths of steel, fine farms and barns and silos, and a winter landscape.

These "trimmings" along the highways are simply proof that it is not the appearances surrounding a thing which give it its character, but the fundamental, underlying core to which the appearances attach themselves.

A woman from a distant city told us that a store in her town deliberately set out a year or so ago to become a second Marshall Field's. "It aped your store in every way it could," she said. "And to all outward appearances I must confess they did somehow capture a little the atmosphere of your store."

"But it soon became apparent, whenever any of us got right down to their fundamental methods of dealing with customers, that their aims were quite different from yours."

Stores, like highways, possess a certain character or fundamental nature. Superficial surroundings may give one a resemblance to another. But fundamentally the way each strikes out for its objective may make them very different—and the public sooner or later notes well the difference.

CUT PRICES, NOT PAY, ROOSEVELT TELLS INDUSTRY

Hints Resumption of U.S. Spending Spree.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today served notice on industry that prices must be reduced, but that if wages also are reduced he will invoke the power of the government to increase purchasing power.

"Industries reduce wages this winter and spring," he said at his press conference, "they will be deliberately encouraging the withholding of buying—they will be fostering a downward spiral and they will make it necessary for their government to consider other means of creating purchasing power."

Mr. Roosevelt declined to enlarge upon the means of increasing purchasing power. Presumably he has in mind a vast new spending program to prime anew the business pump, the flow from which has fallen off since the large scale expenditures of the government on public works and relief were cut down and the veterans' bonus money spent.

Congressional elections in mind. For a fortnight or more there have been intimations that the administration would resort to no distant date to pump priming expenditure of billions of dollars in order to arrest the new depression before the congressional elections next fall.

Continuation of the depression until election time would be politically disastrous to the Democrats. To the politically minded, therefore, the President's utterance today bears all the earmarks of a build-up for a new spending program.

Mr. Roosevelt also announced he will hold his conference with little business the first part of next week. He said that about 500 small business men had written him that they would like to attend such a conference.

Because he could not receive so large a number, it has been arranged, he said, to have them meet with Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper and Assistant Secretary Ernest G. Draper next Monday. Then, after organizing and canvassing their views on the business recession problem, they will choose about a dozen of their number to confer with the President.

President Has Two Purposes.

In his press conference statement the President sought to accomplish two things: to create the public impression that if the present recession continues it will be the fault of employers and to prepare the public mind for a return to the emergency measures resorted to from the start of his administration to increase and maintain a buying power by consumers that would stimulate business to prosperity volume.

That the move was premeditated by the President and the press conference used merely as a sounding board for the pronouncement became evident as soon as the correspondents gathered about the executive desk. Mr. Roosevelt, who generally opens his press conferences with the remark that he doesn't know of any news, said on this occasion that he had a lot of news. He said he had been apprised of a question that would be asked and so he had prepared himself with a reply thereto. This, he said, was the question:

"Do you agree with Mr. Fairless that steel prices can't be reduced without cutting wages?"

Reads Answer to Reporters.

Thereupon the President began to read his answer and the reporters started feverishly taking notes. Mr. Roosevelt paused and said that he would have Secretary Stephen Early type copies of his answer and distribute them after the conference, so that it would be unnecessary to take notes.

When the reporters trooped from the room at the close of the conference, copies of the statement, mimeographed before the conference, were handed to them.

"I'm afraid," read the President, "it won't help for me to answer that question again."

"I have said so frequently—and I do not know how to say more clearly and unequivocally than I have already said—that I am opposed to wage reductions."

"I am opposed to wage reductions because the markets of American industry depend on the purchasing power of our working population. And if we want to restore prosperity we must increase, not decrease, that purchasing power."

Special Situations Conceded.

"There may be a special hourly wage situation in some building trades in some localities which so far as the total yearly earnings are concerned may call for different treatment, but even there our primary purpose is to increase and not decrease the total of the annual pay of the workers."

"Now as to prices. A mass production industry depends on volume for profits. No mass production industry can expect to

REED IS CONFIRMED TO SUPREME COURT WITHOUT OBJECTION

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—[AP.]—Solicitor General Stanley Reed, chief defender of Roosevelt legislation before the Supreme court, won unanimous senate confirmation today for a seat on the tribunal. The Kentuckian, who is 53 years old, is expected to assume his new duties next Monday. It will be necessary for him to resign his present position and to take oaths as justice.

So quickly was the nomination approved that few persons in the galleries knew what had occurred. As soon as the clerk read the name of Reed, Vice President Garner sang out: "Without objection—"

By that Garner meant that, in the absence of any protest, the nomination was confirmed.

Reed was appointed to succeed Justice George Sutherland of Utah, who retired Jan. 18 at the age of 75.

make a profit when volume is small. The steel industry cannot make a profit at 30 per cent capacity but it can at 50 per cent capacity or 55 per cent of capacity. The only way to get volume up is to produce goods for a price the public will pay. A mass production industry in its own interest should ask for its products what the people can afford to pay.

Cites Industry's Responsibility.

"But that does not mean that such price reductions can come out of wages. Those who believe in the profit system must recognize that those who get the profits when business is good must bear the losses when business temporarily is slack. Those who get the profits when industry gets the volume are the ones to bear the risk of such price reductions as may be necessary to stimulate and restore volume."

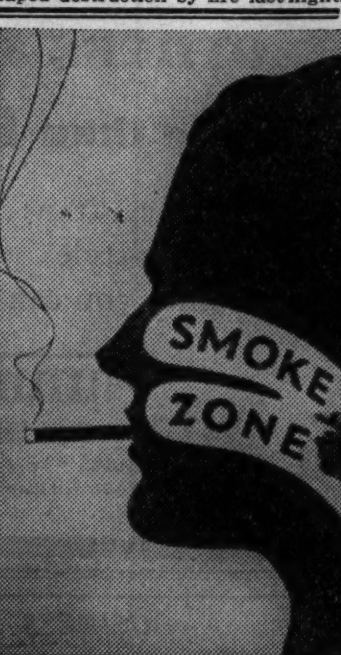

"Those in charge of a well managed and solvent industry should no more consider casting the burden of a temporary business recession upon their workers than upon their bondholders. To cast such burden on its workers is not only moral bankruptcy, but the bankruptcy of sound business judgment."

Industrialists kill the goose which lays the golden egg when they keep prices up at the expense of employment and purchasing power. Industrialists kill the goose which lays the golden egg when they cut wages and thereby reduce purchasing power. Either policy is self-defeating and suicidal."

LEWIS PROPOSES THAT U.S. SPEND 6 BILLIONS MORE

Would Tap Security Fund for Most of Cash.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—[Special.]—John L. Lewis, whose Committee for Industrial Organization is crumbling under his leadership, undertook today to advise the government on how the country should be run. His theme was the spending of more money; that six billion dollars be appropriated at once. He suggested tapping the social security reserve fund to get most of this.

At the same time the beetle browed labor man chided the government for the business recession which he termed a sad commentary on the intelligence of our leaders in industry and statecraft.

Nineteen hundred delegates to a convention of the United Mine Workers of America whistled and applauded the words of their leader and dutifully booed when he mentioned a subject or person not favored by the C. I. O.

Want Wages Kept High.

They cheered loudly Lewis' warning to the government and industry to keep the wage scale up. He declared price and wage cutting never had and never would improve business.

Lewis said certain economists and political leaders had suggested a reduction of prices and wages with the argument that lower production costs would mean more consumption.

"The answer to that is that it never has and it never will," the C. I. O. chief roared. "We tried that under President Hoover."

The miners boomed.

Wants Housing Program.

The first medicine the labor leader would concoct for economic ills is an immediate appropriation of six billion dollars. Five billion, to be taken from the social security fund, would be spent on a gigantic low cost housing program.

Lewis figured the other billion would be needed for this winter's relief needs. He expressed the belief

ARMY AND NAVAL ACADEMIES GET YOUNGER CHIEFS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—[AP.]—President Roosevelt said today the army and navy had adopted, at his suggestion, a policy of assigning younger officers to be superintendents of the military and naval academies. Mr. Roosevelt made the disclosure in commenting on the assignment of Rear Admiral Wilson Brown, a former presidential aide, to be head of the academy at Annapolis. Not yet 56 years old, Admiral Brown will succeed Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, who reaches the statutory retirement age of 64 next month. Brig. Gen. Jay L. KILLER JOKES AND SWAGGERS AS HE IS TAKEN TO JAIL

Ross Kidnaper Admits He Once Used Drugs.

John Henry Seadlund, the cold and unemotional kidnaper-killer of Charles S. Ross, disclosed yesterday that he had once been a dope addict.

He made the admission soon after he was taken to the county jail from the United States courthouse, where he had been under heavy guard since his arrival here Saturday. He was locked in an isolated cell on the same floor as the electric chair.

A jail physician, Dr. Frank Mangano, asked the notorious criminal during a routine physical examination if he had ever used narcotics.

Not for Long, He Says.

"Yeah," said Seadlund, "heroin and morphine, but not for a long time."

"How did you take it?" the doctor demanded.

"In the snoot," said Seadlund. Extraordinary precautions to prevent the escape or the suicide of Seadlund were taken during the prisoner's removal to the jail. At mid-afternoon he was led from the United States marshal's office. His hands were shackled to those of Deputy Marshals Joseph Konrath and Max Golden.

In Jackson boulevard he was put into an automobile. Riding with him and his two guards were Marshal William H. McDonald and his first assistant, Joseph "Obin. In two other cars were six additional deputies and two agents of the federal bureau of investigation. They followed Seadlund into the jail.

Quip Fails to Get Laugh.

Posing in the jail yard for photographers, Seadlund remarked: "I never thought I'd be shot so many times." No one laughed at the quip, but he did not seem to mind and maintained his air of careless bravado even after he had been taken into the jail's receiving room.

Asked if he had any money, Seadlund replied that "they already searched me and found none." He hadn't any address, he added; just "ran around the country." He was 27 years old, he said, was born in Wisconsin, and was a high school graduate.

"What is your occupation?" was the next question.

Insists He Is Peter Anders.

Only in one respect was he less than completely frank. He insisted his name was Peter Anders, the pseudonym he had given when G-men seized him in California on Jan. 14, and that his mother and father were both dead. [His mother, Mrs. Paul Seadlund of Ironton, Minn., visited him in his cell Sunday, then returned to Ironton.]

After he had been fingerprinted and given a shower bath, Seadlund was led to his cell. It is in the isolation wing and there is no chance for him to communicate with any other prisoners. Warden Frank Sain placed a guard over him and the federal men withdrew. As in the cell at the marshal's office, Seadlund was deprived of his tie and belt, to preclude any attempt at suicide.

United States Attorney Michael L. Igoe said the Ross case would be presented to the grand jury on Friday. It is expected that the kidnaper's confession will be read to the jury then and that Miss Florence Freilange, who was with Ross when he was seized on Sept. 25, and one or two government investigators will be called as witnesses. The government plans an early trial for Seadlund.

Mrs. Bunyan said her husband locked her and their daughter in the house, sprinkled kerosene about the floor and set fire to the fuel. She jumped through a window to summon firemen.

INSURANCE MAN AGAIN FACES FEDERAL JURY IN EXTORTION TRIAL

Frank R. Thomas, an insurance underwriter who lives at 325 South Prospect avenue, Park Ridge, went on trial for a second time in federal court yesterday on charges of sending extortion letters through the mails. The complainant is G. R. Lamberson of 640 North Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, a publisher, who was a director of the life insurance company which formerly employed Thomas.

Lamberson, the first witness for the government, identified seven letters demanding from $2,000 to $10,000 which the government charges were written by Thomas. Judge Philip L. Sullivan is presiding over the trial.

Thomas was acquitted in December, 1936, on a charge of sending threats through the mails to H. R. Kendall of Evanston, president of another life insurance company.

Thomas, 40, was born in Illinois and lived in Chicago for many years before coming to Park Ridge. He was a member of the United States marshal's office.

HUNT MARINELLI ON INDICTMENT IN VOTE FRAUD

Accuse Democratic Leader of Hiding Fugitive.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 25.—(Special.)—Albert Marinelli, leader of the Democratic organization on New York's lower east side, was the object of a search by deputy United States marshals tonight following his indictment by a federal grand jury in Brooklyn on charges growing out of national election frauds.

Under fire last month, resigned the New York county clerkship.

The indictment against Marinelli bore six counts alleging he harbored one Charles Falci, a fugitive from a federal indictment for election violence.

It was further charged that after professing ignorance of the missing man's whereabouts to a federal grand jury several years ago, Marinelli employed him as a chauffeur. Marinelli would face a maximum sentence of three years and a fine of $5,000 if convicted on all six counts.

Find Political Link.

The grand jury action was the outgrowth of facts on the tieup between politics and crime in New York City uncovered by Manhattan's new district attorney, Thomas E. Dewey.

Dewey, running as the Republican candidate for the prosecutor's post last fall, named Marinelli as "the political ally of thieves, pickpockets, thugs, dope peddlers, and big shot racketeers."

To back up his charges Dewey showed that thirty-three election officials controlled by Marinelli had serious criminal records. It was recalled that Marinelli sojourned to the 1932 Democratic convention in Chicago with Charles (Lucky) Luciano, the vice king who was later sent to the penitentiary by Dewey.

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, spurred on by public clamor, finally asked Dewey to file sworn charges. Dewey did so and the governor then requested Marinelli to file a sworn answer. The answer was his resignation on Dec. 3 and Marinelli stepped out of the county clerk's office and into the courts of law.

Took Place in Brooklyn.

The case upon which the indictment was based was prepared under the direction of United States Attorney Harold St. L. O'Dougherty. The action originated in Brooklyn because the alleged unlawful refuge of Falci took place in the eastern federal district court which embraces Brooklyn and Long Island.

O'Dougherty expressed the opinion tonight that Marinelli would appear in Brooklyn with counsel and surrender in a day or so.

KILLED DURING SNOWSTORM.

Laporte, Ind., Jan. 25.—Walter A. Bishop, 80 years old, a local railroad car inspector, was killed when a gasoline pump was struck by a New York Central passenger train at the crossing of the Nickel Plate tracks here this morning during a snowstorm.

Three More Indicted On Mutiny Charges In U. S. Steamer Case

New York, Jan. 25.—(Special.)—Three men were indicted today in Brooklyn on charges of mutiny and conspiracy to mutiny growing out of disturbances aboard the United States government-owned steamship Algic in Uruguay last September.

The men, Clegg A. Lowder of Savannah, Ga.; James O. Lampkin of Jacksonville, Fla.; and Rubel Stewart of the Seamen's institute were named in indictments handed to Federal Judge Marcus E. Campbell. Fourteen other crew members were convicted in Baltimore federal court of the same charges.

SIMMONS FAMOUS INNERSPRING MATTRESSES AND BOX SPRINGS

Wherever American magazines penetrate in the civilized world (and even parts not so civilized!) . . . wherever a comfortable night's rest is regarded as a necessary part of living, you will find Simmons mattresses regarded as the standard of excellence in sleeping equipment. Close to 3,000,000 American families own Beautyrest mattresses. Famous hospitals, hotels and ocean liners furnish their guests with Beautyrest sleep. People of all nations . . . from all walks of life depend on Simmons to make one-third of their life comfortable and restful . . . In our Scientific Sleep Equipment Section we show one of the most complete assortments of Simmons mattresses and springs to be found outside the Simmons showrooms.

FULL OR TWIN SIZE $19⁷⁵

Mattress special!
"SNOW WHITE"

432-COIL INNERSPRING UNIT
upholstered with
PURE WHITE STAPLE COTTON

"It has to be the best mattress available under $20!" we told the Simmons experts when we put our heads together weeks ago to plan the details of our 1938 mattress special. You needn't be a profound student of mattress engineering to understand that "SNOW WHITE" is an extraordinary value.

1. The innerspring unit contains 432 coils in a full-size mattress . . . more than twice as many as you'll usually find at this price . . . the largest number that is generally used in any open coil mattress, regardless of price.

2. "SNOW WHITE" is upholstered with pure white staple cotton, where many mattresses use cotton linters, a less desirable quality. . . . If you'll place "SNOW WHITE" outdoors in the sun at intervals of a month or so, the white staple cotton will puff up like magic . . . a live, resilient cushion that retains its comfort indefinitely.

Other details of superiority include Simmons' exclusive patented prebuilt border . . . inner roll edge . . . a beautiful and durable 8-ounce woven cotton ticking . . . as well as the usual quota of ventilators and handles.

16. Slumber King $24⁵⁰

Innerspring unit with 242 tempered coils, pre-built border, French edge and comfortable upholstery. Cotton damask panel covers in a choice of attractive covers. Box spring, $24.50.

17. New Deepsleep $29⁵⁰

New, improved innerspring mattress with handsome striped rayon covers . . . 299 flexible, silent coils, sagproof edges . . . prebuilt sidewall and deep upholstery. Box spring $29.50.

18. Beautyrest $39⁵⁰

This world-famous innerspring is noted for its 837 muslin-pocketed coils; sagproof edges which keep sidewalls in perfect shape, and luxurious upholstery. Box spring, $39.50.

19. Super Beautyrest $49⁵⁰

Finest of craftsmanship; thick layers of soft, luxurious upholstery; beautiful new floral rayon damask covers. Box spring, $49.50.

20. Beautyrest Hair Mattress $59⁵⁰

A de luxe mattress with the famous Beautyrest pocketed coil construction, with soft layers of resilient hair interlaced over and under the coils. All regular Beautyrest features, including sag-proof edge and prebuilt border. Special hair-proof cover. Matching box spring, $59.50.

SIMMONS COIL SPRINGS FOR INNERSPRING MATTRESSES

21. Ace Coil Spring, full or twin $19⁷⁵

This modern platform type spring, developed by Simmons, gives the firm, even support necessary to insure the utmost comfort in an innerspring mattress. Controlled resiliency prevents sag in the center, distributes the weight evenly. The platform top gives proper support to the mattress and prevents it from being forced by the sleeper's weight into the spring coils. Two stabilizers eliminate side-sway. Smooth angle border prevents bedding tears. Aluminum finish.

22. White Knight, full or twin $16⁷⁵

A popular-priced coil spring unit with many of the important Ace features, including the platform top for use with an innerspring mattress. In the old days mattresses were hard and springs soft, to give resiliency. Modern sleep equipment advocates a resilient mattress and a firm yet flexible spring. In this spring, the 90 double-deck coils have helical center ties, and stabilizers to eliminate side-sway. Aluminum finish.

WHOSE VOICE SHALL BE HEARD?

A session of the Association of American Colleges in Chicago last week brought together as speakers two men whose experiences have been widely different. One was Harold Ickes, the secretary of the Interior, whose remarks have made him the object of ridicule in congress, where he is known as "Bathub" Harold. The other was Dr. Heinrich Bruening, former chancellor of the lost German republic.

Dr. Bruening was one of the tragic figures of the failure of real German democracy to survive the almost insurmountable enemies, within and without, who succeeded in destroying what the patriots of Germany had tried to create under the constitution of Weimar, a republic, which, when it fell, crashed with the hopes of German liberty and the peace of the world.

Men who tried to bring that ill-fated adventure to success might have ranked with our own revolutionary forefathers if enemies and events they could not control had not taken from them the fruits of their labor.

Other people who now suffer from the downfall of the German republic cannot hold themselves blameless. Their aid was withdrawn when it would have been invaluable and their animosity was encountered when it proved fatal. France and Great Britain would be less troubled. Italy would be less troublesome. Spain might be at peace. Japan might not be in China if Dr. Bruening were not an exile in America but were in a position of responsibility in the republic that might have been.

Dr. Bruening, as a man whose experience and wisdom dwarfed the snarling Mr. Ickes to his proper place, did not hold other responsible peoples guilty of the disaster in Germany but philosophically considered what a people must do and what they must know in order not to lose their liberties. In order to keep what is precious in life intact and safe against the destructive forces which brought his own country down.

People, Dr. Bruening observed, did not remake fundamentals of life with every scientific advance, with every forward movement of specialized knowledge and with every change in material conditions. The eternal principles remained the same. If a people were misguided enough to think that they had extended their frontiers far beyond the experiences of the past and on those frontiers lost touch with the past and lost regard for it they were dooming themselves by the arrogance of their ignorance.

The former chancellor has seen a cultured people, far out on the frontiers of science and special knowledge, lose themselves to a dictator and fall into repressions and persecutions meanly and vindictively inspired and brutally executed. He said that in the era preceding Nazism the liberal educated men and women did not take the stand they should. They did not do their duty to the people who were unimpressed by the danger signals. Such a condition, he said, always precedes dictatorship.

"That's an admonition which should go home to the sensible people of America where the communications have been dominated by the Ickes type. Press, radio, and public debate have been smothered under the malice and ignorance of reformists, adventurists, fools and revolutionaries, defamers and deceivers.

"If the mind of the younger generation," said Dr. Bruening, "has not gone through a philosophic training which demonstrates why certain eternally fundamental laws and principles must guide the life of a nation it will never learn that in spite of the necessity of compromise in public life people must be aware that there can be no compromise about the sanctity of the basic principles of human rights."

The liberal educated people of America will yield the speaker's stand to the demagog at their own peril.

THE CART BEFORE THE HORSE.

After an analysis of classified automobile casualties, L. S. W., writing to the Voice of the People, submits his opinion that the automobile manufacturers could save lives by raising the driver's seat. He observed that the pilots of airplanes, the drivers of trucks and buses, as well as locomotive engineers, all had higher seats commanding wider vision. There have been a number of replies, a few of which have been published. "Daily Reader" observes that poor visibility may be charged more directly to parked cars, while J. F. M. suggests that plush seats impede the motorist's efficiency.

The correspondence leaves THE TRIBUNE to wonder whether L. S. W. and others will not agree that the motorist's seat is too far back rather than too low. Since streamlining became the vogue there has been a decided tendency toward longer hoods. In the modern bus, on the other hand, the engine is at the rear, and a truck driver sits practically over his engine, thus giving the operator the same visibility as a street car motorman. The conventional locomotive cab is located at the end of the "barrel," but in the streamlined Diesel-driven types, as well as the new Southern Pacific oil burners, it has been moved to the front of the engine.

In approaching an intersection the motorist must encroach on the crosswalk. As remarked by "Daily Reader," a line of parked cars further blocks the view, so that by the time the operator has clear vision his front bumper has reached the center of the intersection. Reason appears to dictate that the driver of the future automobile should be located either over or in front of the engine. From such point of vantage only can he secure perfect visibility of crosswalks and cross traffic. There is also a suggestion that if located in this seemingly exposed position there would be a natural inclination toward more careful driving. The motorist would be out in front, as it were, and not behind the barricade of a long engine room.

Many embryonic automobiles had their power plants beneath the vehicle or in the rear, but the public objected to the "cart before the horse." Tradition dictated that if an engine was to replace old Dobbins in the horse and buggy ensemble it must be out in front. This quick in human nature cannot readily be changed by the automobile manufacturers, but there appears to be little doubt that safety would be better served if the pleasure car followed the lead of the bus, the truck, and the locomotive.

ARMY AND NAVY COMMAND.

The vigorous shake-up in the British army high command has not, it seems, been lost upon our own military and naval authorities. A TRIBUNE dispatch from Washington reports that plans to lower the ages of admirals and general officers are being studied. It is a hard nut to crack, but if the British secretary for war can overcome, as he seems to be doing, the influences which have always resisted reforms in the British army, our departments can accomplish similar needed reforms in our services. It should indeed be easier, for the American services have no such powerful interests to combat as aristocratic society maintains in the British army.

But the problem is inherently difficult. The most conspicuous feature of the British movement is the appointment of younger men to high command. The most successful generals in past wars have been very much younger than the men in high command under peace conditions and there is always a drastic elimination in favor of younger men once the pressure of active conflict begins. But this process is injurious to organization in the midst of war as it is obvious that it should be avoided as far as possible.

On the other hand, officers who serve faithfully and competently in peace and naturally aspire to high rank and achievement in war cannot be denied promotion and recognition if we are to have men of good quality. This is not the place to discuss the complications of promotion, selection, and retirement. But in the interest of the maximum practicable efficiency of our armed forces, a general lowering of the age of command is desirable and should be worked out by the army and navy authorities. Full justice should be done faithful public servants and can be with proper study. But the lessons of experience and the condition of the world today both emphasize the urgent need for correction of the existing situation and for a system of promotion and selection which will invigorate the services by bringing younger men to responsibility while they are still fully able to discharge them.

The British government under the grave pressure of events which may at any moment precipitate war is moving for substantial reform. With the chief naval and military advisers of our own government giving warning of our need to put our defenses in better order—a warning which striking recent events incline the nation to heed—our military and naval authorities should be encouraged to work out a much better organization than we now have.

PUBLICITY FOR THE SYPHILIS SCOURGE.

The educational campaign on the siphilis plague started by THE TRIBUNE in 1935 has put the state in the lead of this great movement. The driving force is frank and full publicity. While the taboo against mentioning the disease in speech or print remained, no adequate measures to suppress the scourge could be achieved or hoped for. THE TRIBUNE led in breaking this taboo down in an attack on quacks in 1935. It has printed articles and editorials without euphemisms and evasion, the first of the great dailies to do so, and the taboo is disappearing throughout the country. That is the first long advance upon the enemy. But it must be continued. The fight is just begun and public education and discussion are the first essentials to victory.

We welcome, therefore, the announcement that Mr. Orville Taylor, state chairman of the American Social Hygiene association, will invite a hundred leading citizens of the state to sponsor observance of Social Hygiene day, Feb. 2. The state association plans a drive for private contributions to finance the war on siphilis in Illinois and the drive will have a two-fold benefit. It will not only raise needed money; it will also carry on the needed process of public education in the terrible facts of venereal disease. The press of Illinois should give active support to this movement. It has the chief responsibility, for publicity is the first essential to the conquest of this cruel blight.

FRANKLIN'S EXAMPLE.
(Detroit News.)

Young people who think there is little chance for them to get places of usefulness should study the life of Benjamin Franklin, who was born 223 years ago. He not only found jobs, he created jobs and laid foundations for job making that affect the prospect of young men and women in our time.

The outlook for Franklin as a boy didn't appear to be good. He was the fifteenth of the 17 children of his family. There wasn't much talk of forbidding child labor in those days. Franklin was a regular worker in his father's tallow candle shop when he was 11. The following year he was apprenticed to his brother, a printer. He learned the trade, but tired of it after five years and ran away. He tried New York and couldn't find steady employment. He made his way to Philadelphia and began a career which brought fame to that city and glory to his country.

In a pioneer society where money was scarce and opportunities were few, Benjamin Franklin became a printer, a publisher, a scientist, a founder of a college, a prime mover in founding the American Philosophical society, a renowned diplomat, a founder of the first public library in America, and a statesman and man of letters.

Young people should review the life of Franklin today and take courage.

KIDNAPERS' HAZARD.

A Chicagoan back after a short stay in Cincinnati tells of being driven over a bumpy drive leading to the country estate of one of Cincinnati's wealthy residents with whom he was dining that night. Expressing astonishment at the roughness of the road, which made a speed greater than ten miles an hour impossible, he learned that they were constructed bumps—placed there to prevent kidnappers from making a quick getaway. There are two young children in the household.

THE WOOD CARVER OF WILMETTE.

He is 72 years old and deaf, and he spends all day bent over his bench. Under his thin old fingers pictures appear out of the oak and white holly he likes to use—portraits of Indian chiefs, historical events in carving and fanciful scenes. One of the most impressive of his wood pictures is four feet long with the carving nine inches deep and shows figures standing on a balcony, looking over the railing at dancers in a courtyard beneath. His name is Chris Carsten and he lives at 2635 Kenilworth avenue. He has applied for an old age pension, but, in the meantime, hopeful some one will buy his pictures, he keeps at his wood carving.

LINE AWARD FOR JANUARY.

To Charles A. Crisp of Davenport, Fla., for his idea for a new sales article to improve business—pyjamas to match for husband and wife.

"The idea came to me by accident," writes Mr. Crisp. "My wife and I were visiting relatives this New Year's in another city and by chance when we were ready to retire that night it so happened that both my pyjamas and also my wife's were exactly the same color. One of my relatives made the remark that it certainly was a pretty ensemble."

"This gave me the idea that it would be a wonderful selling article. Have sets made with the same color and design that could only be sold together, and I know that some manufacturer would welcome an idea like that."

Please remember the idea was Mr. Crisp's.

THE REPORTS OF SALARIES paid children in motion pictures, opera, and the radio are having its effect on the very young. The 13 year old nephew of Esther Palmer told her the other day, "If I am not making a hundred dollars a week by the time I'm 15, then my life's a failure."

WHEN EPILEPSY STRIKES.

I WISH devoutly that there were no such thing as epilepsy. Furthermore, I wish that it were not necessary to talk about it. But so many letters have been received relative to the disorder that no longer can we put off discussing the malady.

We recognize that brain injury or tumor, rarely, the influence of pregnancy may bring on uncontrollable muscular contractions. But these are not typical of the condition under consideration. The true epileptic usually has a warning that something is wrong. While this may not be present always, nevertheless most of those afflicted are sufficiently forewarned to be able to find some place where they can lie down and thus avoid injury. There may be minor jerks of the hands and legs, an intense headache, dilatation of the pupils, or what some mothers will describe as "a peculiar appearance of the child's eyes."

Then comes the attack—grand mal (severe form)—with much convulsive activity. The eyes may turn to one side, the head twist, and the parts of the body become fixed in grotesque positions. For a moment the chest may become so rigid that breathing is stopped. This leads to marked blueness of the face, which is alarming. Finally air is expelled from the lungs and, as the incident subsides, the patient lies apparently unconscious and, in fact, may pass promptly into a deep sleep.

In the less spectacular type—called petit mal (light form)—consciousness is lost for only a few seconds. "One may observe that an individual will stop suddenly, drop what he is carrying, and stare blankly into space. There may be slight twitching of the eyelids or of the facial muscles. If he is engaged in conversation, on recovery the thread of the story will be resumed just where he left off."

As far as the cause is concerned physicians are about as much in the dark as they were a century ago. Some sort of a nervous explosion occurs with its origin in the brain tissue, much like a general electric short circuit.

Again, the "fit" may be compared with a discharging spark setting up a chain of convulsions, involving most of the muscles of the body. Heredity plays a part, so far as there is passed on from parents to children a tendency to nervous instability. Psychological factors, such as worry, or emotional conflicts, should be thought of. In fact, everything that can possibly upset the even tenor of one's life should be inventoried.

In some instances the symptoms will cease abruptly without explainable cause. On the other hand, the most careful management must be instituted, not only to reduce the violence of the seizures but to increase the interval between them.

VIENNA, Austria. — One of the unique, though almost forgotten, activities of the Austrian government carries this modest title: "Bookkeeping office of the federal ministry of finance, department for old Austrian orders and badges of honor." The office is the last reminder—and reminder—of the imperial lord steward's office, which formerly issued decorations, and it must keep a register of the most important orders of Austria. The office is housed in a few big rooms of the ministry of finance.

Here are withered documents of old Austrian history. They tell how the emperor's pension was bestowed on Archduke Charles for defeating Napoleon at Aspern. They record also how Emperor Francis bestowed one of the first grand crosses of Leopold's order (with the star in diamonds) on his son-in-law, Napoleon, when the Corsican married Archduchess Maria Louise.

The letter of foundation for the Iron Cross order of 1816 to commemorate the "happy reunion of the Italian provinces under our scepter" is in the files also.

Some of the diplomas of the orders could not be delivered for one or another reason. Under the letter "P" in the archives, for instance, it is found that the "Brig. Gen. Joseph Plisudski" was awarded the Iron crown (third class) "for brave conduct before the enemy." This document was returned because the addressee had changed his quarters. The man who was to become marshal and dictator of Poland had been transferred in the meantime to the fortress of Magdeburg to be confined as a dangerous rebel until the end of the war.

In a well bound book are recorded the demands of the lord steward's office on the imperial mint for 18 carat gold to work out the different orders, crosses and medals. The average pre-war monthly demand was for about six pounds of gold. By 1915 the demand increased to eight pounds. In April, twelve in June and thirty-two in September. For more than a hundred years the stream of honors and or, better yet, to relieve them entirely. Under proper medication some will go from five to twenty years without a single manifestation and the longer the freedom the greater the likelihood that no further trouble will appear.

During an attack nothing should be done except to prevent the victim from hurting himself. Place a folded coat or blanket under the head and a knotted handkerchief between the teeth. Force should not be used. If false teeth are worn, and if they can be removed easily, this should be accomplished. No disturbance whatever should be permitted during the ensuing sleep.

If recurrences follow, a physician should be called without delay, as otherwise the sufferer may wear himself out because of the strenuous exertion. Some of the preparations of the barbiturates can be given directly into a vein. Many of those who have received bromides assert that there is nothing quite so effective. But one must be faithful in the use of the drug and the dose must be adjusted exactly to meet the individual needs.

With modern methods of control no one need face undue discouragement. I know many who take bromides practically every day, who have learned by experience the dose that is required, and who carry on with efficiency and zest.

1. Gain in weight may accompany healing of a gastric ulcer, but the two conditions are not necessarily related. 2. It may mean alkalosis, although this would be accompanied by other symptoms also. You are neutralizing the natural hydrochloric of the stomach. 3. Overdoses of X-ray or of radium may cause various skin, blood, or bone symptoms. Treatments with either radium or X-rays should cause no discomfort whatever.

AMERICAN DYSENTERY.

L. P. writes: 1. What sickness is caused by the amoeba? 2. How is it contracted? 3. Is it contagious? 4. Is it curable?

REPLY. 1. Dysentery is an acute inflammation of the mucous membrane of the large intestine. The amoeba form, amebiasis, is due to the presence of a parasite, ameba histolytica, in the colon.

2. It is contracted via food or water. "Carriers" can contaminate edibles. 3. Yes. Protection from the source of infection is necessary. 4. Yes, but persistent and skilled treatment is essential.

The average pre-war monthly demand was for about six pounds of gold. By 1915 the demand increased to eight pounds. In April, twelve in June and thirty-two in September. For more than a hundred years the stream of honors and gold went into all corners of the Austrian empire as well as to foreign countries. In December, 1915, partly because most of the deservingly already had received golden orders and partly because gold had become more valuable, the amount dropped to only twenty-eight pounds. In January, 1916, the old tradition that the emperor can give awards only in the most precious metal was broken. After that date only imitations were sent to the army in the field because the losses on precious metal had been too great. But to every one distinguished with an imitation emblem an exchange for genuine pieces was assured at a later date. This assurance could not be kept, of course, because the monarchy fell.

All decorations were conferred only upon the recipient individually. An order had to be returned after the recipient's death. Only those rare ones conferred with diamonds were considered as an outright imperial gift.

Since the fall of the monarchy widows or children of dignitaries and officers have brought back conscientiously the gold badges conferred on their husbands or fathers. Not only from Austria but Hungary, but also from Germany, Bulgaria, the Netherlands, and the Scandinavian countries this gold stream has flowed back continually.

In 1920 a letter sent from America with an emblem said that inasmuch as post-war Austria had to struggle for its existence in its duty to return everything to the rightful owner, Austria, where it may help a little."

All the glory of old Austria has passed through these rooms. The decorations of Conrad von Hoetzendorf and other generals and dignitaries have been in them. Hundreds of them are kept now in specially protected safes, guarded at night by sentries with fixed bayonets. Some are sent on request to museums, and from time to time damaged ones are sent to the mint to be melted down.

Thus every year, from honors which the old Austria bestowed, about thirty pounds of pure gold is gained for the new Austria.

THE WHITE CANE.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Is there any way in which your paper can help educate its readers to recognize the white cane as the blind man's unspoken testimony to his handicap? I, as a user of one, find too large a percentage of the population quite ignorant of its significance, and, consequently, there are narrow escapes at times, not only for me but also for others. Also realizing that there is a fine for the nonrecognition of the white cane on the part of the motorist, I am surprised that this knowledge has not been brought before the public long ago.

A normal blind person desires his independence as much as and appreciates it far more than the ordinary sighted person. People are generally considerate and often assist in crossing a street. But one night I was crossing an intersection on the south side, with the lights in my favor, when suddenly I heard some girls scream and at the same moment I felt the impact of the automobile against my side. No great harm was done except an unnering on my part for at least a week afterward, during which time I hesitated to go out alone.

Although I had the light he came from around the corner, and he either did not see the cane or did not recognize it or the smoked glasses which I wear. He possibly thought that I could see and did not bother to warn the person in his path. I admit that I did not think quickly enough to ask someone to take his license number, which I should have done, but maybe because of what happened to me many others will be able to walk more safely in this city. I often wonder if that driver recognized the next white cane he saw.

You may use my initials and any excerpts of this letter you think necessary to bring this knowledge to the attention of the people, but please do not use my full name, for if my mother learned of this incident she would never allow me to travel alone again, and this, of course, must never happen to me or to any blind person. There are 8,000 of us in Chicago.

TOO MANY AUTOMOBILES?

Chicago, Jan. 22.—Mr. Alvan Macaulay says that instalment buying of automobiles has raised the standard of living of millions of people. Very true, but at whose expense?

I could cite the case of the village doctor I know who charged off $18,000 of bad accounts and who pointed out to me, as they drove up to a filling station, one after another of his debtors who refused to pay him a cent.

Millions of people whose standard of living was raised by the purchase of automobiles are now living on charity at the expense of those whose standards of living are being seriously lowered by the taxes which are levied to feed and shelter these indigents.

But the important thing is the political and social, not the economic, consequence. The states of North Dakota, South Dakota, and Minnesota, to illustrate the point, which in the "horse and buggy" days were strongholds of conservatism, have been gutted of hundreds of millions of dollars spent for automobiles, with the result that even before recent crop failures the financial distress of the people had turned these states into hothouses of radicalism.

It is about time for this country to realize that an individual or a nation can enjoy, without disaster, only that scale of living which is within its income, and that there are certain old-fashioned economic laws which can no more be repealed than the tides and the weather, new era crackpots to the contrary notwithstanding.

PAID TO TESTIFY FALSELY, SAYS INJURY WITNESS

Says Plaintiff's Lawyer Coached Her.

A key witness in a personal injury suit testified yesterday that Attorney Harold Jackson paid her $15 after she had given a false account of an accident for which he won a jury award of $50,000 for his client.

Attorney Jackson and his investigator, J. S. Stahl, are on trial before Judge Robert Jerome Dunne in the Criminal court on charges of conspiracy to defraud the Illinois railroad.

Originally there were seven defendants, but the others, principals and witnesses in the injury suit, have pleaded guilty.

Serves 30 Days for Contempt.

Among them is Mrs. Frieda Hanief, 30 years old, who was yesterday's witness. She admitted serving a year in the women's reformatory at Alderson, W. Va., to take the cure for the narcotics habit. She said her first marriage ended in divorce and her second was annulled when she found her husband was a bigamist. She served thirty days in the county jail for contempt after admitting perjury in the injury suit. The $50,000 verdict was set aside.

Mrs. Hanief on the stand yesterday said she was in the front yard of her home near Michigan City and saw Rosemary Kieffer, 9 years old, struck by an automobile on April 16, 1933. She said she gave a false account of the accident at the injury trial because Stahl had told her, "We don't want to have the accident happen like that. We can all make a lot of money out of this."

Told What to Say, She Asserts.

Jackson, she testified, said to her, "Railroads are my meat. They have the money." She said Jackson told her to testify that the railroad crossing was defective and that when the car hit the planking it went out of the driver's control and struck the little girl.

She said at the time the award was set aside, and again yesterday, that the accident actually occurred some distance from the crossing. She said Jackson got her a room in a Michigan City hotel and gave her a statement to memorize. She kept the statement until the day of the injury trial, she said, and then it was taken away from her. She identified two bills, a $10 and a $5, which she said Jackson gave her.

Later she told of being interviewed by detectives for the railroad, signing a refutation of her former story, and said Jackson rushed in when he found out about it and said to her, "If we go to the penitentiary, do you."

PICK DR. KNEIER TO MAP PROGRAM FOR LEGISLATURE

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 25.—[Special.] Dr. C. M. Kneier, associate professor of political science at the University of Illinois, today was offered the post of director of research of the newly created Illinois Legislative Council, following a conference between Gov. Henry Horner and members of the council's committee on research. Salary for the position was placed tentatively at $5,800, and Dr. Kneier said he would accept if the university permitted it.

The legislative council, sponsored by Senator T. V. Smith (D., Chicago), is to make plans for the next session of the general assembly in 1939 and submit a program on important matters at the opening of the session.

Dr. F. H. Guild, director of research for the Kansas council, after which the Illinois body is modeled, will be asked to aid in establishing the Illinois headquarters, which probably will be in the state house at Springfield.

Roosevelt Names Kruetgen to Continue as Postmaster

President Roosevelt yesterday nominated Ernest J. Kruetgen to succeed himself as postmaster at Chicago. The nomination was sent to the senate to conform with a legal technicality that holds major postal appointments to a four year term. Mr. Kruetgen was appointed Sept. 2, 1933, and was also announced in Washington that Frank J. Clark has been named to be postmaster at Hines.

Second Poison Highball Trial Set for March 7

The second trial of Corydon A. Jack, charged with the poison highball murder of his divorced wife, was set yesterday in Criminal court for March 7. The death sentence again will be sought, said Richard Austin, assistant state's attorney.

Widow Loses Suit to Get $3,500 and $1,200 Bar Pin

A Circuit court jury before Judge I. Mrs. Matthews, a widow, said the money and pin were hers and that Steele, her former co-est, kept them.

AIR SHOW PLANES WAITING FOR AID OF WEATHER MAN

May Be Flown Today to Amphitheater.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

A score of new 1938 airplanes were in hangars at half a dozen airports in Chicago last night while their pilots anxiously awaited a change in weather which would permit them to fly the machines to a temporary landing strip just west of the International amphitheater in the stockyards. All the planes are to be displayed at the International Air show which opens at the amphitheater Friday.

Only two days are left in which to fly these planes to the scene of the show, and another twenty to twenty-five machines are to converge on Chicago from still other manufacturers' plants during that period. After landing the planes must be drained of gasoline and oil, wheeled inside, groomed, and placed in exhibition booths.

Light Winds Forecast.

Much of the flying may be done today if the weather bureau forecast of light winds during the latter half of the daylight hours comes true. There has been so much fog, snow and rain and so many low clouds around Chicago for the last ten days that none of the flyers here with the new ships was willing last night to say definitely that an attempt to land at the amphitheater would be made this afternoon.

Most of the ships which are to be flown to the amphitheater are small training planes or light planes designed for the private owner. The larger, heavier ships already have been crated and hauled to the scene by motor truck. Among those already set up is a Douglas DC3 sleeper plane, the largest type of machine flown on the country's air lines today.

Joint Exhibit of Craft.

This has been entered by American Air Lines, United Air Lines, Transcontinental and Western Air, Pan American Airways, and the Douglas Aircraft corporation, jointly. Show visitors will be able to make a minute inspection of the ship. Most of the radio, engine, instrument and accessory exhibits already are in place.

The bureau of air commerce and John Casey, superintendent of Chicago airport, have perfected a special miniature radio range which will show visitors how pilots ride the radio beacons, and many of the latest radio communications and blind landing instruments will be on display. In all more than seventy airplanes including army and navy ships will be on view.

Police said that Langfield's brother, Edward, killed himself eight years ago and his father, William, was killed two years ago in an automobile-train accident.

FIND BODY USES HANDS AND FEET AS THERMOMETER

Parts Most Sensitive to Heat and Cold.

BY MARCIA WINN.

If your hands or feet get suddenly hot, or cold, don't let it worry you. It's all in the natural course of human events. They are merely acting as they should, as bodily thermometers.

Research begun last August at the University of Illinois college of medicine to determine the influence of atmosphere on man's physical and mental health has shown, in the first five months of the five years' research, that the skin on the hands and feet is the most sensitive to temperatures of any part of the body. The research, sponsored by the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, was undertaken to ascertain just how the human body responds to heat, cold, velocity of the air passing over the body, and humidity.

Four Types of Climate.

In the experiment normal individuals will be tested in four different types of climate—cool dry, cool moist, hot dry, and hot moist. Such factors as dust particles in the air, movements, temperature, and barometric changes all will be considered.

The present test, which will be reported upon today at the annual meeting of the heating and ventilating engineers in New York, involved two normal persons placed in a small air conditioned room. Measurements of skin temperature and circulation, under varying temperatures, were taken several times a day. An instrument called an "exploring button," through which changes in skin temperature were recorded electrically, was used. Fastened in place with adhesive tape, the buttons were placed on the forehead, abdomen, balls of both middle fingers, right forearm, balls of both great toes, and a point above the right knee.

Hands, Feet React Quickly.

The results show that the hands and feet tend to cool more quickly than the surrounding air. When the environment is slightly warmer the hand begins to get warm. When still warmer the feet rise in temperature. Finally both hands and feet become warmer than any other point.

If heat is not eliminated [such heat production as arises with digestion, exercise, etc.] fever follows. A person with an exothalamic fever, for instance, may radiate 75 per cent more heat than a normal person of the same size. In his case a lowered room temperature might prove as effective as ice packs.

29 Families Move Into Federal Housing Units

Twenty-nine families moved yesterday into the Jane Addams houses, federal housing enterprise at Roosevelt road and Racine avenue. The moving, scheduled for Monday, was delayed a day while the furnishings of the new tenants were fumigated. Since more than 60 per cent of the apartments are three room units, the authorities hope to limit them to families of three persons, with an income of not more than $30 a month.

ATTACKS STAND OF EDUCATORS ON SYPHILIS MENACE

Dr. Schmidt Urges Blood Tests of All Students.

The general agreement of educators that syphilis is not an important problem on American campuses, set forth in The Tribune's recent survey of college and prep schools, drew criticism yesterday from Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, chairman of Mayor Kelly's syphilis control committee.

The survey published Jan. 20 showed that few of the higher educational institutions require Wassermann or Kahn tests of incoming students, although most of them offer instruction in prevention. University leaders pointed to records of students tested to show that, at the most, only one in 1,000 students have syphilis.

A Health Problem Even So. "Even that amount of infection constitutes a definite health problem," said Dr. Schmidt. "Because the disease is communicable, there is a control problem if one in 1,000 has it."

"But it is the unknown cases of syphilis that are the bigger menace. The universities cannot say the problem is unimportant until they make blood tests of all students a part of their routine physical examinations. Their results thus far are based mostly on random tests."

One university not included in the first survey which has done much in the educational phase of control is Purdue. Dr. S. J. Miller, student health service director, said Purdue began a definite program before the national campaign started.

The Purdue Program. It includes special lectures for freshmen, instruction and quizzes in a "Personal Living" course, motion pictures shown to the entire student body each year, advice that students buy a book called "On Your Guard," and special speakers.

"All new students are examined for syphilis," said Dr. Miller. "Blood tests are only taken in suspected cases and on those who desire it."

Dr. Miller estimated that in a large number of tests over a period of years at Purdue not more than one-twentieth of 1 per cent were positive.

Like Purdue, Columbia university and Southern California require all students to take a hygiene course covering venereal disease. Yale provides two such courses, but does not require them.

None of the three requires blood tests of entering students, and all consider syphilis so rare among their students it is not a serious problem.

HOLDS CITY CAN ORDER RELIEFERS FINGER PRINTED

Hodes Suggests Lyons Ask Council Action.

The city council could by ordinance authorize Commissioner Leo M. Lyons of the Chicago Relief administration to force all applicants for relief to be finger printed. The decision on whether such action is necessary to safeguard relief funds is up to Lyons and he may recommend such an ordinance to the council.

This opinion was sent to Lyons yesterday by Corporation Counsel Barnett Hodes. Lyons had asked Hodes to decide whether the CRA could finger print the inmates of the administration's shelters for men, but Hodes included all reliefers in the opinion.

Suggests Request of Council. "It is your (Lyons') duty to safeguard public funds appropriated for relief from fraud and imposition," the opinion said, "and, if in your judgment, authority to finger print applicants is necessary to afford that protection, we would suggest that you request the city council to amend the relief ordinance to that effect."

Hodes called Lyons' attention to the fact that enlisted men in the army and the employees of many banks, trust companies and other business institutions use finger prints for identification.

Lyons said last night he wishes to study the opinion before commenting. It was expected he would lay the matter before the city council subcommittee on relief which Ald. William A. Rowan (10th), the chairman, said will meet early next week.

Suggestion Made by Geal. The suggestion that the shelter inmates be finger printed was made by S. N. Geal, superintendent of the shelters. He said that the idea was given to him by police last fall after a series of strongarm robberies and that he believed many of the shelter inmates would leave if such a practice is instituted.

Walter Gregory, chairman of the Illinois council of public assistance and employment, said he plans to take the council's report on the CRA to Gov. Horner at Springfield today. The council unanimously approved the report, which was compiled during the past six weeks by a staff under A. E. Rose, executive assistant of the council. Gregory refused to reveal the contents of the report.

SEEKS JAILHOUSE FOR FIRST TIME IN EXCITING LIFE

Parkore Tietiacov lounged in a cell at the detective bureau last night and mused on life, in a bitter vein. A survivor of the Russian revolution (so he said), a technical adviser to Hollywood movie directors, this was the first time he ever saw the inside of a jail.

Serg. Edward Allman arrested him Monday night as he left a Chicago broadcasting station with a woman singer. The sergeant had a warrant charging Tietiacov with abandoning his wife, Mrs. Alexandra Sakolskaya, Tietiacov of New York and their children, 10 and 7 years old.

Tietiacov said he was much surprised, because two years ago he gave his wife a settlement of priceless Russian historical books, and she signed an agreement not to bother him. He said he was 42 years old and lived at 1223 Astor street.

Relieve their misery this Proved way

WHEN there's a cold to treat—especially if it's a chest cold—there's no time to experiment. Relieve the misery with the treatment that has been doubly proved for you.

Here's What To Do: It's best to stay in bed and get lots of rest. Eat lightly, drink plenty of water, and keep elimination regular. And use your dependable Vicks VapoRub without delay.

VapoRub has been proved by everyday use in more homes than any other medication of its kind—further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (Full details in every VapoRub package.) Only Vicks give you proof like this.

No Long Waiting for Relief to Begin... Vicks VapoRub is direct external treatment. No "dosing"—no risk of stomach upsets. You simply massage it on throat, chest, and back (as illustrated). Then—make its long-continued double action last its full effect—spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warm cloth.

Almost before you finish rubbing, you begin to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub goes to work direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath.

This double action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation and coughing—helps break up local congestion. And long after you relax into restful sleep, VapoRub keeps right on working—hour after hour.

HORNER REAPPOINTS ARTHUR S. SMITH AS LIQUOR BOARD HEAD

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 25.—(Special.)—Arthur S. Smith of Bloomington today was reappointed by Gov. Henry Horner as chairman of the Illinois Liquor control commission.

"I appreciate very greatly the governor's action," said Mr. Smith, "but I just am not sure what I will do. I have until Tuesday to make up my mind." Under the law, Mr. Smith's new term would run for six years. He is head of a bakery here.

Waukegan Township Faces Relief Deficit of $50,000

Waukegan township will have to sell a bond issue of $50,000 to make good its relief deficit for the year ending May 1, 1938, it was estimated yesterday by Harold Piffant, town supervisor, in a speech to the City club of Waukegan. The township has 1,200 families on relief. Piffant said the township tax levy yielded $62,000 and receipts from the state sales tax would total $190,000, while the expenditures by May 1 would reach $302,000.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

Labor Saving Device

JANUARY 25, 1938. FARM butchering day almost always leaves the workmen with aching backs for a week after work. Most farmers still scald their hogs in an old vinegar or molasses barrel, or a metal oil drum. Handling a 400 or 500 pound hog is extremely difficult under this laborious method of scalding.

Tribune farm men have found a way of avoiding the old practice of skidding around on a wet platform while they duck the body of a porker in hot water to make the hair slip. Other farmers are welcome to visit the Wheaton farm and see how easily the trick is done with an inexpensive, home-made scalding device recently installed in the new tool shed.

The scalding vat—5½ feet long, 30 inches wide and 19 inches deep—was made by cutting a discarded metal tank in half the long way. In this hog is easily rolled out of the basket back onto the scraping platform.

Live steam is used in heating the water. The old fashioned method of heating water in kettles over an open outdoor fire has been done away with. A heating system has been installed in the repair shop of the new tool shed and the live steam is piped underground to the scalding vat at the opposite end of the building. With live steam the temperature of the water is easily kept at 150 degrees Fahrenheit. A thermometer is used to test the water at frequent intervals so the temperature easily can be kept at the scalding point at all times no matter how many hogs are handled during the day. Water and steam are piped into the end of the vat so that either may be quickly added as needed.

All Work Done Indoors. All the work of butchering is done indoors. The scraped hog with a metal gambrel fastened in the hocks is hoisted from the platform to a hook suspended from an overhead track. In this way the carcass is easily moved about in the farm's little packing house. After being scraped the carcass is hung in the cooling room where it is allowed to cool over night before being cut up.

From the cooling room the carcasses are shifted on a track to the cutting room, where they are lowered onto trimming tables. The trimmed pieces are moved to the curing room and smokehouse in a box fastened to the carrier suspended from the overhead track.

Two large caldrons have been installed in the heating room near the cutting room. The fat is quickly transferred from the trimming tables into the caldrons, where it is rendered and poured into containers for storing.

Hog Handled Easily. With the scraping platform, 5½ by 10 feet, level with the top of the scalding vat, a hog is easily handled. From the holding pen the hog is hoisted with chains and pulleys, and carried on an overhead track to the scraping platform where it can be easily rolled off into the basket. The buoyancy of the animal makes it a simple task for two men to raise and lower the basket while the hog is being doused repeatedly into the scalding water until the hair slips. When the scalding is complete the trough-shaped vat is fitted a strong metal basket, made by welding seven bowed rods to an iron frame 5 feet long and 28 inches wide. The frame is attached to the vat by means of two hinges, so that with long handles on each end of the frame the basket can be raised and lowered.

Dressed Up for Air Travel

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Illustrating what the well dressed air traveler may wear is Mrs. John R. Hurley, who was a mannequin in a fashion show yesterday. There is great interest in air travel and air fashions at the moment, for the International Air show opens at the International Amphitheater Friday. Mrs. Hurley is interested in the concert to be given Monday night in the Auditorium by Edith Mason for the benefit of the Little Company of Mary hospital.

Indoor Sports Events Popular at City's Clubs

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE indoor sports programs planned by city and country clubs have been especially popular this winter, since there has been so little opportunity for snow sports. There has been good skating weather, however, and the date for one gay outdoor party, the Winter club's annual children's ice carnival, has been set for Saturday afternoon, Feb. 5.

The date for an exciting indoor party has been set for the same day, a polo match to be played that night between the Yale university team and the 124th field artillery at the 124th field artillery armory. Arrangements to bring the Yale team here have just been completed by the Yale Club of Chicago, of which Charles S. Dewey is the president. Col. Charles C. Haffner Jr., commanding officer of the 124th, is a Yale alumnus.

Mr. Dewey has asked his son-in-law, Edward B. Smith, and Donald R. McLennan Jr., Ernest A. Hamill II, John B. Morse, Rosecrans Baldwin, and others to take charge of tickets, entertainment, and other details for the evening.

This will be the third winter that Yale has sent its polo team to Chicago. A second match the night of the 5th will be played between the Fort Sheridan and the Chicago Shamrocks teams. The 124th regiment team will complete Saturday night at the armory against the 122d field artillery.

Squash Match at Woman's A. C.

Squash, badminton, swimming, and bowling are favorite indoor sports. The Town club of Milwaukee is sending its women's squash team here tomorrow to play against the Woman's Athletic club team. The athletic club will hold a badminton tournament next Tuesday.

There will be a squash match between the Woman's Athletic and the Winter club next week, it is expected. The Winter club team was to have played against the Town club in Milwaukee yesterday, but the match was canceled partly because of the sudden change in the weather and partly because some of the players are busy with plans for winter vacations. Miss Peggy Hixon, Mrs. Conway H. Olmsted, Mrs. William A. P. Watkins, Mrs. L. Thomas Kelly, Mrs. W. A. Jaicks, and Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter play for the Winter club. Mr. and Mrs. Watkins are leaving Sunday, Jan. 30, to spend three weeks in Mexico. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly are leaving Friday for Nassau to visit the Edward F. Swifts.

Mrs. William B. Freer, Miss Margaret Goehst, Mrs. Franklin Clement, Miss Elisabeth Dewes, and Miss Sarah Hinde will play for the Woman's Athletic against the Town club at 2 o'clock tomorrow. Taking part in the badminton tournament will be Mrs. Jacob H. Bischoff, Mrs. Hamilton Vose, Mrs. Theodore S. Gary, Mrs. Marshall Haywood, Mrs. Edwin L. Read, Miss Virginia Winston, Miss Lyla Woodruff, Miss Eleanor Litsinger, Miss Anna R. Jaques, and Mrs. Fremont A. Chandler.

Costume Party at Winter Club

Laurence B. Robbins is chairman of the ice committee for the Winter club. The children's carnival will be a costume party, starting at 3 o'clock. The junior and senior girls' fancy skating championships will be held during the afternoon, as well as chariot races, a traditional part of the carnival. There has been no skating at the club since Thursday, but it was expected yesterday that the ice would be in good condition today.

Swimming races, water polo, and diving exhibitions will hold the attention of those attending the Palm Beach party for the benefit of the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind to night at the Lake Shore Athletic club. A mattress swimming relay between the Country Gentlemen and the City Slickers will be one of the entertaining events on the program.

Looking & Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

Behind the Scenes

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 25.—Emil Ludwig has written of Marie Antoinette.

basins his estimate on hearsay and documents dug out of old trunks. But your reporter sat with her yesterday.

gave her America a ciga rets, chatted about Santa Anita races, the current weather, Maurice Chevalier the relative merits of technicolor and black and white picture and can report that the famous historical charmer knows what it is all about.

If the original was as charming as Norma Shearer, you can understand how she scrambled history into a Napoleon omelette.

There were five of us in Miss Shearer's dressing room — Douglas Fairbanks and the former Lady Ashley, Mrs. Howard Hawks, Norma, and the power of the press. Fairbanks commented admiringly on the speed with which the Versailles ballroom scene had been shot: "You know," complained Norma, "everybody thinks that I'm a slow worker, and it's not true. It goes back to a scene Charlie Laughton and I were doing in 'Barrett's Wimpole Street'."

"Laughton, in this particular scene, kept going up in his lines and we didn't get it right until the forty-third 'take'. From that time on the legend developed that I always insisted on doing a scene over and over again. On difficult scenes I like to try it about six different ways, but after the sixth take, if I haven't done it well, they may as well stop shooting."

Fairbanks laughed: "I've read that you insisted on scenes being shot over endlessly. Norma." Marie Antoinette leaped far forward, so that the cigaret ashes would clear her huge, hooped skirt. "When Woody Van Dyke was assigned to direct the picture friends called me up to point out that Woody and I would never get along, because he is a fast worker. You'd think I was a doddering old lady."

Just for the record, Van Dyke idolizes her—says that she's the nicest person he's ever worked with. He sums it more graphically: "Class will tell, Ed."

I asked Miss Shearer how it felt to be making a picture again, inquired if at first she was off in her "timing," as an athlete is after a layoff. "No, it's surprising how easily you slip into the old routines again," she said. "But my one feeling in making this picture, in these costumes, is a deep regret that that period is gone forever. It must have been charmingly romantic. You know, the girls in those days must have dedicated their lives to the art of being beautiful."

"Any girl on the set will tell you that these high wigs make you feel gay the minute you put them on. We all hate to take them off at the end of the day. Without them we're just ordinary mortals again. The necklines of the dresses, according to Adrian, are the most fetching of any period of history. Those girls knew their stuff."

Outside her dressing room in the reproduction of the Versailles ballroom Mme. du Barry (Gladys George), the Duc d'Orleans (Joseph Schildkraut), the Princess Lamballe (Anita Louise), and Prince Artois (Reginald Gardiner) were sitting on stools or on the floor after the completion of the minuet.

"I have never danced before," explains Schildkraut.

"Those big feet of yours are self-explanatory," says Van Dyke.

"This is the old French version of the Big Apple," says Gardiner.

Anita Louise, in a costume of the period, looks a bit incongruous with a candid camera.

You shy away from mention of Irving Thalberg in interviewing Norma, but some one brought up the name of Maurice Chevalier. "I'll never forget when Irving went backstage at a Paris theater to sign Chevalier," Norma recalled. "They sent word backstage that Mr. Thalberg of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer would like to see Maurice during the intermission. You know how boyish looking Irving was, so when he went back Chevalier took one look at him and refused to believe that this was the famous American film executive. 'This is only a boy, just out of short trousers,' Chevalier told his manager, and he wouldn't talk business."

"Irving, I believe, was the first one who ever believed Chevalier would be a great star."

On the way out Mme. du Barry stopped me: "Veren't the De Marcos marvelous the other night," she asked. "The De Barry, in this picture, is Gladys George, and, although she likes the part, she says that she's all tired out from the costumes. 'Those girls must have kept in good shape,' she says. On second thought there were no fat girls in the days of Marie Antoinette."

Twelve Brave Cold to Recall Day of Big Fire

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

Twelve hardy souls who remember the great fire of 1871 did not let a sudden cold day interfere with their plans for attending a reunion and reminiscing about the fire. Not they! Their grandchildren may have postponed squash matches in Milwaukee because of the cold, but a dozen old Chicagoans braved the weather yesterday and met for luncheon at the Palmer house as arranged by the Chicago Historical society.

Not only for luncheon, but for tea later at the Historical Society building. And in between they visited the site in De Koven street of the start of the fire. It was an exciting day for them, not the least part of which was a motorcycle escort that made it possible for the limousines in which the group rode to ignore red lights, a novel experience for most of the twelve.

Only one of the group, Charles S. Coles, actually went to the rear of the house now standing on the site of the old O'Leary house, and visited the barn. But he was the only one who had a personal interest in seeing it. As a boy of 13 he had seen the old one burn and yesterday he said that after watching it burn to the ground he saw the body of a cow, so perhaps the story of the cow and the overturned lamp is not the myth it is reported to be.

Frank J. Loesch, who just has resigned as president of the Chicago Crime commission, presided at the luncheon. In addition to telling their memories of the fire some of the guests gave their recipes for attaining ripe old ages. Mr. Loesch said that he attributed his good health and age (85) to the fact that he had started fighting at 2 and had kept it up.

Frederick B. Tuttle, noted as a beau and cotillion leader since the days of the fire, gave as his recipe for attaining the age of 90 "having a good time all my life."

Mr. Tuttle's contemporary, Mrs. E. C. Fergus, partially agreed with him, but added, "and raising my seven children." One of them, Mrs. Thatcher Hoyt, was present, but she was not living at the time of the fire, for only Mrs. Fergus' two oldest had been born then. The three at the luncheon who remember the fire were Mrs. Daniel J. Schuyler, who is "not quite 93"; Mrs. Eugene S. Talbot, who is in her 85th year, and "infants under 80," as they were described by Mr. Loesch: Mrs. Frank G. Logan, Miss Carolyn Tyler, Mrs. Frederick T. West, Henry J. Fatten, William V. O'Brien, and Wallace Rice.

Mrs. Loesch, Mrs. Schuyler Jr., Miss Herma Clark, Miss Phyllis Walsh, Miss Georgine O'Donnell, E. Hubbard Shattuck, director of the Historical society, and some officials of the Twentieth Century-Fox Film corporation, which produced the picture "In Old Chicago," also were at the luncheon and the tea.

Satin Turbans Make Good Use of Vivid Colors

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Between the new costume jewelry and mad cap turbans of vivid color any well hoarded supply of cash vanishes in record time. The gold rush is going strong with the biggest and noisiest of barbaric bracelets tempting the shopper. You wear as many as three to four of the things on each wrist, providing, of course, your dress is Puritan plain and dark in color. Links, bands, and even hunks of bright gold metal clank merrily from the smartest of wristlines. Sometimes clips are offered to match, but the bracelets alone are sufficient unless you demand constant uproar.

Satin turbans are gay and giddy things, made in swathed lines and much smaller in area than last year's ideas. They perch right on the top of the head and look for all the world like mounds of whipped cream tinted in bright or pastel colors. Some achieve a good snappy skyline with a perky shoot of the satin at the side or side front. Others are high and twisted in front and flat at the back. Since the newest arrivals are small, they are exceptionally desirable as the bright high spot of color for dark street outfits. They're especially good finds for the fur coats.

Bright king's blue, equally vivid emerald green, stained glass purple, and garnet, together with dull gold or shimmering honey beige are a few of the best new colors available.

Fashion photograph soft, small, and swirled into form by clever fingers, one of the newest high satin turbans is spectacularly effective with all dark outfits because of the clear, strong tone of bright blue. It's high in front with an overfold of the satin to contrast the folds of the back section. With or without a veil it is an ideal between season model for street or afternoon clothes.

Schueppe Is Re-elected Head of St. Luke's Board

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Bright blue satin, draped in an intricate design, makes this turban good for soft afternoon dresses or as the top contrast for dark fur coats. Height is achieved with a fold of the satin crossed directly in front over the horizontal folds of the hat itself. This turban can be worn with or without a short veil.

Dr. Horton of Hyde Park Congregational Secretary

The Rev. Dr. Douglas Horton, pastor of the United church of Hyde Park, has been appointed secretary of the general council of the Congregational Christian Churches of the United States. The appointment was announced yesterday at the annual national executive conference at the First Congregational church, Evanston. Dr. Horton succeeds the Rev. Dr. Charles Emerson Burton of New York City, who retires. Dr. Horton will be the chief executive of a denomination with 6,150 churches.

Busch's Fiddle Is All Music and No Show

BY EDWARD BARRY.

There comes a point in the violin concerto where Mr. Mendelssohn throws up his hands and swears that two good movements are sufficient or any piece of music. Enough of the glow of the first and second persisted through the third yesterday to assure Adolf Busch, soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra at the seventh of the Tuesday afternoon concerts, a good volume of applause at the end.

Mr. Busch is the meek and serious aged German violinist whose only other appearances in Orchestra hall took place six seasons ago and who has since been amusing himself musically in a variety of ways. He and his chamber players made that wonderful recording of the Bach suites which brightens, or should brighten, the cabinet in which your disks repose.

He boasts not the shadow of a mannerism nor an affectation and addressed himself to his task yesterday with the simplicity of one who is interested principally in an honest presentation of the music in hand.

I am not absolutely sure that it was a good performance. Certainly there was little of the sophisticated polish of the virtuoso, and Mr. Busch's passage work got over onto the toneless side more than once. Yet his playing made a deep impression because of the power which resides in utter candor, a power which never ceases to be amazing wherever in art life we happen to find it.

Even when he paused to enjoy rapturous sound pools of his own rearing there was no suggestion in such conduct of an effect for its own sake. Rather was the impression strong that this freedom sprang from his familiarity with his material and from the deepest and frankest sort of sympathy for it.

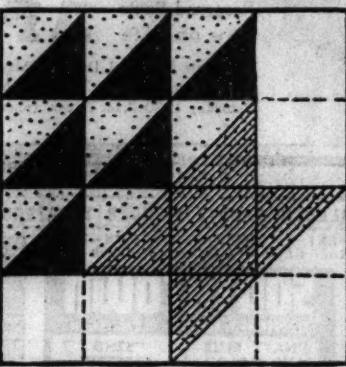

The sound pools charted above occurred in the first movement. What ush did with the lyrical second is something which can, to coin a phrase, be better imagined than described. Here was music which seemed to escape for a few minutes from the mesh of form and tonality and mechanical production in which we unfortunate humans have been compelled to imprison an element that ideally is as free as air.

The near-ovation which followed the concerto was the more remarkable because the purely orchestral gems with which Frederick Stock receded it—the Bach sixth Brandenburg and Elgar's "Enigma" variations—had been most tepidly received. The composers, not the performers, must take whatever blame accrues.

The thoughtless fellows either eschewed the brass entirely or wrote it in a most un-Sousalike way. The definition of parts in the Bach was exquisitely calculated. Elgar's variations called "Enigma" because there is supposed to be a mysterious theme which is never stated but which is implicit throughout) profitably by the orchestra's searchingly beautiful string tone.

In Mr. Stock's version of the finale Wagner's "Siegfried," composer and transcriber eschew neither the brass nor anything else. As we washed off into the storm at the end of the concert we had vivid memories of the Magic Fire to warm our ears.

Flower Basket Quilt Founded on Four Patch Design

Simple Flower Basket.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Simple Flower Basket" was one of the first of the millions of basket designs. This pattern contains squares and triangles set together as a fundamental four patch pattern. A combination of printed and plain materials aided in carrying out the illustration of a basket with geometric flowers growing out of it. The square is small, measuring 10 inches, and 56 blocks are set together with 2 1/2 inch bands of white material between the blocks. A 2 1/2 inch border and a one-half inch bias binding finish the coverlet. The overall dimensions are 90 by 102 1/2 inches.

The Housewife

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

The field of synthetic or man-made materials is widening with astonishing rapidity. The other day we discovered a grand little help for the housewife, an article that looks exactly like a chamolite cloth, but that is synthetic. It costs much less, of course, and it will be just about as durable. It is pliable and soft and can be used wherever you'd use a chamolite.

When finished with this cloth, spread it out to dry, but do not let it lie in the sun or on top of a hot radiator.

It's as cheap as it is useful.

GUNHAMMERED GOLD

By Luke Short

(Copyright, 1938, by Frederick Diller Glidden.)

SYNOPSIS.

Poco St. Vrain arrives in the western town of Christian City, escaping a pursuing troop of cavalry. There Two-Way Hornbeck approaches him with a scheme. Abe Macdonald, who framed Poco, made an outlaw of him, owns a gold mine on a mountain peak. Two insurance agents come to meet at the mine and bring down a gold mine. Poco is guided by two different bands of outlaws. Two-way Hornbeck goes to the mine and the agents, take Pinner, whose papers he has, and get the gold. At the mountain camp Poco finds Espey Cardowan, killer gunman, posing as the other agent. They dare not give each other away to Shayne, the mine manager, and his lovely daughter, Kate.

INSTALLMENT IX.
OVER THE CLIFF.

Poco and Cardowan watched each other dress the next morning. Poco searched Cardowan for hideouts and then Cardowan searched him. They were both sobered by the thought that their true had an hour or so to run, and when they left this camp it would be the old dog eat dog game.

Breakfast was noisy. That day, after Poco and Cardowan left, the men would start to break camp. It was an event for them. Every one except Kate and Poco seemed in high spirits. She ate her breakfast almost in silence, and did not look at Poco once.

After breakfast preparations got under way. Two mules were brought out. The two big sparejoes were filled with the sacks roped onto the mules, while Poco's and Cardowan's horses were being saddled. The sun did not seem to warm this height, and the same steady cold breeze whipped through the camp.

When everything was ready, Shayne said, "Who'll lead off?" "Jake will," Cardowan drawled quickly. "He's in a hurry to get down." Shayne shook hands with them and bade them luck. Kate, standing by her father, said good-bye to Cardowan, and then turned to Poco. He raised his hat.

"Good-by, Miss," he said quietly, and Poco noticed something in her eyes that was cold, almost hostile.

He turned now and took the trail, the two pack mules behind his sorrel, Cardowan's roan behind them, Cardowan bringing up the rear.

The descent was slow and cautious. When they had passed the places on the trail that had washed out Poco felt a great relief flood over him. It was on the north side, overlooking a deep gorge, that the trail widened. Poco halted. "Let's have a smoke," he called back.

Cardowan nodded. "I'll stay here, Poco," he said, smiling meaningly. They both built smokes, and Poco squatted on his heels in front of his sorrel. Presently Cardowan called, "Throw me a match."

Poco threw one, but it was yanked out over the cliff by the wind. He tried another. The same thing happened. He shrugged.

Cursing, Cardowan flattened himself against the mountain side and edged past his roan, past both the mules until he was behind Poco's sorrel. Poco, standing now, watched him stop there.

"You got another match?" Cardowan said.

Poco threw him some, and now they hunkered on their haunches, eight feet of trail between them, and smoked. Poco was stalling, hoping against hope something would turn up to suggest a way of escape. The trail was impossible, and even the thought of a leap off the sheer drop made him almost sick.

Poco rose, Cardowan a second behind him.

"Let's go," Poco said.

Cardowan said nothing, watching him. Poco reached under his sorrel's neck to swear in the reins which were trailing on the offside, hanging over the trail edge.

And in that moment Cardowan struck the three matches he had in his hand on the rock, and when they were mounting into full flare, he jabbed them into the sorrel's rump.

The sorrel yanked his head up, exploded ahead, smashing into Poco, a squeal welling in his throat.

Poco made one frantic grab as he felt himself off balance, and then the sorrel rocketed by him, butting him with a terrific impact. And in that one brief half second of cold horror in which he clawed at the air he heard Cardowan's laugh rise on the wind.

And then he was over, the trail whipping up out of sight, the sky and mountains wheeling crazily past his vision, his muscles locking in horror, his chest constricted and strangling him. He felt the cold slap of snow, and still he was falling, rolling now, aimless, helpless, and his great retching gasps for air were choked off by snow in his mouth. All the falling of his arms, the clawing of his hands, gathered only icy handfuls of snow as he turned over and over, rolled over and over, while the very core of his life was being slammed out of him by these blows that followed each other in lightning succession. He was drowning, when he felt a vast and almost painless shock on his head and blackness seemed to finish the work of strangulation.

When he came to it was only to open his eyes and let flinty flakes of snow into him. He tried to move and found that if he fought the pain enough he could. He was almost buried in a deep drift, and his hands were locked into bloody and unfeeling claws. The snow was spotted with scarlet smears.

The sun was past its zenith behind the mountain. He struggled unsteadily to his feet, the snow waist deep about him, and something in his head rolled around like loose shot. He smeared handfuls of snow on his face, and the bite of its cold cleared his head.

Then he looked around him. He was in the bottom of a deep gorge that was choked with snow. Looking up, he saw the walls rise sheer to the heavens. Turning, he could see part of the course his fall had taken, great jagged scars in the snow four feet apart. Thirty feet above him the scar dug deep and curved in a long sweeping gully that ended where he was standing.

He looked at it, wondering how far he had fallen, when he saw perhaps a dozen yards to the right of the scars his fall had made in the snow, still bigger scars.

And then he understood. His sorrel had gone over, too. He looked across the foot of the gorge, with his rose to a high snow bank forty yards to his left. He could see nothing except the unbroken white of its surface, but he knew the horse was there.

And now he began to stamp a trail in the snow in that direction, packing it with his feet, breaking down the crust, and in ten minutes he was exhausted. But for an hour he worked doggedly, and as he neared the snow bank he saw where it was disturbed. Closer now, he could see a dark spot of hide. When he reached it he saw the sorrel was buried deep in the snow. Dully, he scraped away the loose drift around the head until it was clear. One glance told him the sorrel was dead, its neck broken.

It was still warm, and he sat down on its side and put his head in his hands. Something hurt in his head, and the hand came away bloody.

For a while he sat there staring, a hot and furious bitterness seething in his mind. Cardowan had won, and had won by a trick as cruel as it was cunning. He had outguessed and outsmarted Poco, and now he had the gold, all of it—and he left Poco only his life. But had he? Poco wondered, looking around him. As a last resort he could eat horse meat to keep him alive. His guns and rope were in his bed roll on the saddle. The body of the horse would warm him for some hours yet.

He looked up the cliff. Up there somewhere was the trail, and the trail would lead him some day, somewhere to Espey Cardowan.

And meanwhile he must work.

Espey Cardowan walked over to the edge of the trail. He could see the scar in the snow where Poco's body struck first, but a jutting ledge cut off his vision. He could not see the bottom of the gorge, but he could see down far enough to make him draw back from the edge with an unpleasant feeling of dizziness.

"Adios, hard-case," he murmured.

Art Institute Hears Report Prepared by Harshe Before Death

The Art Institute had 1,013,561 visitors during 1937. This was disclosed yesterday when the annual report of the late Robert M. Harshe, director, finished the day before his death, was read to governing members.

Although the institute opened the year with a deficit of $24,000, it closed with a balanced budget. The closing days of the year brought a $32,000 payment from a Century of Progress Exposition, the institute's share of the residuary funds of the Exposition.

Despite Miss Kate S. Buckingham's generous bequests, the institute's financial worries are not over, the report stated. Miss Buckingham's bequest not only is not yet operative, but is confined to the maintenance and acquisition of additions to the vast Buckingham collections. An estimated $125,000 is needed now for building repairs.

Urgent Appeal for Stove.

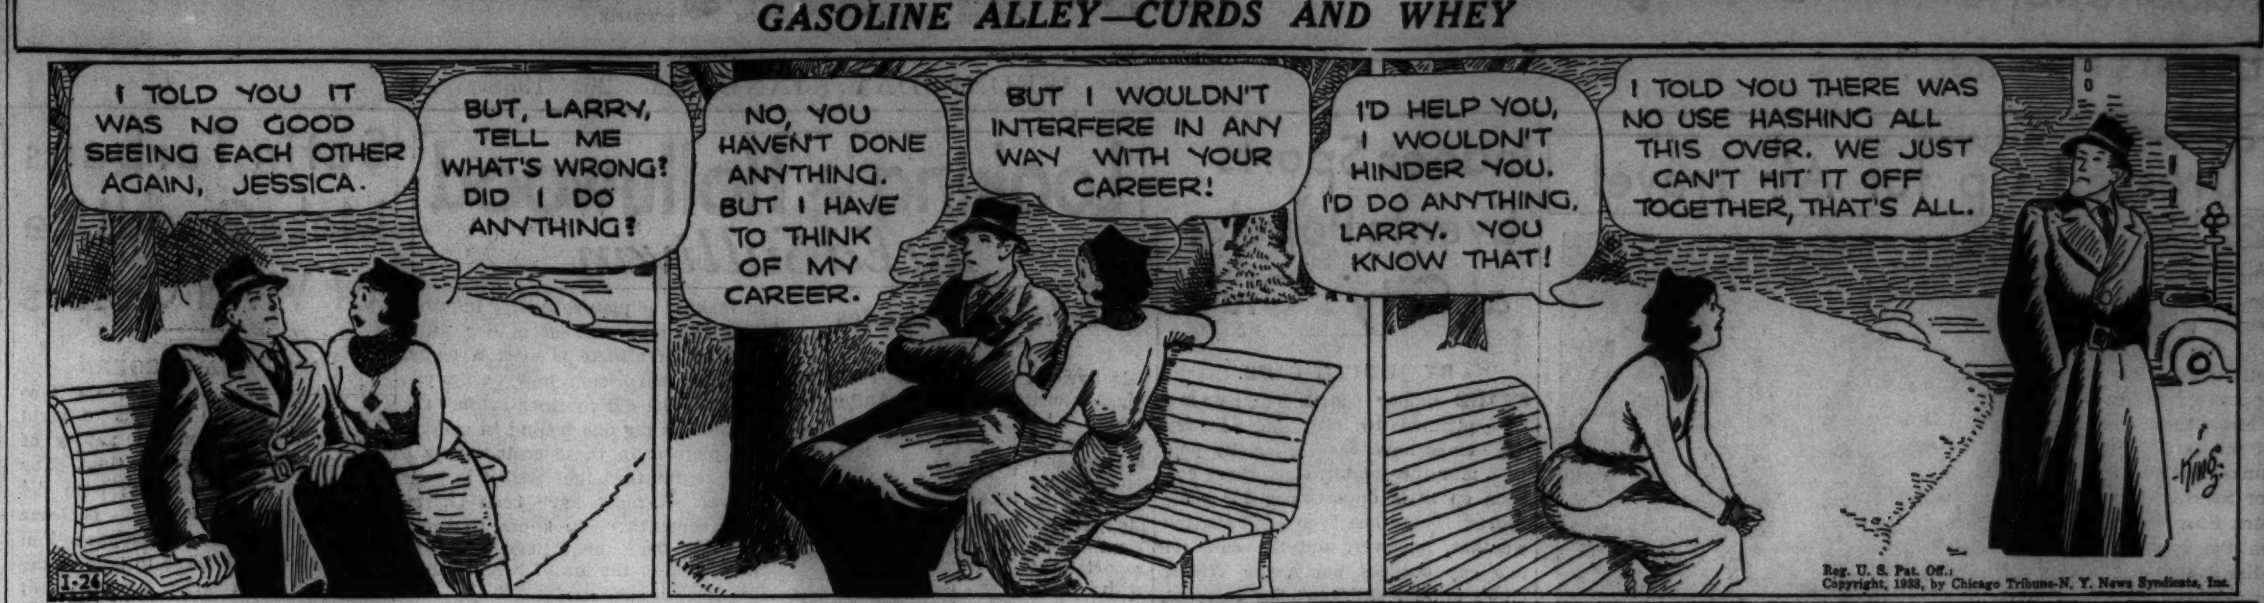

A worker from a south side district has requested aid for a family about to be evicted. Now living in steam heated quarters, they are unable to find another heated flat at the rent they are able to pay, and must take unheated rooms. They have no heating stove and are unable to buy one. There are children 5 and 2 years old. During the present severe weather it is essential that they have some form of heat. Any other type of coal heater would be appreciated and the agency will arrange transportation.

Parents See Woznicki

Consecrated as Bishop
Detroit, Mich., Jan. 25.—(P)—The Most Rev. Stephen S. It Is "Aura"
That Counts
Today, Girls!BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.
(Copyright, 1938, by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.)

O, my loves, but life do become just one thing after a couple of other things! Who'd be thinking, in a moment of serenity, that we'd be asked to match or complement our auras with the color scheme of our costumes? Yes, that's just what's happened. If we want to be "clothes happy" we must track down the nature of our auras and then go matching. Anyway, word comes from Hollywood (which may make it easier for you, since many words come from Hollywood to which you don't have to pay a bit of attention) that that's what they're doing out there now. What they do in Hollywood in the matter of clothes, you must admit, influences some of us girls sitting out front of the screens.

Now, in case you don't know what or where or when or why your aura is, let Mr. Webster explain, as simply as he sometimes is known to do, that your aura is, 1. A light breeze. 2. Any subtle, invisible emanation or exhalation from a substance, such as the aroma of flowers, hence a supposed emanation conveying meretric and similar influences, figuratively a

The wedding of Miss Louise Klein, daughter of Mrs. Sidney Klein, 5645 Blackstone avenue, to Lester Roth, son of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Roth of New York City, will take place on Feb. 12 at 8 o'clock at the Shoreland hotel. distinctive atmosphere surrounding a person. Ex. "There was about her the aura, the glow, the roseate exhalation that surrounds the woman in love."

Now, if that is clear, let's proceed with the Hollywood news. Designer Edward Stevenson, who has created gowns for Ginger Rogers, Barbara Stanwyck, Ann Southern, to mention only a few, is the one to whose name is pinned the aura-color-scheme idea.

"For several months," he says, "I have been experimenting with the idea of harmonizing the colors used in

Thomason III, captain, are the Country Gentlemen. A water polo team from the Shawnee Country club will meet one from the Illinois Athletic club. Miss Claudia Eckert will appear in the diving exhibitions.

Mrs. Theodore S. Gary is chairman of the party, with Mrs. John F. Jennings, Mrs. Stanley Morrill, Mrs. Taylor Strawn, Mrs. Hill Blackett, and Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody Jr. serving on the committee. Miss Jane and Miss Kathleen Calkins, Miss Katherine Bulger, Miss Nancy Knobe, Miss Florence Dingle, and Mrs. Philip Allen will sell cigarettes. A buffet supper will be served around the pool.

Mrs. Mary Tilt Bartlett Bride of John Wentworth.

From Sea Island, Ga., comes the announcement of the marriage on Monday morning of Mrs. Mary Tilt Bartlett and John Wentworth. The wedding took place at the winter home in Sea Island of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Tilt. Mrs. Wentworth's little son, Eric Bartlett, will remain in Sea Island until the Wentworths return from a wedding trip in the early spring.

The J. Francis Dammanns have gone to La Jolla, Cal., for the wedding today of their son, Thomas Lynde Dammann, and Miss Harle Garth, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Garth. The ceremony will take place in the evening at the home of the bride's parents with only the two families and a few close friends present.

Mr. Dammann and his bride will come directly to Chicago from California.

Tea Next Tuesday at International Library.

The board of trustees of the Library of International Relations and the officers of the English Speaking union will give a tea next Tuesday afternoon from 4:30 until 6 o'clock at the Library of International Relations. Mrs. G. Cooke Adams, Consul General and Mrs. Lewis Bernays, Sir Lenthal and Lady Christie, Mr. and Mrs. Laird Bell, Mrs. H. A. Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Reckitt, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rinaker, and Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Shennan will act as hosts that afternoon.

The tea will open a British exhibit that will include books, posters, photographs, and prints. Pouring will be a group of Junior League members who have been asked to assist by Miss Eloise Requa, director of the library. In the group will be Mrs. Scott J. Dow Jr., Mrs. John McDonough, Mrs. Edward B. Smith, Miss Lucy Trumbull, and Miss Narcissa Thorne. Mrs. Warren Booth of Detroit and Miss Lee Fraser of El Paso also will assist.

Stage Notes

The large and fashionable audience at Orchestra hall for the Tuesday afternoon concert of the Chicago Symphony was enlivened by the presence of three distinguished actresses and an author. Mrs. Cecil Barnes and in her box Miss Helen Hayes, Miss Cornelia Otis Skinner, and W. Somerset Maugham. Miss Eugenie Leontovich heard the concert from seats in the gallery with Mrs. Alfred Wolfe, daughter of Dr. Frederick Stock, conductor.

The sudden change to cold weather brought fur coats out in full force, and Miss Hayes and Miss Leontovich were among the dozens wearing beautiful mink coats. The former wore a brown woolly duncie cap rimmed with mink blocks.

Mrs. John W. Gary, Mrs. I. Newton Perry, Miss Cornelia Conger, and Mrs. W. Irving Osborne Jr. will form an informal reception committee at the opening of the modern rooms at St. Luke's hospital at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The entire seventeenth floor of the hospital has been redecorated. The committee has decided to serve tea to a patient in one of the rooms. The patient is Miss Anna E. Armstrong, director of the social service department, who has been ill.

Miss Florence Dibel Bartlett will wear a Hungarian bride's costume when she lectures on "A Costume Hunt in the Carpathians" at 3:45 o'clock Sunday afternoon in Fullerton hall of the Art Institute. Miss Bartlett will illustrate her talk with colored slides that she took on a trip last summer with Mrs. Arthur Bissell through Poland, Rumania, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. The lecture is open to the public.

The last meeting of a series of foreign policy classes conducted by Mrs. Elvion Utley for the Chicago Junior League will be held at 10:30 o'clock this morning in Room M 18 at the Drake hotel. Among the members who will give reports are Mrs. Sangar Hinchman, Miss Bertha Erminger, Miss Lucy Harrison, Mrs. T. Lloyd Kelly, and Miss Marjorie Kimball. The North Shore Junior board of northwestern university settlement will hold its first meeting of 1938 at the home of Miss Marjorie Street in Winnetka at 2:30 o'clock today. Tea will be served.

The last of a series of four lectures will be given today by Dr. Hugo P. Simon on "The Rise of the Bird and a Half Estate" at the home of Mrs. Charles H. Swift, 209 Lake Shore drive.

Band of Maine Township High Will Play Feb. 10

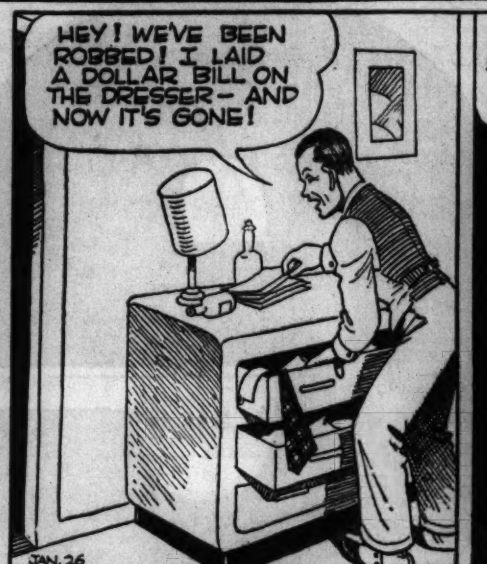

The Maine Township High school band and a capella choir will give an annual winter concert in the school auditorium in Des Plaines on Feb. 10. Hoagie Carmichael's "Star" will be played in a symphonic adaptation. The band is under the direction of Fred M. Vierow. A. M. Arley leads the choir. Tom Schuetz is president of the band.

Friends of Writers. Mrs. Bonaro Willardson Overstreet will speak on "The Enjoyment of Poetry" at a luncheon meeting of the Friends of American Writers at noon today at the Chicago Athletic Club. Mrs. Overstreet is the author of "Footsteps on the Earth."

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: On the House

House Coat for All Figures

WOMAN'S AND MISS' HOUSE COAT.

Too often the house coat is styled only for slender silhouettes, but plenty of women with heavy figures are charming hostesses and spend a great deal of time informally in their homes, so their need of a house coat design is necessary, not to say urgent! The pattern offered today is designed for both slim and mature figures, and it may double as a breakfast wrap and negligee. The final purpose of the garment depends upon the fabric chosen.

In soft cottons and pastel silks this wrap, with its dainty edging of ruffling along the neckline, dolman sleeves and front closing, will be pretty for breakfast and one's intimate hours of leisure. In rich silks and dark colors it's the perfect gown for the hostess and for house wear during winter evenings by the fireside. The house coat will, of course, not use ruffling. Instead, edging of the same material or in a contrasting shade is the thing to use.

Style No. 3074 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39 inch material, with 4 1/2 yards of ruffling.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.] This business woman's menu will suit the lackadaisical as well as the ambitious, for it's a two way affair which may be accomplished with ease or with a little effort, depending upon whether or not you like to open cans.

BUSINESS WOMAN'S DINNER
Chile Con Carne Masked Potatoes
Shredded Spinach and Lettuce Salad with Onion French Dressing Whole Wheat Bread Toast
Fudge Brownies (Bakery) à la Mode Coffee

Canned chile will save much time in the preparation of this meal. Canned chiles differ greatly in quality and in seasoning and it's safest to buy a well known brand. One can will serve two persons as a rule.

If you prefer to make your own chile here is a good recipe to follow. This is a mild rather than a hot concoction, but it may be made spicier by the addition of more seasoning if preferred.

Chile Con Carne.

(Serves six.)
2 tablespoons bacon fat or butter
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 pound round beef
1 can tomato soup
1 can kidney beans (No. 24)
2 tablespoons chile powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
Brown the onion and meat in the fat until the meat is cooked through-out and add the remaining ingredients. Cover and let simmer for an hour.

These cup cakes are quickly and easily made and they're nothing short of luscious when split and served warm with a big spoonful of ice cream between the layers and another on top. The cakelets left over may be frosted for serving on other time.

Fish Cup Cakes.

1 1/2 cups cake flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon lemon extract
Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, and sift together three times. Cream butter well, add sugar gradually, and beat until light and fluffy. Add eggs, then flour alternately with milk in thirds. Beat after each addition until the batter is smooth. Add flavoring. Pour into greased muffin pans, filling them about two-thirds full. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes.

According to CULBERTSON

FOLLOW A PLAN.
[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.] In my none too humble opinion, it is better to have had intentions than to have no intentions at all!

As applied to bridge, this simply means: Formulate and follow a plan of play, offensive or defensive. Even though the plan you select may not be the best available, it almost surely will be better than a floundering around process can be. Before you cash a trick, decide what should come next. What you will do if there is a favorable drop of cards; what to do if it is the other way around. Omar's advice, "Take the cash and let the credit go. Nor heed the rumbling of a distant drum."

probably is the only one of his philosophical gems that does NOT apply to bridge. In this game "the rumbling of a distant drum" should be given serious attention!

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

From the notebook:
If you are weary to death of efforts to find the perfect powder shade we suggest you have a powder specially blended for you. It's done in several places around town and is the only solution for a great many women. It's no more expensive than most boxed powders and does away with the costly experiments.

Slips change with the seasons, you know, and the powder shade that looked so luscious in the fall is apt to look awful right now, when most of us are a few shades paler.

Two nice new fall polish shades: One is "festa," a lovely dusty grape shade. If you like and wear gray here's a fascinating enamel tint to wear with it. Another new baby is "swampfire," a blue red with a trace of brown. This is stunning with blues. The lacquer is a heavy one that wears remarkably well. Either of these shades will be good if you're going south or west. They'll be smart on tanned hands—but they're pretty devastating on white ones.

Even Tiniest Children Can Learn to Pray

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune. N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.] The well known interpretation of money as the root of all evil adds another score to its reputation by virtue of that now famed research conducted by a woman's magazine in the analysis of divorce cases, which listed finances as top trouble-maker in marital life.

What makes this necessary commodity so darkening a shadow on the domestic horizon? We say "necessary" because none will deny that it is a first essential in maintaining a roof, a decently full dinner pail, raising enough to meet the law's requirements, and so on. So far you can attach no monstrous significance to what is deemed the world's greatest marriage wreckers. Even a bit beyond that, when it provides a few decent comforts and a reasonable amount of security for all concerned in the family budget, money still comes off with a clean slate.

Perhaps we are looking through the wrong end of the glass. Many of us have come to view the possession of money as the sole aim and object of life and existence. Without being foolish enough to discount its need and its value in reasonable amounts, haven't we, nevertheless, made a false god of it, really? Aren't we foolishly snobbish about the possession of money? Do we not measure our own success, and that of other people, solely on the material basis?

Aren't we pitifully ruthless in our criticisms of people who do not meet those standards of living which our [or others'] possessions dictate as a standard of success? Aren't we guilty of attaching greater importance to money than to other possessions such as, say, riches of the spirit? Wouldn't many laugh at the quaint idea of setting up riches of the spirit as a virtue to be cultivated? What, say they, can one buy with riches of the spirit? With money, some say, one can buy everything one wants, needs, or can enjoy. This in face of the fact that with money one can grease the wheels of living, all right, but can't buy contentment. You can buy excitement, but you can't buy joy.

Because we make a god of money, aren't we often guilty of living beyond our means so that others will think we are more successful than we really are? We are ashamed to be thought of as not possessing more, so we go to great lengths to make a false showing. And isn't the such as the tension of living beyond our incomes responsible for much of the marital discord on record?

The Field Museum of Natural History yesterday named Hall 16 in memory of Richard T. Crane Jr. and welcomed home Emmet R. Blake, 29, assistant curator of birds, after a year spent in the tropics.

Mr. Crane, who died in 1931, served for 25 years as a trustee of the museum, to which he contributed more than $229,000. Crane hall contains habitat groups of North and South American mammals.

Sent to British Guiana and Brazil in search of the hostin, a bird commonly called Stinking Hanna, Mr. Blake returned with 3,099 birds, reptiles, mammals, and fish. The hostin is valuable in tracing the reptilian origin of birds through rudimentary claws under the wings.

Mr. Blake lived with the Guarani Indian gauchos in the Mattogrosso of Brazil, riding their cow ponies after the speedy rhea, an ostrich-like bird which runs 45 miles an hour. He also survived the bite of a vampire bat after losing a quantity of blood.

Those were the good old days

ONCE, say twenty-five years ago, life was simple for the advertiser.

Only 18 million copies per issue—of all magazines—were circulated in all the length and breadth of this fair land. And only one of them enjoyed as much circulation as 2 million. But time just wouldn't stand still.

Radio grew out of its screeching static stage. Talking pictures were perfected. Candid camera magazines were born. And people grew print-hungrier too, for magazine circulations climbed from that earlier 18 million copies to 79 million today!

So it's a different story now. If you want your sales-message to make a dent in all this clamor you've got to put plenty of muzzle-velocity behind it. You've got to put it on the target where the buying is done.

That's simply saying, put it in The American Weekly—the strongest voice outstanding in the modern babel. Big . . . powerful . . . able to command attention against all the new competition.

Smart advertisers know this. Ford Motor Company, Standard Brands, H. J. Heinz Company and hundreds of other Social Registerites of American Business recognize the power of The American Weekly—today's kingpin of magazines.

Every Board of Directors responsible for appropriating advertising funds should take a realistic look at the market it offers, the richest in the world!

CONNIE MACK DENIES RUMORS OF RETIREMENT

Tells Writers He'll Go to Camp.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Connie Mack tonight denied rumors of his retiring as manager of the Philadelphia Athletics with "I am going to continue as manager as long as I can."

"There has been a lot of talk about my resigning," he told the Philadelphia Sport Writers' association at its annual banquet, "but I love baseball and I don't want to quit and I'm not going to."

Rumors that Mack, the dean of baseball managers, would give up the management and direct the affairs of the club as president became current several months ago when he was ill.

He Feels Much Stronger.

"I'm feeling much stronger these days and expect to be ready to go to training camp next month," Mack said.

"I haven't the faintest notion of giving up while there's still a chance to make another try for a championship."

Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers, was named the most courageous athlete of 1937 by the sports writers' association.

A lineup of notables in the sports world and 1,000 guests at the banquet saw Mickey receive a plaque.

"Here was a man that lay at death's door but who came back before the season to lead his team," said Al Horwitz, president of the association, in presenting Cochrane with the award.

He Proved His Courage.

Cochrane was seriously injured last summer when he was struck on the head by a fast ball pitched by Bump Hadley of the New York Yankees in a game in New York.

"The committee could find no one more outstanding or more deserving of the award," Horwitz said.

Cochrane is the third recipient of the award. Two years ago Charles E. Smith, then with the St. Louis Cardinals, was given the plaque. Last year Bruce Campbell of the Cleveland Indians was honored.

Joe Di Maggio of the New York Yankees, voted the most valuable player last season, was presented with a cup, and Carl Hubbell of the New York Giants, selected as the best pitcher, was given a trophy.

Old Time Stars Attend.

The banquet this year was arranged as a deferred birthday party for Mack.

Members of the championship Athletics teams of 1910-14 were present, as well as stars of more recent times and some of the managers who spend their summers trying to outguess Mack.

Joe McCarthy was there, and Joe Bonin, Buckey Harris, Jimmy Dykes and Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators.

U. S. TABLE TENNIS

TEAMS BEATEN IN

WORLD TOURNEY

LONDON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—The United States lost virtually all chance of winning either the men's or women's world table tennis championships today as each team suffered one defeat.

The men's team, which had won its first five matches, suffered its first back at the hands of the unbeaten Britains tonight. The margin was 3 to 3, but that was enough to damage if not to destroy America's hopes of retaining the Swarthling cup.

The victory made Austria the favorite in its group, along with Hungary, unbeaten in group two. The 10 group winners are to play off for a title tomorrow.

Earlier today the American men had beaten Poland, 5 to 2, and Latvia, 4 to 0.

The American women's team, winner of the Corbillion cup last year, won two out of three matches, but was left out of the running with three victories in six starts.

FINALS—$3.30, $2.20, $1.65, $1.10 and 55 cents.

THE GUMPS—ANDY ON THE TRAIL

With the Hearty Approval of Every Fan

Philadelphia baseball writers honor four of the game's leading figures at a banquet in that city last night. Left to right: Carl Hubbell of the Giants, voted the best pitcher of the year; Joe Di Maggio of the Yankees, the most valuable player; Al Horwitz, president of the Sports Writers' association, who made the awards; Connie Mack, Athletics manager, and Mickey Cochrane of the Tigers, called the most courageous player.

CLERK IS STUCK WITH 5 TICKETS; THEY PAY $2,860

Santa Anita, Cal., Jan. 25.—[Special.]—The rule that the customer is always right was worth $2,810 to Lonnie Gray, an $8 a day mutual clerk at the Santa Anita race track today.

Just before the running of the seventh race a man dashed up to Gray's $10 win window and asked for five tickets on the No. 5 horse, or at least that is what Gray understood him to say.

But when Gray punched out the tickets requested the customer looked at them and declared he had asked for No. 6. He refused to accept the tickets Gray had punched, and demanded five on No. 6.

Gray was stuck with the No. 5 tickets, there being no way to return them to the machine—and no purchasers at that late hour.

In a photo finish Bright Mark No. 5, won the race, and paid $114.40 for $2. Gray collected $2,860 for his five tickets.

As an aftermath, the discomfited customer who purchased the tickets returned and demanded at least his $80 back. A customer in line for the next race laughed at him and shoved him aside.

MISSES BERG AND HEMPHILL WIN IN FLORIDA GOLF

Punta Gorda, Fla., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Easily outclassing their opponents, Kathryn Hemphill, Columbia, S. C., and Betty Berg, Minneapolis, moved today into the second round of the women's winter golf tournament here.

Miss Hemphill, last year's winner, defeated Mrs. Terry Dolson, Fort Myers, 8 and 6, while the Minneapolis red head found little difficulty eliminating Katherine McCloskey, Pittsburg, 8 and 7.

Other favorites also swept through their matches despite gale winds which blew over the course all day. The only close matches were those between Mrs. Leo Walper, Washington, D. C., and Mrs. William Hockins, Lake Hopatcong, N. J., which Mrs. Walper won, 2 and 1, and Marion McDougall's victory over Sarah Guth, Webster, Groves, Mo., by the same figure. Miss McDougall is from Portland, Ore. Other results:

Jean Bauer, Providence, R. I., defeated and George Chambers, Fort Myers, Fla., 6 and 6.

Mary Louise Gardner, Winnetka, Ill., beat Mrs. J. P. Berg, Indianapolis, Ind., 5 and 4. Mrs. Jane Cochran Jamison, Palm Beach, eliminated Mrs. J. J. Lawlor, New York City, 4 and 5.

Audrey Phillips, Palm Beach, won from Eloise Bates, Portland, Ore., 4 and 2.

Lefty Gomez Adds Self to Mounting List of Holdouts

New York, Jan. 25.—(AP)—The rapidly growing list of major league salary holdouts today acquired another conspicuous recruit, Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, southpaw ace of the world champion Yankees and No. 1 pitcher of the American league in effectiveness.

At Reno, Nev., where he's divorcing his actress wife, June O'Dea, Gomez revealed he had been offered a $150,000 contract, representing an increase of $1,500.

Like most other Yankee contracts this is considered the club's opening bid. Gomez, whose pay was cut from $200,000 to $135,000 last year after two mediocre seasons, made a sensational comeback in 1937. He won 21 games, against 11 defeats, and led all pitchers with an earned run average of 2.33 per game. He was the strikeout king of the majors, with 194 victims, and topped off his year by beating the Giants twice in the world series.

Joins Di Maggio, Selkirk.

Gomez joined two teammates in the holdout class, Joe Di Maggio and George Selkirk, both outfielders. Di Maggio not only turned down a $250,000 offer, representing a $10,000 raise, but jolted the Yankee front office by demanding $40,000.

Of last year's Yankee holdout crop, biggest in the history of the club, only Jake Powell is conceded to have his signature on the dotted line. Nothing has yet been heard from Lou Gehrig, top man with $36,000; Red Ruffing, who held out until the 1937 season was a month old, or Bill Dickey, catcher, who drew down $18,000.

As a whole, the big 1937 holdout crop soon may be exceeded, judged by the rapidly with which the athletes are making their dissatisfaction a matter of public record. Even the Giants, famous for being one big, happy family, have uncovered two holdouts, Outfielder Hank Leiber and Catcher Harry Danning. Leiber was a casualty most of 1937.

Long Holdout List.

All told, checkup today showed thirty-one avowed holdouts in the two major leagues, with a number of precedents still to be heard from. The "hush-hush" attitude of most clubs on salary subjects makes it difficult to determine the real extent of dissatisfaction. The Chicago White Sox, with seven known holdouts, lead the list.

Annually the names of Paul Waner of the Pirates, Dizzy Dean of the Cardinals, Zeke Bonura of the White Sox and Joe Stripp, ex-Dodger now on the Cardinal roster, appear among the holdouts. This year is no exception.

Other prominent names on the list include Joe Medwick and Johnny Mize, power hitters of the Cardinals; Cy Blanton, Pittsburgh pitcher; Wes Ferrell and Al Simmons of the Washington Senators; Monty Stratton, star White Sox pitcher, and Frank Demaree, heavy hitting outfielder of the Chicago Cubs. Joe Di Maggio's brother, Vince of the Boston Bees, also is a holdout.

BANKER DENIES BUYING SHARE OF CINCINNATI REDS

Columbus, O., Jan. 25.—[Special.]—Edgar T. Wolfe, banker and publisher of the Ohio State Journal, today denied reports that he had purchased half interest in the Cincinnati Reds from Powell Croesley.

"There's not a word of truth in it," Wolfe said. "I never even thought of buying the Cincinnati Reds or any other baseball club."

Schaefer Takes Two More Blocks in 28.2 Billiards

New York, Jan. 25.—[Special.]—Jake Schaefer of Chicago, defending the world's 28.2 ball line billiard championship against Welker Cochran of San Francisco, made it four straight over his California rival by capturing both blocks at the Strand academy today. They are playing for 3,500 points. In the afternoon block Schaefer triumphed, 250 to 88, in eight innings, then took the night block, 250 to 167 in thirteen innings.

MACPHAIL TALKS AND TALKS, BUT STILL HAS MUNGO

Cubs Are Not Impressed by His Salesmanship.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The million or more words exchanged between the Cub and Brooklyn Dodger officials during the last two months have been charged off as waste.

All the conversation involved an agreement on terms by which Van Lingle Mungo, the large temperamental right hander, could be moved from Brooklyn to Chicago. Mungo, who got mad at his manager last summer and went home, is still tied to the wrong end of the Brooklyn bridge.

But there still is some hope—at least Larry MacPhail, new business manager of the Dodgers, hopes he can find a club liberal, or careless, enough to meet his demands for the pitcher, who is a star but never has proved it.

MacPhail Gets Anxious.

MacPhail, who is a somewhat convincing talker, quit Chicago yesterday after two futile selling efforts. MacPhail and Clarence Rowland, the Cubs' trade man, argued for hours Monday night. They made no headway, so agreed to drop the subject.

But yesterday morning MacPhail was back, apparently getting a bit anxious over the possibilities that the Cubs might cool off completely. He talked some more with Rowland, but was stopped cold; so he flew to Cincinnati, where he will try his luck with Warren Giles, business manager of the Reds.

Nothing definite about MacPhail's demands was made known. The only admission by Rowland was that they couldn't come close to agreeing, but will try again at New York next week.

"We don't need Mungo so badly that we can be stampeded into giving away our ball team," Rowland said. "We're not breaking our necks trying to buy him. They are trying to sell him to us."

Grimm Says No.

Charley Grimm, Cub manager, who arrived from St. Louis during the day, promptly admitted he wouldn't. O. K. the proposition MacPhail offered Rowland.

Apparently the only item in the deal satisfactory to Brooklyn is First Baseman Rip Collins. But the Dodgers object to Pitchers Leroy Parmelee and Clyde Shoun. They want Clay Bryant, Bill Lee or Larry French. Outfielders Augie Galan, Carl Reynolds, Joe Marty, and Tuck Stainback all have been mentioned. The Dodgers insisted on Frank Demaree as the fly chaser in the parcel, but MacPhail is supposed to have given up on Demaree on the belief that by so doing he might wheedle the Cubs out of Bryant or Lee.

The signed contract of Bob [Lefty] Logan arrived yesterday. Another missive is supposed to have brought information that Bill Jurgens was not satisfied with his contract. Bill probably got new ideas after reading that Billy Herman's income tax return for 1936 was for more than $20,000. Incidentally Herman is reported awaiting a chance to haggle with Owner P. K. Wrigley.

ONLY FIVE DAYS TO FILE GOLDEN GLOVES ENTRY!

Do It Now or Miss Out for a Year, Fellows.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Five days remain in which amateur boxers may enter the eleventh annual Golden Gloves tournament in Chicago. More than one thousand applications have been received. Many of these boys, however, who were assigned to the first two physical examinations, were unable to attend on those nights.

Any boxer, who has filed his entry and received a parental consent card, may report at either of the final examinations, Jan. 31 and Feb. 4 at Trapham's gymnasium between 6 and 8 p. m. The signed card must be presented at the examination.

Two Examinations Required. All boxers must pass a preliminary physical examination before they will be permitted to register for any of the four sectional tournaments. And since entries will not be accepted after midnight Sunday, and the final examination is Feb. 4, there is no opportunity after these dates to qualify for Golden Gloves.

After assignment to a sectional tournament, boxers will be given a final physical examination on the day they report for their first matches. Boxers in the west side tournament, which opens at the Madison Athletic club Feb. 9, have been divided by weight classes and by open and novice divisions, but all will report on either Feb. 9 or Feb. 10. While the west side tournament is continued on Feb. 17 and 18 at the Park Casino, Madison and Hamilton, only survivors of the early rounds at the Madison A. C. will be eligible to box there.

Open in Two Rings. Two rings will be used on the first night of each sectional tournament. After that, it is likely that only one ring will be required. On the opening night of each tournament—west, Feb. 9; northwest, Mark gold Gardens, Feb. 16; south, White City, Feb. 15, and north, Loyola university gymnasium, Feb. 21—the bouts will start at 7 o'clock. On subsequent nights the show will start at 7:30 or 8 o'clock depending on the number of bouts.

All matches will consist of three two minute rounds. Eight ounce gloves will be used.

Seats are not reserved for the sectional tournaments. Admission is seventy-five cents and the doors open for each show a half hour before the first bouts.

Tickets Available Now.

Tickets for the Tournament of Champions, Feb. 28 and March 1 and 2, and the finals on March 11 at the Stadium may now be ordered by mail. Ringside seats for the Tournament of Champions are $1.10 and the scale of prices for the championship bouts is $3.30, 2.20, $1.55, $1.10, and 55 cents. Mail your order to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

Farragut, Hirsch Also Dealt First Defeats.

A free throw by Teska in the closing seconds enabled Kelyvn Park to force the Wells game into overtime. In the extra period, Mandier and Schade made field goals for Kelyvn and free throws were added by Mehl and Teska. The lone Wells point was scored by a goodie.

Weber, now tied for the lead in the north section of the Catholic league, may be dropped to the bottom of the standings as the result of playing John Niemiera, who, it has been discovered, is ineligible. St. George, tied for the lead with Weber and beaten by Weber, protested against Niemiera playing and was upheld. Weber forfeited the game. Fenwick and De Paul, also beaten by Weber with Niemiera in the lineup, are expected to protest. Lineups:

NOW THIS IS THE ANGLE, TALKING - DO YOU THINK YOU COULD REOPEN NEGOTIATIONS WITH BRONZEN - AND PRETEND THAT YOU'VE DECIDED TO TAKE THAT JOB AS GO-BETWEEN?

FAIL TO SEE WHY NOT.

GOOD! I WILL REMAIN ENTIRELY OUT OF THE PICTURE AND LEAVE YOU ON YOUR OWN TILL I HEAR FROM YOU.

MEANWHILE - NEAR THE RIVERS MOUTH, ABOARD CHIEF SHELLBURY'S COAST GUARD PATROL BOAT...

CHIEF, LOOK! THERE'S THAT MYSTERY BOAT AGAIN - AND HEADED UP THE RIVER!

TURN THIS TUB AROUND, MATE. WE'LL CHASE HER RIGHT UP STREAM - SHE WON'T GET AWAY FROM US THIS TIME - THERES NO PLACE ELSE TO GO.

A black and white photograph of a man standing next to a large shark. The man is wearing a dark jacket and light-colored trousers. The shark is standing vertically on its head. In the background, a boat is visible with the text "CITY YACHT BASIN" on its side. The overall image has a grainy, high-contrast appearance.

This blue marlin, a fish rarely taken in Florida waters, was caught recently in the Miami area by Ted Canty (left) of Chicago. Lee Alberts (also standing) and Capt. Fine (seated) helped Canty make the catch. The fish weighed 140 pounds. Its length may be computed by comparison with the height of Alberts, who is six feet two inches tall.

Three of the thirteen teams that will compete in the six day bicycle race starting Sunday night in the Coliseum yesterday were paired by George Harvey, general manager of the race.

Topping the list will be Gustav Killan and Heinz Vopel, the German combination which refuses to be broken up. The Germans barely beat out Jimmy Walthour and Al Crossley in the recent Cleveland race. The latter will be paired again in the impending grind.

Henri LePape and Bernard Wambst will ride the French team. Wambast, making his first Chicago appearance is one of a group of European riders which recently arrived in America. Among them is Dominik Camastro of Italy who will be half of the Italian team.

Piet VanKempem, the Dutch star who is en route from Cleveland, will be half of the Holland team with the possibility that Willie Vrooman will be his running mate.

Certain members of the remaining teams have been selected with Jackie Campbell on the Jewish team, Mickey Rodden on the Polish team, Jules Audy on Rusty Peden on the Canadian team and Ramiglo Saveadra of the Argentine on the Spanish team.

The Central A. A. U. codeball tournament will start tonight in the Madison Athletic club, 4717 Madison street. Semi-finals and finals will be held tomorrow night.

Included among the entries are those of George Webster, national champion, who represents the Madison club; Al Tapp, national runner-up of St. Edward's church; Jack Dobler, Lincoln-Belmont Y. M. C. A.; Cornelius Sippel, Chicago A. C.; Andy Anderson and Charles Oswald, Lawton Y. M. C. A.; Charles Glancy, Madison, and Ronald Schuman, unattached.

Codeball is played on a regulation single-handball court, but the feet and not the hands are used to strike the ball, which is of heavy rubber six inches in diameter.

Funeral services for John O. Seybold, 72 resident of the Cubs, will be held today at 3 p. m. in the chapel at 5501 North Ashland avenue. The ritual of the Episcopal church will be read by the Rev. Carl Naumann of Evanston.

Palbearers will be William Veeder, Jr., Ernest Rammon, Robert Lewis, George Dreher, Jack Bisbee, and Clyde Brown.

Honorary palbearers include: Kenneth M. Landis, Philip K. Wright, Charles A. Weber, Ford Frick, William Harridge, Charles Grimm, Charles F. Drake, Henry F. Edwards, Warren Brown, Marvin McCarthy.

Lloyd Lewis, Edward Cochrane, Arch Ward, Charles Dunkley, Dan Cahill, Joe McCarthy, Irving Vaughan, Edward Brown, Robert C. Quinn.

William Bensawager, Sam Bradman, Branch Rickey, Gerald Nugent, James Gallagher, John Hoffman, William Brandt, Mayor Edward J. Kelly, James Gill, James Corcoran, Herbert Simons, Raymond Knipf.

Lloyd Neely, Bill McKeechie, Leo Hartman, Robert Rowland, Jack Doyle, Horace Stoneham, Leo Bondy, Harry Traband, Pat Flanagan, Hal Totten, Russ Hodges, John Harrington.

Steve McKeever, Leslie O'Connor, Dr. Robert Hyland, Ed Munsel, Wayne Otto, John Carmichael, James Kearns, Eddie McGuire, Harry McNamara, George Roberts, Ed Keady.

Lewis Dehner, University of Illinois center, swelled his Big Ten basketball scoring total by only seven points last Saturday against Ohio State, but his ninety-seven points for the six games the Illini have played gives him a thirty-six point margin over his nearest rival, John Townsend of Michigan. Townsend has sixty-one points in six games played in conference games and, like Dehner, has six to play in completing the conference schedule for the season.

Jewell Young, who won conference scoring honors last season, is in third place in the point standing with sixty points and looms as a real threat to Dehner's record for the title and a new scoring record. The Iowa Hawkeyes have played only four Big Ten games, leaving Young light to reduce the gap. Conference scoring:

Yacht owners and crews of the Great Lakes Cruising club will hold their fifth combined annual meeting, winners' dinner, and election of flag officers, tonight in the Sherman hotel. A score of winning skippers are to be presented with trophies.

Kenneth R. Ball, who was rear commodore of the Columbia Yacht club two years ago, has been chosen by the cruising club's nominating committee as commodore for 1938. Commodore Ball's flagship is the 35 foot cutter Aloha.

The committee nominated Kenneth Brown of the Chicago Yacht club, as Donnie McFadyen, president of the Arena Hockey league, met with other officials last night to make plans for playoffs and schedule games for two weeks in advance.

The Chicago Hornets were paired with the Whiting Macs and the Waukegan Rockets against the C. Y. O. Shamrocks for next Sunday afternoon. On Feb. 6, Waukegan will meet Whiting and the Shamrocks, the Hornets. At the conclusion of this series, the playoff games will begin with the second and third teams meeting in an elimination, while the first rank-Coral Gables, Fla., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Lloyd Brown, Cleveland Indians pitcher, today made it clear he is out to stop Paul Waner, Pittsburgh outfielder, in the Miami Biltmore left-handers' gol ftournament. Waner, champion the last two years, is the favorite to repeat.

Brown scored a nine hole 38, two over par, in the face of a brisk wind as he marched into the semi-finals with a 4 and 2 victory over John T. Rogerson of Miami Springs. Wanger, medalist and two time winner of the tournament, could do no better than 41 for the first lap of a 4 and 3 victory over S. H. Iverson of Clearwater, Fla.

LEADS ALL-GIRL ORCHESTRA LIKE A TIGER TAMER

So Radio's Hour of Charm Is Just That.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

That's the smooth, melodic Hour of Charm—if you could see as well as hear it as we did here Monday evening—resembles nothing so much as Clyde Beatty taming tigers. Phil Spitalny is the tamer, his all-girl orchestra and singers the tresses. They respond nicely, too, with a minimum of clapping and snarling. That is understandable as soon as you see Spitalny. Pierce as Mussolini on a balcony, Spitalny whips and chums the air, his baton keeping up a rhythmic whistle.

[The production directors keep the microphones at a safe distance from the musical dictator lest this whir go out on the air.]

But the dynamic Spitalny doesn't rely on his stick alone; he uses his lower jaw, his neck, his shoulders, and even tosses his mane to get desired effects. He glares and he beams, he fumes and sweats, while he gives of girls sweep from behind their instruments to the right and then to the left in formations that would make Notre Dame footballers goggle-eyed. Meanwhile, production directors, split second watches before their eyes, shuttle about adding to the kinetic effect.

The Mutual network feels elated—and justifiably so—over its broadcast presenting courageous young Fred Smitz Jr. on the air for the first time, particularly after the boy's father had declined to let another broadcaster coddle him into appearing on the so-called Radio Newsweek program. It was a dramatic program, one that listeners will long remember. Like the premiere of Shirley Temple, which Mutual aired exclusively, this was a notable scoop.

Those Public Hero No. 1 broadcasts, while not so widely known as Gang Busters, are rather well done. Bob Wamboldt writes and Don Thompson produces them. The cast of capable Chicago actors does them up neatly. Cases have added interest because they have not been so widely publicized as those on Gang Busters, thus seem fresh to most listeners.

9 PARK DISTRICT POLICEMEN WIN $600 IN PRIZES

Cash awards totaling $600 were distributed to nine policemen of the Chicago park district yesterday for outstanding services in 1937. Honorable mention citations were awarded to twenty-eight.

Policemen Paul M. Bartels and Charles A. Kinsella divided the $250 first prize for their capture of five burglars. Policemen Albert Formiller and George H. Grant divided the $150 second prize. Other prize winners were Policemen Robert Jackson, $100; Policemen Edward F. Buettner and John E. Goldrick, $50, and Policemen George C. Gammonley and George I. Loret, $40.

Robert J. Dunham, president of the park board, established the competition and contributed the money for the awards.

80 BOYS AND TWO SNOW PLOWS CUT PATH FOR STORK

Rhineland, Wis., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Eighty CCC enrollees, two snow plows, and a tractor labored all of today to take an expectant mother six miles from the town of Blackwell to Laona, where she could have hospital care. The expedition arrived just before dark.

The CCC boys worked with shovels to open a way when the plows and tractor were unable to penetrate the deep snowdrifts. Swirling snow drifted off the highway shut 100 yards behind them as they advanced.

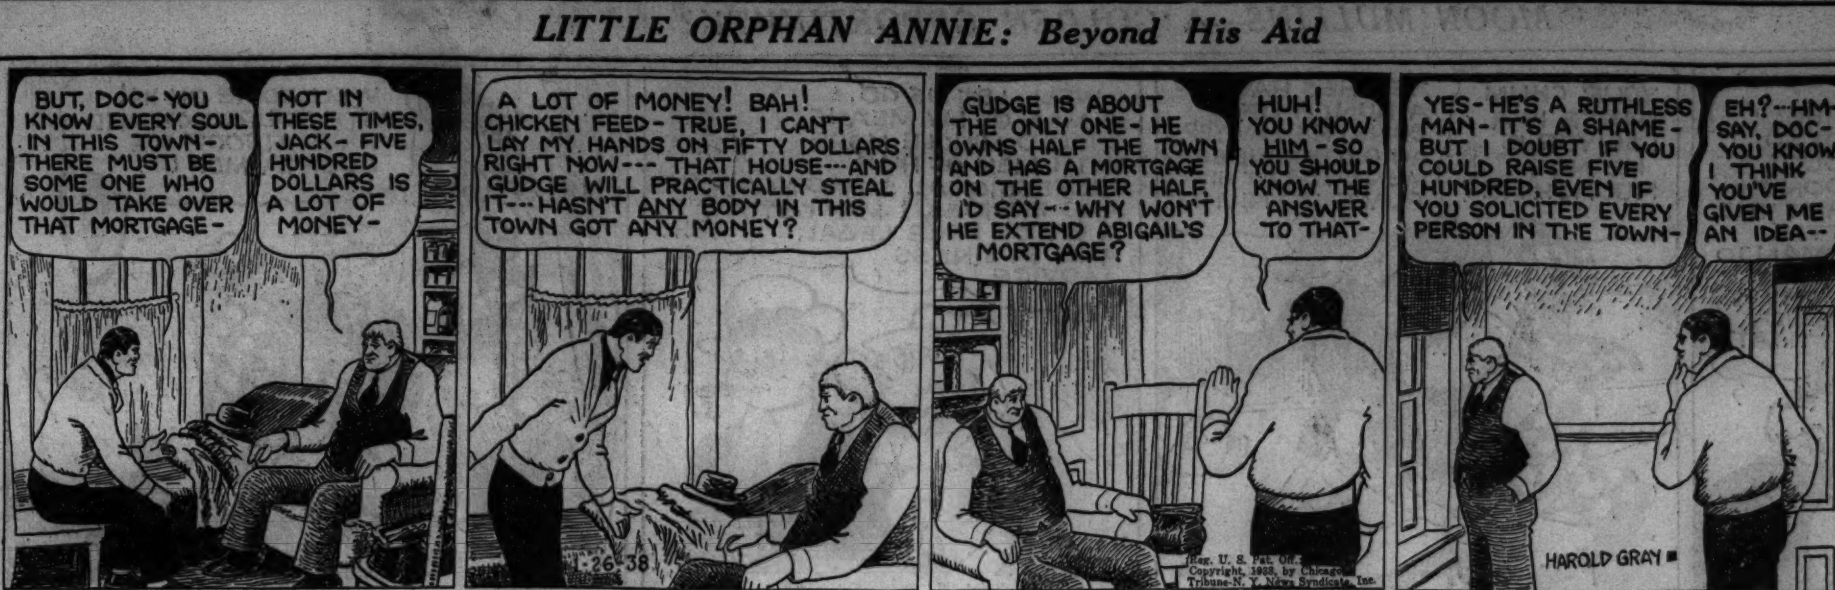

Physicians praised the boys' work, saying their efforts probably saved the lives of the woman and the unborn baby.

Park Board O.K.'s $12,438 for Two-Way Police Radio

The Chicago park board yesterday authorized the expenditure of $12,438 for construction of a police radio broadcasting and receiving station for the district and the installation of transmitters in nine of the fifty park district squad cars. All the cars now are equipped with receiving sets. Chief Michael Hayes of the park police said the two way system, the first in Chicago, will be in operation within two weeks.

William Slavens McNutt, Noted Writer, Dead at 52

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 26 (Wednesday).—(AP)—William Slavens McNutt, 52 years old, prominent magazine and screen writer, died unexpectedly last night of bronchial pneumonia and a weakened heart. He had returned to work (RKO) last week after a 12 week layoff.

OMIT DIVIDEND
ON 'BIG STEEL'
COMMON STOCKEarnings Slump in Fourth Quarter.

Reflecting the business recession which started late last summer, leading steel companies yesterday reported 1937 fourth quarter earnings, which were sharply below those of the third quarter of last year and the fourth quarter of 1936.

The United States Steel corporation—the world's largest steel company—reported fourth quarter profit of $4,577,983, equal to $1.27 a share on the preferred stock, against $30,617,636, or $2.76 a share on the common stock, in the third quarter of 1937, and $20,650,780, or $1.85 a share on the common stock, in the fourth quarter of 1936. Earnings are before federal tax on undistributed profits.

Directors of United States Steel declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred stock, but took no action on a dividend on the common stock. The corporation paid a dividend of $1 on the common on Dec. 20, the first payment on the common since the 50 cents paid March 30, 1932.

Inland Steel Earns Less.

The Inland Steel company, Chicago, one of the largest independent steel companies, according to a preliminary report had a net profit of $867,571, equal to 55 cents a share on the capital stock, against a net profit of $4,433,375, or $2.82 a share, in the preceding quarter, and $3,867,625, or $2.58 a share, in the fourth quarter of 1936. Profit was before surtax on undistributed profits.

Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the board of United States Steel, said a declining demand for steel products continued in the last three months of 1937, reaching the lowest level in December, when production fell to 32.3 per cent of capacity.

"This serious interruption in activities of the mills," Taylor said, "created many difficult operating dislocations and intensified the falling off in earnings arising wholly from lesser volume."

Earnings for Year Reported.

For the full year 1937 net income of the corporation was $99,930,836, before provision for tax on undistributed profits, equal to $8.58 a common share, against $50,525,684, or $2.90 a common share, in 1936.

The corporation's output of finished products in the fourth quarter was at the average rate of 41.3 per cent of capacity, against 73.6 per cent in the preceding quarter. For the entire year 1937 output averaged 71.4 per cent of capacity, the best rate since 1929, when it averaged 89.2 per cent of capacity. For 1936 output averaged 59.3 per cent of capacity.

Shipments of finished steel products for 1937 totaled 12,825,487 tons, against 10,825,123 tons in 1936. Shipments to customers currently represent about 32 per cent of plant capacity, Taylor said.

Net working assets of the corporation and its subsidiaries, before deduction of dividends declared and unpaid, were approximately $372,334,000 on Dec. 31, 1937, against $391,330,566 at the end of 1936 and $389,123,253 at the end of 1935.

Decline in Employment.

At the end of 1937 the corporation had approximately 236,000 persons on its pay roll, the low point for the year. The average number during 1937 was 261,293, against 222,372 in 1936. The total pay roll for 1937 was $442,929,918, against $338,966,121 in 1936. The average earning per employee per hour worked was $6.4 cents, against 73.7 cents in 1936.

For 1937 the total capital outlays for modernization and rehabilitation of plants, additional facilities and equipment, and for the payment of maturing bonds and other capital obligations of the subsidiary companies totaled approximately $133,600,000. On Dec. 31, 1937, there remained an unexpended balance of $89,000,000 of authorized appropriations, all of which is scheduled for expenditure during 1938.

Inland Steel Report.

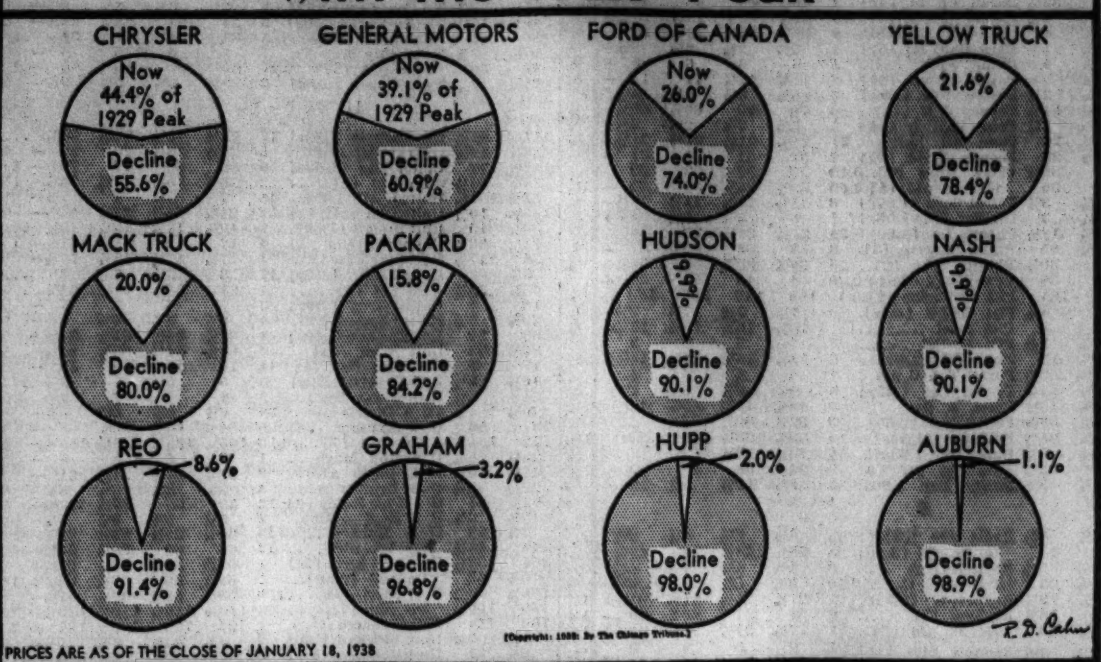

The preliminary report of Inland Steel for 1937, which is subject to final audit, showed a consolidated net profit of $1,266,537, after excess profits tax, equal to $8.05 a share on the capital stock, against a net profit of $1,800,545, or $8.54 a share, for 1936.

Directors declared a dividend of $1.50 a share on the common stock of record on Feb. 15. A disbursement of a like amount was made on Dec. 1.

The regular meeting of directors of the Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation was postponed from yesterday to Feb. 25.

Senate Group Approves
Nominees for RFC Board

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—(P)—The senate banking committee reported favorably today the nominations for reappointment of five directors of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, including Jesse H. Jones of Texas, chairman. Other nominees were C. B. Merriam of Kansas, Charles B. Henderson of Nevada, Howard J. Klossner of Minnesota, and Emil Schram of Illinois. All were re-nominated for two year terms.

How Recent Market Prices of Automobile Stocks Compare with the 1929 PeakU. S. Steel Is Holding Firm for 200 Units

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The United States Steel corporation (New Jersey) owns all or a substantial majority of the stock of 200 other companies, which together constitute the greatest industrial combination in the country.

United States Steel does not manufacture steel. It owns no ore reserves. It does directly none of the things with which its name is associated. These operations are delegated entirely to subsidiaries. So closely knit, however, are the properties and operations of the units controlled by United States Steel that they are customarily regarded as one unit.

United States Steel is purely a holding company and as such might face legal execution if President Roosevelt should realize his declared objective of abolishing holding companies.

President's Definition Vague.

The President did not give a definition of the term "holding company" when he discussed the question and has since declined to be drawn out on the point. In a broad sense any company which holds securities of another corporation is a holding company.

Myron C. Taylor, chairman of United States Steel, in announcing recent changes in the organization, including merger of certain subsidiaries, said the idea of consolidating all subsidiaries into one concern had been rejected as undesirable. It would, however, appear to be the only alternative to dissolution if holding companies should be banned by Congress.

As a holding unit United States Steel differs radically from similar units in the utility industry. Frequently, a utility holding company will control the operations of a large number of properties in which it is only a minority stockholder.

U. S. Steel Owns Units.

United States Steel, however, owns virtually all of the stock of the subsidiary properties it controls. In most cases it is the only stockholder. The advantage of the holding company structure employed has been organizational rather than financial.

How the United States Steel organization could be readjusted to comply with a holding company prohibition is difficult to foresee. Presumably it would necessitate either the breakup of the vast combination or the formation of a single unit which would carry through divisions, the operations now delegated to subsidiaries.

In the latter event it is likely that greater centralization of control than now exists would result. The steel corporation, like other great corporations, has in recent years been moving toward decentralization of management.

Makes Shift in Authority.

A series of internal changes designed to give greater authority to the operating personnel of the subsidiaries has recently been made by United States Steel. The tendency has been to shift responsibility to the operating men at the steel centers and away from the financial management at New York.

Consolidation of the steel subsidiaries would centralize in one corporation iron ore mines, timber property, railroads, steamship lines, utility companies, coal and coke properties, cement manufacturing plants, and facilities for the conversion of raw materials and the manufacture of a diversified line of finished products.

N. Y. STOCK, CURB EXCHANGES EACH
SUSPEND A MEMBER

New York, Jan. 25.—(P)—The New York Stock exchange membership of T. Gaillard Thomas II., exchange representative of the brokerage firm of Thomas & Griffith, was suspended today for three years, and the New York Curb exchange membership of Bernard F. Toole, Curb representative of the same firm, was suspended for one year.

Both exchanges charged violation of rules by the firm, and while declaring both Thomas and Toole were innocent of the violations complained of, held that under the regulations they, as exchange members, were responsible for the acts of partners.

Charles R. Gay, stock exchange president, said Thomas, through his firm, failed at various times to segregate common shares of Electrol, Inc., and Eastern Footwear corporation, which customers had paid for in full. In addition, he charged, the firm made improper use of securities of a customer by delivering such securities on sales made by the firm for its own account.

CHICAGO BROKERS DIVIDED ON NEW SHORT SALE RULE

Some Predict Result
Will Be Harmful.

Chicago brokers were divided in opinion yesterday on the ultimate result of the new short selling rule announced Monday by the Securities and Exchange commission. The rule, to become effective Feb. 8, forbids short sales except at prices $\frac{1}{4}$ of a point (12½ cents a share) above the preceding sale.

One prominent broker declared the new rule is another step toward throttling of a free market for securities. He also expressed belief that the rule would do more harm than good because it would discourage short selling which, he said, provides a cushion for a weak market in the form of reserve buying power.

Calls Present Rule Adequate.

The same broker said that the rule went beyond the regulation of the type of short selling that results in bear raids on the market. He said he believed that adequate protection was provided by the present New York Stock exchange rule which prohibits selling at a price below the preceding sale.

A number of other brokers agreed that too drastic a curb on short selling would result in wider fluctuations in the market than at present.

Others were of the opinion, however, that the new rule might not have much effect on the market, because odd lot selling was not included in the provisions of the rule and short selling still is possible on a rising market.

See No Effect on Day's Trade.

Most brokers agreed that the SEC announcement had no effect on the market yesterday.

From Washington came reports that the SEC may further investigate activities of a small group of short sellers on the New York Stock exchange.

Clarification of technical points contained in the new SEC rule will be sought by the New York Stock exchange in conversations between officials of the exchange and the commission, exchange officials said yesterday. Charles R. Gay, president of the exchange, said it will cooperate with the SEC in enforcing the rule.

FRANC TUMBLES,
BUT RALLY PARES
LOSS AT CLOSE

New York, Jan. 25.—(Special.)—The French franc slid sharply today toward the lows of its recent break. Observers believed the French pound fund was not operating most of the time in Paris, but reports from London indicated that after a time the British control stepped in to keep the French currency from declining too much against sterling.

In New York the franc opened at 3.24½ cents, off 6½ points, later yielding to about 3.23 cents before a recovery to 3.28½ cents, or .04 of a cent below Monday's close. Some foreign exchange authorities here believe that at present the franc is somewhat overvalued and will tend to slide off whenever the control is not operating. The low just before the new Chaumet cabinet was formed was 3.23 cents.

Sterling was unchanged, closing at $4.99 13/16.

Wilson & Co.
Omits Common Stock Dividend

Directors of Wilson & Co., third largest meat packer, voted yesterday to suspend dividends on the common stock because of the cause of inventory losses last fall and general business uncertainties at present. The directors' last month deferred action on the common stock dividend of 50 cents until the management was "better able to judge conditions and the prospect for earnings in the new fiscal year."

The company paid 12½ cents quarterly on the common stock from March 1, 1935, through last Dec. 1, although earning only 28 cents a share in the 1937 fiscal year.

"Severe inventory decline during October, 1937, last month of the company's fiscal year just ended," explained Chairman Thomas E. Wilson, "have reduced earnings below total dividend disbursements for the year."

Conservative consideration made advisable postponement of further payments to holders of common shares until surplus thus reduced is restored from earnings and until general business conditions are more stable and the company's results for the current fiscal year can be more accurately foreseen.

The Zenith radio corporation also will pay no dividend this quarter. Although not on a stated regular basis, the stock has paid a dividend of 50 cents in each of the last four quarters, and a dividend normally would be payable Jan. 30. Lack of action is interpreted as reflecting the desire of directors to have a better idea of earnings for the year to end April 30 before voting any further dividends.

Deere & Co. directors deferred action on common stock dividends, but voted the regular 35 cent preferred stock payment. The common shares were increased by a 200 per cent stock dividend last fall and a dividend of $1 a share was paid on the original stock.

Dividends declared yesterday, together with rate, period, and payment, and record dates, follow:

EGG PRICES DIVE
TWO YEAR LOW

Storage eggs yesterday dropped to the lowest price in two years on the Chicago Mercantile exchange. Prices of the old crop contracts were down $105 a car lot under pressure of sharply increased receipts of fresh eggs in the east.

Futures for delivery this month of eggs stored in 1936 closed at 16½ cents, off 1 cent a dozen. February fresh egg contracts, influenced by the increased supply, closed down $\frac{1}{2}$ cent a dozen at 19 cents after dropping $\frac{1}{2}$ cent from the opening.

Butter futures were unchanged to a cent lower, with the January contract closing at 31½ cents. Futures sales yesterday totaled 114 cars of eggs and 144 cars of butter.

FARMERS' GRAM
CO-OP MARKET
FIRM DISSOLVEDStockholders End 8
Year Experiment.

Stockholders of the Farmers National Grain corporation yesterday ratified the recommendation of directors to dissolve the organization. The corporation, a government financed agency for cooperative marketing, ceased functioning as a marketing unit late last year. Its activities were taken over by regional cooperative associations.

Yesterday's action brings to an end the eight year old attempt to establish a successful national system of cooperative marketing for grain producers. Into the enterprise the federal government poured several million dollars on which it has little chance of recovery.

Will Liquidate Assets.

The decision of stockholders was announced by W. C. Horn, president of the national organization. The vote, he said, sustained the decision of the directors and directed the gradual liquidation of the organization's assets.

"The liquidation," he said, "will be carried on in an orderly manner during the next several months."

The program under which regional cooperatives have handled the marketing of their own grain since late last year has worked satisfactorily and will be continued in effect, he said.

Farmers National was employing 500 persons in its main office in Chicago and at its various branches before its activities were curtailed. Most of this personnel under the plan of dissolution was to be taken over by the regional coöps.

Chartered in 1929.

Farmers National was chartered in 1929 under the provisions of the agricultural marketing act. In its early days it acted as broker for the federal government through the stabilization corporation through which the federal government attempted to peg wheat prices at a high level.

The career of the organization has been stormy from its beginning. It forced its way into the Chicago Board of Trade over the bitter opposition of the members. This was accomplished through the secret purchase of the Updike Grain company of Omaha which held full membership privileges on the exchange.

With the exception of the period in which it was acting as broker for Grain Stabilization corporation the national coöps was consistently unprofitable. It underwent a financial reorganization in 1936, the government wiping off loans aggregating about $14,000,000 and advancing sufficient new credits to enable the corporation to continue in business.

Loss to U. S. 20 Millions.

The federal government total loss on the market venture may run as high as 20 millions, it is estimated. The 1936 refinancing called for an "internal tax" on grain marketed through the coöps, the proceeds to be used in paying off government loans. This provoked dissatisfaction among the member cooperatives. Disagreement among the members resulted early last year in the retirement of C. E. Huff, who had been president of the organization since its inception. Horne was named to succeed him. W. C. Engel, vice president and general manager, has been the executive officer of the corporation since Huff's retirement.

12 DU PONT ITEMS
DEVELOPED SINCE
1929 BOOST SALES

New York, Jan. 25.—(Special.)—Twelve products, developed largely since 1929, accounted for about 40 per cent of the total sales volume last year of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. Laboratory du Pont, president, disclosed yesterday in an advance statement taken from his annual report to stockholders which will be published early in February.

Du Pont said production and sale of the twelve products now are giving employment directly to about 18,000 workers, compared with 10,700 employees in 1928 in the same group of products.

He listed the twelve groups of products with their year of introduction as follows: Duco lacquer, Dulux enamel (1930), Neoprene chloroprene rubber (1932), synthetic camphor (1931), Ponsol dyes, Anhydrous ammonia, synthetic methanol, synthetic urea (1935), Titanium pigments (1931), Viscose rayon, Acetate rayon (1929), and cellophane cellulose film.

Stock Market Committee
May Present Report Today

New York, Jan. 25.—(Special.)—It was understood in Wall street tonight that the report of the committee for the study of the organization and administration of the New York Stock exchange, headed by Carl C. Conway, will be submitted to the government committee of the trading body tomorrow. It was further understood that it includes a recommendation that the exchange elect a paid president and that greater administrative power be placed in the hands of members of the paid staff, reducing the influence of the committees.

Hearings on Over-Counter
Broker Bill Begin Tuesday

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—(Special.)—Hearings of the Maloney bill for regulating over-the-counter brokers and dealers will begin before the senate banking and currency committee next Tuesday, Senator Wagner announced today.

New SEC Members Call on President

William O. Douglas (center), chairman of the Securities and Exchange commission, and the commission's newest members—John W. Hanes (left) and Jerome N. Frank—are shown at the White House yesterday, where they called on President Roosevelt. Douglas said the visit was purely social one to enable him to present Hanes and Frank to the President.

Grt. Western Capital Slash
Plan Offered

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—(Special.)—The interest of the common stockholders of the Chicago Great Western Railroad company would be wiped out under recommendations made to the interstate commerce commission today by Examiner Homer H. Kirby.

Kirby urged that the capitalization of the road be cut to $62,000,000, approximately $76,000,000 less than the present capitalization. This would leave nothing of the present common stock.

Even at the road's "reproduction value" of $88,907,665, the net worth of the carrier's property would be only $44,221,601, Kirby told the commission.

Tells Views on Stock.

"It is apparent," Kirby said, "that the debtor's common stock has no value on the basis of earnings, past, present or prospective."

Kirby's recommendation in some respects follows the suggestions made by the carrier's management and representatives of the bondholders. The examiner borrowed from plans submitted by both groups and added some ideas of his own.

Fixed and contingent charges under Kirby's plan would amount to $1,702,000 annually. On the basis of estimated revenues he said this would leave about $1,000,000 for dividends.

Debt Would Be 26 Million.

Total debt of the road under Kirby's recommendations would be $26,000,000 including assumed obligations. The remaining $36,000,000 of capitalization would be capital stock.

The plan calls for immediate issuance by the reorganized company of $16,089,890 of 75-year first mortgage 4 per cent bonds; $5,331,600 of 100-year income mortgage 4½ per cent bonds; interest payable only if earned; $19,549,200 of 5 per cent preferred stock, $50 par value, which would be partially cumulative as to dividends, and $16,613,015 of 25 par stock.

CO-TRUSTEE COMMENTS.

Luther M. Walter, co-trustee of the Great Western, said here yesterday that the recommendations of Examiner Kirby to the I. C. C. are in the main similar to the plan previously submitted. He would withhold further comment, he said, until he saw the text of the examiner's report.

BOARD OF TRADE
SETS MARCH 1 FOR
CARGILL HEARING

Directors of the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday set March 1 for hearing on charges of rule violations against the Cargill Grain Company of Illinois and three of its officials. The company and the individuals were cited for refusing to liquidate 2,000,000 bushels of corn when ordered to do so by the business conduct committee during the "squeeze" in the corn market last September.

An investigation of alleged market manipulation in the September corn contract still is in progress under the direction of a special committee headed by William H. McDonald, the committee is studying the market operations of the persons who had sold corn short as well as the holders of the contract, of which Cargill was the largest.

Directors referred to an arbitration committee a dispute between Mark Lanier & Co. and the Bunge North American company over a transaction in rye last year.

Estimate Cost of Federal Coal Control in St. Louis

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 25.—(P)—Richard F. Wood, director of the St. Louis coal exchange, an organization of retail dealers, estimated today that price fixing under the Guffey coal act will add $3,750,000 to annual fuel bills in the St. Louis area, which receives its coal principally from the nearby Belleville, Ill. field.

ILLINOIS MINES
FACE BIG LOSS
IN PRICE FIXINGSale of Rail Coal in East Periled.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Coal mines in northern Illinois, the Peoria-Evanston district, and in Indiana are threatened with the loss of approximately one million tons of coal business awarded them annually by eastern railroads as the result of the price boost for locomotive fuel ordered by the national bituminous coal commission in its minimum price schedule. It was learned yesterday. Those affected include both the deep shaft and strip types of mines.

Loss of this business, it was said, would deprive Illinois miners—who have long been unutilized—of work and give it to eastern miners, who have been nonunion but who are now being recruited by the United Mine Workers, the C. I. O. union headed by John L. Lewis. Increasing the jobs available in the eastern fields, it was said, would provide an attractive sales talk for C. I. O. organizers. The Illinois and Indiana miners thrown out of work would be the goats, Illinois coal men said.

Prices are boosted.

Prices set by the bituminous coal commission for locomotive fuel were $2.15 a ton for Illinois fuel, regardless of the field from which it is obtained, and $2.10 a ton for Indiana coal. In the past the Illinois and Indiana mines sold their coal to the eastern roads at from $1.80 to $1.85 a ton. During the long arguments over minimum coal prices while the commission was hatching its minimum price schedule, the eastern Illinois and Indiana mine operators are reported to have let it be known that they would be pleased with a $1.95 a ton rate on mine run or modified egg coal, at which price they would have made a satisfactory profit.

The price for the eastern coal prior to the minimum price schedule was about $2.05 a ton for locomotive fuel. Under the minimum price schedule it now is $2.15 a ton. Because they must now pay approximately the same amount for the western coal as for the eastern fuel, the eastern roads are reported to be preparing to haul the eastern coal several hundred miles from Pennsylvania and Ohio mines to fueling stations in Indiana and Illinois. The reason for this is that the eastern coal is of a somewhat higher quality than the western coal.

Advantage Is Removed.

The Illinois and Indiana mines for many years have been selling a large part of their output to the eastern roads because of the lower price they asked for their fuel. With this price advantage gone their business with the eastern roads is reported to be drying up. In some cases the western mines are losing business they have had for twenty years.

One operator declared that this deprivation of Illinois and Indiana mines is a clear violation of the mandate of the Guffey-Vinson act, which is administered by the national bituminous coal commission.

The act says that prices set up "shall preserve as nearly as may be existing fair competitive opportunities." Boosting the level of Illinois and Indiana prices almost to the eastern prices destroys a competitive situation in effect for years, the Illinois coal operators say.

INSURANCE FIRMS TO RENEW FIGHT AGAINST LLOYD'S

Issuance of a license to underwriters representing Lloyd's of London Dec. 28 did not settle the question as to whether or not Lloyd's will continue to do business in Illinois, it was learned yesterday.

Leading American casualty and surety insurance companies—probably fifteen of them—are expected to file suit in Springfield today or tomorrow, appealing from the action of Director of Insurance Ernest Palmer in issuing the license. They have hired several attorneys and have challenged Attorney General Otto Kerner's interpretation of the new Illinois insurance code as it applies to Lloyd's. During hearings before the legislature last spring, Lloyd's representative said enactment of the code would force them out of business in Illinois. They operated for a time under a temporary permit until the license finally was granted.

$1,338,155

Electric Bond and Share

Quarter Net 3 Million.

Allied Mills, Inc., yesterday reported net profit for 1937 of $1,338,155, or $1.41 a common share on 946,000 shares, compared with net profit in 1936 of $2,555,233, or $2.88 a share on 888,888 shares.

The company's report said that the drop in earnings was caused by rapid decreases in commodity prices in the last six months of 1937, which offset profits of the live stock feed and soy bean divisions. In the distillery division a decline in bulk sales of whisky contributed to lower earnings.

The Atlantic Refining company and subsidiary companies reported a net profit in 1937 of $9,942,000 or $3.51 a common share, compared with $7,348,000 or $2.59 a share in 1936.

Electric Bond and Share company had net income for the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1937, of $3,086,329, or 18 cents a common share, compared with $2,601,722, or 9 cents a share, in the December quarter of 1936.

Net loss of $17,498 was reported for 1937 net income totaled $10,642,146, or 42 cents a share, against $9,942,421, or 17 cents a share, in the preceding year.

The report of the Wayne Pump company, maker of filling station and garage equipment, showed net profit for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30, 1937, of $1,637,073, or $5.65 a share, compared with profit of $1,325,279, or $4.57 a share, in the preceding fiscal year.

Earns More in Quarter.

Remington-Rand, Inc., showed net income for the December quarter of $1,391,497, equal after preferred requirements, to 76 cents a common share. This compared with net income of $1,097,243, or 55 cents a share, in the last quarter of 1936.

Net loss of $17,498 was reported by the American Hide and Leather company for the six months ended Dec. 31, 1937, compared with net profit of $114,212, or $1.14 per preferred share in the corresponding 1936 period.

The United States Leather company for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1937, had net profit of $238,626, or 35.18 cents a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock, compared with income of $407,365, or $6.27 a preference share in the preceding fiscal year.

H. M. McAdoo, president, said the decline was caused by a drop in inventory values.

Gen. Foods Reduces Prices

On Dry Cereals and Coffee

The General Foods corporation yesterday announced reductions in basic prices of dry cereals and coffee. Post cereals and Granaputs Flakes were reduced between 15 and 20 per cent.

Maxwell House coffee was marked down 2 cents a pound. No other General Foods products will be reduced at this time, the company said.

Reductions in a few cereals have been made by other companies recently, according to reports, but Chicago wholesale grocers said the cuts so far had not been general.

Coal Commission Rejects

Cleveland Plea on Prices

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—(AP)—The bituminous coal commission declined today the petition of the city of Cleveland for suspension of minimum prices on bituminous coal. The commission declared that to grant Cleveland's request would have a deplorable effect on the soft coal industry.

Demurrage Charges.

Demurrage charges are penalties levied by railroads against receivers and shippers of freight cars for failure to load or unload cars promptly.

The railroads have been forced to make these charges because companies sometimes keep cars out of circulation by holding them on private sidings until the goods are sold or they may use them for temporary storage purposes. The result is idle equipment and the penalty is levied to reduce the amount of this idle capital by forcing release of the cars for transportation purposes.

The roads allow companies to hold cars on private sidings forty-eight hours without charge. After this period the charge for each car is $3 a day for the first four days, Sundays and holidays excepted, and $5 a day thereafter.

Some states have enacted reciprocal demurrage laws which penalize railroads for failure to provide cars with a certain period after the cars have been ordered.

Tomorrow: Bills of Exchange.

Business Bits

Lester M. Jones will become passenger traffic manager of the Milwaukee road Feb. 1, H. E. Pierpont, chief traffic officer, announced yesterday.

Jones succeeds George B. Haynes, who is retiring after 45 years of service with the road. He has been passenger traffic manager since 1926.

Jones began his railroad career as an assistant ticket agent in Minneapolis.

He has been a passenger traffic manager since 1926.

Other changes Feb. 1 include promotion of William J. Cannon from general passenger agent to assistant passenger traffic manager and appointment of Harry Sengstacken as general passenger agent with headquarters in Chicago. Sengstacken has been general passenger agent in Boston.

The Terminal National bank has opened a new personal loan department to handle loans from $50 to $1,000.

Gaylord S. Morse, president, who made the announcement yesterday, said Carroll E. Foster, assistant cashier, has been appointed manager of the department.

H. F. Wuehrmann, president of the Uptown State bank, yesterday announced opening of a new department to specialize in small personal loans, salary loans, automobile loans, and small collateral loans.

E. T. Kurzdorfer, assistant vice president of the bank, will be in charge of the department.

Annual meeting of members and directors of the State Street council were held yesterday. New directors elected are M. L. Kresge, Samuel Malin, and Maurice Goldblatt. Six others were re-elected, and nine members of the board are serving terms not expiring until 1940 or 1941.

Frederick J. Kresge, president of the board; David C. Mayer Jr., president; and Joseph E. Spivack, president of the executive committee. Other members were re-elected.

The State Street Lighting association, which has the world's brightest retail street, is owned and operated by business houses on the street.

Ernest Gluck, a new director, Elmer T. Stevens, president, and other officers and directors were re-elected.

The Armstrong Paint and Varnish works, 84 year old Chicago company, elected R. G. Dahlberg a new vice president yesterday. Other officers were re-elected.

Logan A. Rozelle, associated with F. B. Brewster for ten years, has joined Case, Bosch & Co.

'PENNY' ROAD'S EARNINGS FALL FROM YEAR AGO

The Pennsylvania railroad yesterday reported that its December net operating income was $3,201,280, against $3,797,941 in December, 1936, and $6,206,555 in December, 1935.

For the entire year 1937 net operating income was $33,000,926, against $34,180,592 in 1936, and $70,396,641 in 1935.

Gross revenues for December stood at $30,335,115, against $40,401,711 for December, 1936. Gross revenues for 1937 totaled $455,933,509, against $441,428,189 in 1936.

BANK LIQUIDATION IN COUNTRY MOVES AT SLOWER PACE

139 Pay $1,546,756 to Creditors in Quarter.

Liquidation of closed state banks in Cook county was slowed somewhat during the closing months of 1937, it was disclosed in figures released yesterday by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett showing the total transactions of the 139 banks in the county that are still in receivership. Charles H. Albers is receiver for all but two of these banks.

The 139 banks repaid a total of $1,546,756 to their creditors in the last quarter, Barrett reported. This compares with $1,976,178 repaid by 140 banks in the previous quarter, and $3,514,246 repaid by 141 institutions in the closing quarter of 1936.

Depositors fare better. Depositors in general fared better last quarter than in the preceding one, the report said. Twenty-two banks paid $1,000,000 in liquidating dividends in the quarter just closed. In the previous three months forty-two banks paid $1,018,176, and in the comparable 1936 quarter $1,579,759 was returned to general creditors by twenty-nine banks.

One bank—the West Irving State—was taken out of receivership during the latest quarter.

A total of $318,684 in loans was repaid in the three months covered by Barrett's statement. Payment of preferred and secured claims totaled $101,209 and of bills incurred before closing $66,552. The receivers advanced $1,512,272 to conserve assets and adjust entries.

Expenses of the receiverships reached a total of $288,661, as against $325,714 in the third quarter and $424,960 in the final three months of the previous year, according to the tabulation.

Less Due for Salaries. Salaries of clerks, stenographers, and deputy receivers total $128,823 in the December quarter, $133,598 in the September quarter, and $151,393 in the previous December quarter. Attorney fees were up somewhat, totaling $81,643, as against $73,496 and $96,642.

The other receivership costs last quarter, with comparisons with the September and previous December quarters were: Receiver's salary, $5,749, $5,753, and $8,377; interest on re-construction Finance corporation loans and bills incurred before closing, $33,574, $69,650, and $50,363, and miscellaneous, $38,870, $42,852, and $108,184.

The total receipts of $3,080,027 exceeded disbursements by $267,663.

Studebaker Corp.
Investors' Guide: I shall appreciate your furnishing me with material concerning the Studebaker Corp.—J. H.

Answer: The Studebaker corporation is one of the leading independent automobile producers. Its Studebaker passenger cars are principally in the medium and medium low priced classes. Its four sizes of commercial cars range from low priced 1/2 ton trucks to 5 ton trucks in the medium high priced class.

Studebaker traces its ancestry back to a wagon and carriage enterprise which began business in South Bend, Ind., in 1852 with $206 in cash and $68 worth of tools. After becoming the largest vehicle manufacturer in the world before automobiles were in common use, the business evolved into automobile manufacturing through the horseless carriage replaced the buggy and wagon.

The present Studebaker corporation was incorporated in Delaware Jan. 26, 1935, as a reorganization of a corporation of the same name which was placed in receivership in 1932. Under the reorganization, Studebaker was divested of the control of the Pierce-Arrow Motor car company and the White Motor company.

The present corporation centralizes its major manufacturing operations in South Bend. Important assembly plants are located at Walkerville, Ont., and Los Angeles, Cal. Annual productive capacity is around 150,000 units.

Sales in 1937 totaled 91,509 units, a decline of 0.5 per cent from the 91,968 units sold in 1936. Sales in 1937 were running ahead of 1936 up to the business recession developed late in the year.

Sales for nine months ended Sept. 30, 1937, totaled $55,259,459, against $47,279,013 in the same 1936 period. Net income, however, decreased to $508,571, or 23 cents a share, from $708,571, or 33 cents a share largely because of higher expenses.

Net income for all 1936 was $2,188,000, or $1.01 a share, compared with a loss of $1,976,000 from March 9, 1935, when the new corporation began business, to the end of the year.

Sales for 1936 were $68,929,000, against $33,838,000 in 1935.

Current assets on Sept. 30, 1937, were $20,189,468, against current liabilities of $9,445,031. The present corporation has 2,193,343 shares of $1 par common stock outstanding of which no dividends have yet been paid.
